EARLY MORNING FISHING BONANZA

Fishermen pulled in striped bass as fast as they could get their lines in the water this morning near Elephant Rock in Tiburon. A sea gull, too, looks for fish through the early morning mist hanging over Angel Island, while fishing boats hover in Raccoon Strait. Several Marin sport fishing operators said they were surprised by the magnitude of the bass run, which they expected to last for another two or three days.

King Places Jordan Under Military Rule

Fear Of Civil War From Hussein's Newest Policies

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — King Hussein imposed full military rule on Jordan today and placed his army under Marshal Habes Al-Majali, considered by the Palestinian guerrillas to be ther implacable enemy. An army-guerrilla showdown — with the danger of civil war — appeared imminent.

The guerrillas united under Al Fatah leader Yasser Arafat, and although he issued a "don't shoot" order, he accused Hussein of playing into the hands of American-backed Zionists and possibly opening the way to an Israeli invasion of Jordan.

The sleepy desert city of Amman was quiet but tense. There was no shooting and the army was not in evidence, but ragtag members of the guerrilla civilian militia — their armed forces — patrolled the streets with rifles slung over their shoulders, sweat staining their T-shirts in the hot sun.

In Cairo, Egyptian foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said Tuesday night the United States scuttled its own Middle East peace initiative by supplying Israel with additional military aircraft.

Riad called on the Big Four powers to cement the shattered New York peace talks headed by U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring and said Egypt would continue to honor the 90-day Suez Canal cease-fire which began Aug. 7.

He told a news conference Egypt also would continue to seek a peaceful solution to the Middle East conflict and said its hopes were pinned on Big Four implementation of the November 1967 Security Council resolution which called for Israel to withdraw from nearly all the territory occupied during the 1967 conflict.

And at the United Nations the Arab nations condemned Israel's arrest of 450 Arabs as "unlawful" Tuesday and said Israel violated Geneva Convention accords pertaining to the treatment of civilians in

Lyon, Thompson Are Elected To Sausalito School Board

Two Sausalito men, Robert R. Lyon and Robert A. Thompson, have been elected to fill two vacant seats on the Sausalito School District board.

Lyon, an insurance executive, and Thompson, an attorney, defeated two Marin City candidates, Royce McLemore, a housewife, and Robert E. Fisher Jr., a student and counselor at the College of Marin.

Final unofficial returns including absentee ballots showed Thompson with 955 votes, Lyon with 917, Fisher, 631 votes, and Mrs. McLemore, 596. Fisher and Mrs. McLemore lost heavily — by a more than 2-1 margin — in all four precincts in Sausalito, but won handily in the only Marin City precinct.

At the polls, Sausalito voters gave 368 votes to Fisher, 791 to Lyon, 310 to Mrs. McLemore and 813 to Thompson. In Marin City the vote was: Fisher, 258; Lyon, 96; Mrs. McLemore, 282, and Thompson, 107.

Thompson, who received the most votes in the election, will complete the unexpired term of former trustee C. Gerald Clear, which runs until 1973. Lyon, who will finish the term of former board member James E. Muldoon, will be up for election again next April.

Clear and Muldoon resigned this summer after the successful recall of trustees David E. Freeheim and Martha Freebairn-Smith. Lyon, the new trustee, is a former chairman of the Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, a group which sponsored the recall.

Lyon said he was "very pleased" with the results of yesterday's vote. "I think the weight of votes indicates people are looking for education of children, as opposed to political and militant philosophies," he said.

Thompson said he was "delighted at the strong expression of voter feeling that the job can be done. "I'm very grateful we had as much support as we did from Marin City," he added.

During the campaign Thompson had urged voters not to "split the ticket" and to vote for both him and Lyon. He indicated on several occasions that he did not feel he could work with

Gravel Dredging At Jenner Killed

By C.P. McCARTHY

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday killed, at least for the near future, plans for a gravel dredging operation at the mouth of the Russian River at Jenner.

The supervisors voted, 4-1, to uphold an appeal of a board of zoning adjustments decision granting a use permit to Northern California Aggregates for the dredging operation.

The sole dissenter yesterday, chairman Robert Theiller, said he favored denying the appeal while adding a 14-page list of conditions to the use permit.

The permit would have been subject to further conditions set by the North Coast Regional Water Resources Control Board, Theiller said.

But Sonoma Supervisor Ignazio A. Vella said that plan was comparable to the Marin County Board of Supervisors action in approving flood control plans for Corte Madera Creek subject to whatever conditions the Army Corps of Engineers might want to impose.

He compared the Marin board's action to Pontius Pilate washing his hands of the whole affair.

"The corps of engineers decided to do exactly what the board let them do," he said, "and then the people cried to the board of supervisors, 'Why did you do this?' "

Vella said the supervisors could attach conditions to the permit, and also make it subject to conditions set by the water resources board, the corps of engineers, and the Department of the Interior, but when people

Residents Protest At Ferry Review

There were charges last night that the Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry service to downtown Sausalito is turning the city into a "tourist trap," and a "Coney Island."

The complaints came as the Sausalito City Council reviewed the ferry operation which began Aug. 15 with its temporary terminal south of the ferryboat Berkeley. (Other Sausalito City Council stories, page 42.)

Council chambers were packed with an overflow crowd of more than 70 persons as residents protested that the ferry has been serving the tourist more than the commuter.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, said both the "mid-day recreation" and the commuter business were necessary to make the operation successful. "We can't operate just for commuters," he said.

Restaurateur Sally Stanford retorted: "I think it's a terrific thing for Sausalito. If you lose the tourists, you'll lose the people who support this town, and you'll be taxed to the hilt."

Councilman Wyman Hicks said the "city is being converted into a tourist trap," and while the ferry is making earnings for the bridge district . . . "It's we who have to pay. We are losing our city."

Councilman Stephen Fraser said when he voted to permit the ferry operation, "I voted solely to have it as a convenience to local residents."

Residents said there is now

DIANA THE DROPOUT

Changed Woman Returns To U.S.

By LUCINDA FRANKS and THOMAS POWERS

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

(Copyright 1970)
(Third of five articles)

The Diana Oughton who returned from Guatemala in the fall of 1965 was not the same young woman who had graduated from Bryn Mawr two years earlier.

Her family was bothered by her seriousness and a new air of melancholy present in everything she did. She seemed to have lost some of her sense of humor and her taste for clowning around.

After living in a single room with a dirt floor and no plumbing or electricity for two years, Diana found it hard to adjust to the luxury of the Dwight, Ill., estate.

Her college German professor, whom she visited upon her return, found her deeply distressed at the poverty she had seen in Guatemala. Others said she had become disillusioned with her country's role in Guatemala and increasingly critical of its policies elsewhere, particularly in Vietnam.

Diana moved into the Bohemian Powelton quarter of Philadelphia when she returned from Guatemala and deliberately lived an ascetic life. Her apartment contained a bed and a table and nothing else. Her cupboards were generally empty except for a stock of caviar, smoked oysters and other gourmet food sent by her mother.

She took a job teaching in a federally-financed adult literacy program but soon became disillusioned with the other teachers. She said they were tired professionals who had little interest in their pupils and were "just trying to pick up an extra 100 bucks a week."

In the spring of 1966, Diana left Philadelphia for Ann Arbor to enroll in the University of Michigan Graduate School of Education to get her master's degree in teaching. She was adamant about being on her own and at times tried to conceal her family's wealth. When asked what her father did, she often said, "Oh, he's a farmer," and quickly changed the subject.

"I don't want you to give me an allowance," she said in a letter in March 1967. "It is important to me to be on my own and to feel I can support myself and have responsibility for my own life . . . I think by age 25, I have the right to live the way I want without feeling guilty that my way of life upsets you."

Bond Vote Falls Short Of Approval

Although 60 per cent of the voters who cast their ballots in yesterday's $210,000 bond election in the Bolinas-Stinson School District approved the bonds, the measure fell short of the needed two-thirds majority. Final unofficial returns showed 256 of the district's 838 eligible voters favoring the bonds and 168 opposing them, according to Supt. Lester M. Horning.

Although the California Supreme Court recently struck down the two-thirds requirement for bond elections, Horning said certification still cannot be obtained for bonds which pass by a simple majority.

He said the state's bond attorneys, who must certify all bonds, are waiting for a U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the state court's decision "and I suppose we will have to wait, too."

Horning termed the vote "a show of confidence" and said he feels it is "unrealistic for a district to be required to get two yes votes to every no vote" to pass bonds.

It was the third time in three years that a bond issue to construct a one-campus school in the district failed to pass.

Horning said the district plans to go ahead with constructon of a new classroom building at Bolinas School (part of the bond construction package) with insurance money for Stinson School, unusable since a May arson fire.

Construction of a multi-purpose center at the school — which all the district's 185 students attend this year — and other remodeling and relocation of portable classrooms will have to wait, Horning said, as will land purchase which the bonds would have paid.

Mill Valley Approves School Bond Rate Hike

Mill Valley School District voters yesterday approved raising the interest rate on $760,000 worth of school construction bonds. The vote was 2,825 in favor and 1,079 opposed.

The 72 per cent yes vote (a two-thirds approval was required) means the district now may sell the bonds at up to 7 per cent interest. The old interest rate, set when the voters approved a $3.5 million bond package in 1967, was 5 per cent, but that rate is too low for the current bond market.

Some 3,904 voters cast ballots yesterday out of 13,086 registered voters, a turnout of 29 per cent.

The bond money will be used to construct the 1,200-student middle school being planned for Mill Valley.

Old Adobe Voters Approve Hiking School Tax Ceiling

Voters in Petaluma's Old Adobe School District yesterday approved an increase in the district's general tax rate ceiling and an increase in the allowable interest on previously approved bond issues.

Approximately 35 per cent of the district's 2,235 eligible voters cast ballots.

District secretary Ruby Miller said the measure to raise the maximum general tax rate from $1.90 to $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation was approved by a 497 to 296 margin.

The second ballot measure, to allow the district to pay 7 per cent instead of 5 per cent interest on $875,000 worth of bonds already approved by voters but still unsold, was passed by a 628 to 168 vote, more than the two-thirds majority needed.

One Killed At Scene Of Panther Flush-Out

The dead man was identified as Kenneth Michael Borden, 21, of New Orleans.

A police spokesman said the second gunfight broke out when a group of Negroes tried to firebomb a grocery store owned by Henry Broussard, who also owned the house the Panthers had been using as headquarters.

Four policemen were assigned to watch the store, the spokesman said, and the battle started as soon as the youths appeared.

Police said early today there was heavy sniper fire in the area during the fight, and they were not sure whether the youth was killed by a police bullet or a sniper.

Officers reported earlier, shortly before midnight, that three Negroes had been "wounded by police fire" and a fourth was "lying in the street. We don't know if this person is dead or alive."

The spokesman said police could not reach the man

Nixon Attacks Terrorism On Nation's Campuses

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI)—President Nixon warned Wednesday that colleges risk losing the support of the American people unless they curb the violence of "destructive activists" who terrorize students and faculty.

In some of his toughest remarks so far on radical dissent on campus, the President told a Kansas State University audience of 15,500 that responsible students and faculty must "stand up and be counted."

"Only they can save higher education in America," Nixon said. "It cannot be saved by government.

In a rare visit by the President to a college campus, he said if the problems students complain about—the war and pollution of the environment—were solved, "the moral and spiritual crisis in the universities would still exist."

Nixon spoke in the Kansas State fieldhouse before flying to Chicago for an overnight visit and a series of meetings with news media executives to explain his foreign policy. His speech was part of the Alfred M. Landon lecture series. Landon, who celebrated his 83rd birthday last week, introduced the President.

Dove Candidates Beat Veterans

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Democratic Reps. Philip J. Philbin of Massachusetts and George Fallon of Maryland, each a veteran of more than two decades in the House, lost to antiwar candidates Tuesday in their primary bids for renomination.

However, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., easily survived challenges of Negro antiwar candidates. Another Democratic incumbent, Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, narrowly won renomination in Maryland, where he was strongly opposed by the foes of his efforts to tighten federal gun laws.

Generally, incumbents and big names predominated as primaries were held in Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Oklahoma and Rhode Island.

In Massachusetts, the Rev. Robert F. Drinan, a Jesuit priest advocating immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, pulled a big upset over Philbin who has been in the House 28 years.

Fallon, a 26-year veteran and chairman of the house Public Works Committee, fell to the antiwar campaign of a Maryland state legislator, Paul Sarbanes.

In addition to Tydings and Jackson, two other incumbent Senators easily passed the primary hurdle — Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., who swamped his opponent, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who had no opposition.

SEN. JOSEPH D. TYDINGS
Narrowly renominated

There was little doubt before election day that Humphrey would take the Democratic nomination, but a good showing by black antiwar candidate Earl Craig Jr. would have seriously hurt any future Humphrey effort to be elected President, an election he lost to President Nixon in 1968.

Craig took about 20 per cent of the vote. Most observers had agreed that Humphrey would have been hurt if Craig had taken 30 per cent or more of the vote.

Craig telephoned congratulations to Humphrey late Tuesday, then said he would "have no further comments to make on the election this fall." But he said his statement "should not be interpreted that Earl Craig is dropping out."

Humphrey's opponent in the November election will be Rep. Clark MacGregor who easily won the Republican primary.

Humphrey promised "an active and constructuve campaign."

In Washington, Jackson took about 75 per cent of the vote to defeat black attorney Carl Maxey, a peace candidate. Jackson's vote total apparently was swelled by a heavy crossover of Republican voters who are allowed to vote in the Democratic primary under Washington law.

Maxey declined to say whether he would support Jackson in the general election. He charged Jackson's vote total was swelled by "a group of scared Washington voters," a reference to Jackson's strong military posture in a state largely dependent on a sagging military supply industry.

Jackson's opponent will be State Sen. Charles Elicker who won the GOP primary.

Tydings' narrow victory in Maryland over George P. Mahoney was attributed to strong opposition from gun groups. Tydings has sponsored gun control legislation, but said during the campaign that the National Rifle Association and others had distorted his position in an effort to defeat him.

Tydings will meet Rep. J. Glenn Beall Jr. in the November election.

Massachusetts: Josiah A. Spaulding, who opposed Nixon's war policies, won the right to oppose Kennedy in November. Spaulding won the GOP primary over John J. McCarthy, a backer of Nixon's policies. Boston Mayor Kevin H. White defeated State Senate President Maurice A. Donahue in a tight race for the gubernatorial GOP nomination to face Democratic Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

In Massachusetts' 3rd Congressional District, the Rev. Robert J. Drinan, a Jesuit priest advocating immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, upset hawkish Rep. Philip J. Philbin in the Democratic primary. Drinan now is favored to beat his Republican opponent for the House seat, State Rep. John A. S. McGlennon.

Maryland: Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel won renomination. He will meet C. Stanley Blair, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's former chief of staff. Each had little difficulty winning their contests.

Rhode Island: Attorney General Herbert F. Desimone won the GOP gubernatorial primary to meet Gov. Frank Licht who was unopposed. The Rev. John J. McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest, was unopposed for the GOP Senate nomination to face Pastore.

Oklahoma: David Hall, a former prosecutor, won the Democratic nomination for Governor in a runoff election marked by the lowest voter turnout in the state's history. Hall defeated Bryce Baggett. He will meet Republican Gov. Dewey Bartlett and American Party candidate Reuel Little in the November election.

Minnesota: Wendel Anderson, the Democratic Farmer Labor candidate for governor, was unopposed. Attorney General Douglas Head won the GOP gubernatorial nomination over three opponents.

Reds Tightening Noose On Trapped Cambodian Troops

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Communist troops north of Phnom Penh blew up two more main highway bridges today, tightening their noose on 4,000 Cambodian troops trapped by a surprise counter-offensive. In Saigon, the U. S. Command said 15 more U. S. helicopters had been shot down, 10 in a single battle in the Mekong Delta.

Reinforcements trying to get through to the surrounded eight battalions of Cambodians were halted. The task force at Svay Meas, 49 miles north of Phnom Penh, was blocked to the north by a Communist force which pushed it back early Monday from Tang Kauk.

Since Monday, four bridges have been blown to the south of the force, cutting off supplies and reinforcements.

Villagers fleeing south toward Skoun said Viet Cong were staying off Highway 6, the principal route to the trapped force, which was being patrolled by U. S. planes.

A military officer at Skoun said the force had enough food for a week and "sufficient" ammunition unless the Communists launched a heavy attack. He said the battalions could be supplied indefinitely by parachute drops.

The downing of 10 U. S. helicopters by Communist gunners in the marshlands near the southern tip of South Vietnam was one of the heaviest American helicopter losses in a single action of the Vietnam war, Allied military sources said.

At least two Americans were killed and three wounded, the sources said.

The U. S. Command reported the loss of three helicopters to groundfire elsewhere in South Vietnam and two others over Laos.

The Cambodians were cut off when North Vietnamese and Viet Cong hit behind them as they were stopped outside Tank Kuak on their drive toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 34 miles farther north. The Communists occupied the village of Tapeang Kak, about four miles south of the task force, and began to blow up the bridges.

In Phnom Penh, high command spokesman Maj. Am Rong said "the command is certainly very aware of the danger and every measure has been taken to avoid it (cutting off the troops) happening again." He said "it is not sure" whether the two battalions sent several days ago to help the Cambodian force had arrived at Tang Kauk.

Rong's remark about cutting lines of communication "again" indicated they had been restored, but there was no indication this was so. A UPI correspondent who tried to reach the government unit from Phnom Penh Tuesday reported that fleeing villagers told him not to go any further on the road because there were between 100 and 200 Viet Cong operating around Highway Six behind the task force.

The villagers said the Viet Cong were holding townspeople.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

BART Delays

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit District's administration committee has postponed until Oct. 8 a decision on whether to participate in regional transportation planning.

Director Nollo J. Bianco of Richmond, who asked the delay yesterday said he opposed such action.

BART directors previously had promised that the first rail extensions to the system would be inside the district, in northwestern San Francisco, Pittsburg-Antioch and Livermore-Pleasanton.

Regional planning might endanger that arrangement, he said.

More Losses

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Officials of United California Bank disclosed early today that an audit of United California Bank of Basel AG, Basel, Switzerland, has turned up an additional $10 million in losses, bringing the total to about $40 million.

The executive committee of UCB, Los Angeles, board of directors received the report Tuesday night and authorized management to make up to $40 million available to depositors and creditors of its Basel subsidiary.

The losses, at first reported at some $30 million Sept. 7, were largely due to unauthorized commodity trading, mostly in cocoa.

Call From Nixon

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Nixon telephoned his congratulations to Robert DeNisco, the Brink's guard who foiled a hijacking attempt in San Francisco.

The call came while DeNisco, 34, was in Chicago's O'Hare International Airport Tuesday night en route to New York where he will meet with Brink's officials. Brink's has announced it will give the young air courier a $5,000 reward.

New Peking Envoy

MOSCOW (UPI)—Appointment of Valisi A. Tolstikov as ambassador to China was officially confirmed today and diplomatic sources said he would go to Peking "in the immediate future" to assume the post that has been vacant since 1966.

The 53-year-old Tolstikov, who is first secretary of the Leningrad area Communist party organization, has received Chinese approval, according to Chinese sources in Moscow.

Tolstikov was appointed in July to succeed Vladimir I. Stepakov, who was named to the job in April but was prevented by a heart attack from occupying the Peking embassy.

Terrorists Strike

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine terrorists today commemorated the 15th anniversary of the overthrow of former dictator Juan Domingo Peron by bombing the homes of prominent leaders, business establishments, a newspaper and the British Embassy residence.

Police said a total of 16 bombs exploded in various parts of the city. They mentioned no victims and did not calculate the damage.

One bomb exploded in the Finance Ministry across the street from the Casa Rosada government house. Another went off on the third floor of the newspaper La Nacion that is occupied by The Asscciated Press.

To Attend Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Viet Cong Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh said today she will attend Thursday's Vietnam peace talks, the first time in nine months the four negotiating teams will be headed by their leaders.

Sacramento Votes Against Tax Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—For the second time since June, voters in the Sacramento City Unified School District Tuesday rejected a measure to increase the district's tax rate.

Final semi-official returns show 21,184 votes for the proposal and 25,395 against it, with a majority required for approval. It also was the fifth time in the past 14 years that voters have opposed district requests for more money.

The measure would have raised the $5.18 rate by 98 cents per $100 of assessed property value. It would have provided $4.2 million in additional revenue to restore a number of programs eliminated last year.

Boss Not Needed

BONN (UPI) —Forty-six percent of West German workers questioned in a poll said that although they liked their boss, they thought the company would run as smoothly as ever even if "the old man" disappeared for two years, the Chamber of Industry and Trade reports.

TROUBLE AT THE COUNTY LINE

California Highway Patrol Officer John C. Watts looks over the remains of a moving van load which blocked northbound Highway 101 traffic for two hours today. The van, driven by Clayton Phillip Bell, 22, of San Lorenzo for Carlsen's Moving Co. of Oakland, rolled over and caught fire at 3:30 a.m. Bell was uninjured, but both northbound lanes were blocked until 5:30 a.m., and one until 7 a.m. with smoldering debris. The accident happened exactly on the Sonoma-Marin county line.

Rowdies Booted At Magee's Hearing

By MARY LEYDECKER

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ordered the makeshift courtroom at San Quentin cleared of demonstrators who ignored three warnings and arose shouting "power to the people" as Ruchell Magee was carried into the room.

Judge E. Warren McGuire had warned the 50 spectators that he would not tolerate demonstrations such as the one last Tuesday when Magee first appeared for arraignment on murder and assault charges stemming from the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center.

He said he would either order the courtroom cleared or would hold demonstrators in contempt of court and have them jailed.

Twice again he repeated the warning, once when a lone cry of "power to the people" went out as another convict was brought into court and again, just before Magee, who has refused to walk into court, was hauled in by two guards.

About 35 persons, most young and all white except two blacks, were ushered from the courtroom by plain clothesmen and San Quentin guards.

One young woman went limp and was dragged out by officers, and many shouted out in protest, "we want to see what's going on" and "this should be public," but the room was quickly cleared of the militants.

Magee turned and shouted at the group, "Protest in the street — that's where it's supposed to be done at . . . " after a guard who had put his hand over Magee's mouth removed it.

The demonstrators were not jailed but were marched out through the front gate by about 20 armed San Quentin officers and sheriff's deputies, many of them in riot gear. Some of the militants hung around outside the gate for a while but no further incident took place.

Inside the courtroom, once quiet was restored, the approximately 15 spectators remaining, including newspaper reporters and attorneys, heard Magee again shout lengthy protests to Judge McGuire.

At one point the judge told Magee if he didn't stop yelling, he was going to be gagged. Magee finally was quiet long enough to be arraigned.

The 31-year-old convcit, who is serving a life sentence for kidnapping and robbery, said that "I don't want to be yoked with counsel."

Magee, sole surviving convict of the abortive escape attempt in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons died, is charged under a section of the Penal Code which carries a mandatory death penalty.

A private attorney, Henry Ramsey Jr. of Richmond, who had appeared last week and said he might represent Magee, yesterday said that Magee did not want him as his attorney.

Edward Briggs Jr., deputy public defender, asked that his office not be appointed to represent Magee since members of the staff may be called as witnesses at a trial.

Magee, meanwhile, noisily and angrily insisted on reading parts of a demand that his case be transferred to federal court. Judge McGuire denied the demand.

"Mr. Magee is getting railroaded before he gets to trial," the convict claimed about himself, saying that he has served seven years in prison for a crime he did not commit and blaming his plight on attorneys.

He said that if he can't get a lawyer of his own choice, he wants to act as his own attorney.

Judge McGuire granted Magee a two-week continuance to try to obtain a lawyer through "his people." If the convict is not successful, McGuire will then be faced with making a legal decision as to whether Magee is capable of defending himself.

(Recent high court decisions have made it very unlikely that a person with no legal training would be allowed to act as his own attorney in a capital case.)

After having his legal rights explained and an indictment read to him, Magee left the courtroom with a final shout at Judge McGuire, accusing him of "railroading black people for years."

At least one other of the convicts appearing at yesterday's session in the prison courtroom where routine matters involving San Quentin inmates have been heard since the Aug. 7 shoot-out, was not happy over the makeup of the audience.

An attorney for Mark C. Osuna, facing retrial of the penalty phase of his murder case, described the audience as not looking "Establishment-oriented in general."

Rather than have his client tried in a setting that might provoke what he called a "confrontation game," Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles said that Osuna would waive his right to a public trial.

Osuna agreed with this, but Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said that Osuna's case, scheduled for the week of Oct. 19, would be public.

Osuna has been convicted along with Jack R. Gorman of slaying a San Rafael bartender during a 1965 Labor Day holdup. Both were sentenced to death but this part of the trial will be reheard.

Residents Protest At Ferry Review

greater congestion in the downtown area since there have been more visitors and no decrease in the downtown auto traffic.

Luehring conceded that visitor use of the ferry was heavy during the summer, but he felt that it will now drop off and commuter use will grow.

The service has reduced auto traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge, and the number of visitors arriving in Sausalito by ferry is insignificant compared to the number who arrive there by auto, he said.

The district is operating at the temporary terminal under a six-month permit and indicated in July it would have a north terminal in the Marinship area within about five months from July.

Luehring said last night one of the drawbacks to a Marinship terminal would be a longer running time to San Francisco, 45 minutes as compared to the present 30 minutes from downtown.

Councilman Earl F. Dunphy said the city was "committed for a six-month trial, and I for one am willing to stay for the trial."

Luehring said, "If it isn't helping and if you don't want it, my board will take it out. We're not trying to ram anything down anyone's throat. We're doing everything we can to make it a good thing, not a bad thing."

Councilman Robin Sweeny commented, "I happen to know a lot of satisfied commuters."

The strongest protests came from residents of an apartment at 30 El Portal, adjacent to the temporary terminal, who said the operation has disrupted their peace and privacy.

One woman said persons aboard the ferry "look into my window . . . and it's absolutely horrendous . . . you see people on the boat with binoculars."

William H. McDevitt of 30 El Portal contended: "Rather than reinstitution of a convenient, colorful and nostalgic old service, this operation is simply adding to the rapid conversion of Sausalito from a residential community to a Bay Area 'Coney Island.'"

Police Chief James D. Wright reported he hasn't noticed any decrease in auto traffic entering the city since the ferry started operating, but there has been more pedestrian traffic.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt reported that the bridge district "has given full emphasis to providing maximum service and convenience to noncommuters," and that the feeder service to the boat for commuters "has been sporadic and somewhat unreliable."

Because of the increased number of visitors the downtown has experienced congestion, previously only reached on special occasions such as when the Sausalito Art Festival was downtown.

Councilmen commented about the lack of commuters from the south side of Sausalito using the ferry, and Luehring said efforts would be made to increase patronage from that area.

Gerald J. Skibbins of 30 El Portal drew applause when he said that something had to be done about traffic congestion even if it meant restricting cars from the center of Sausalito.

One commuter backed the ferry boat saying, "I have taken it every day and it seems to be gaining in favor."

Mrs. Sweeny suggested that the city and bridge district staffs compile information about who is ridng the ferry, and then the council would devote a special meeting to the matter.

because of sniper fire. Later, residents of the neighborhood picked up the body and carried it to a police wagon. It was taken to a hospital, then to the morgue.

A resident of the neighborhood said earlier Tuesday the Panthers "just took over and moved in" to the house owned by Broussard.

"It's owned by some people who have a little store down the street," he said. "The people were afraid they'd be burned out if they said anything to anybody."

Police could not confirm whether the four blacks involved in the grocery store shootout were Panthers.

Some of the Panthers arrested earlier Tuesday vowed, "we'll be back tonight," as they were led away.

Twelve men and three women Panthers were arrested Tuesday morning after police exchanged rifle and shotgun fire with them, then flushed them from their sandbag-barricaded headquarters with tear gas.

The new trustees, who will join Trustees Delta Christ, Nathaniel Johnson and Jerry L. Whitcomb, will be seated on the board next week, as soon as the official canvass of votes is completed.

Nearly one-third of Sausalito's 4,969 registered voters — approximately 1,550 persons — cast ballots in the election.

JENNER

The carefully worded resolution passed yesterday cited a directive from the state water resources control board to the north coast regional board requesting it to prohibit waste discharges from the proposed dredging operation until studies of the effect on the aquatic environment could be completed.

Sonoma County Counsel Richard Ramsey estimated the studies would take up to two years to complete.

The supervisors' resolution said continuation of the appeal until the studies were completed would be unreasonable and might, because of procedural requirements, automatically deny the appeal and grant the permit.

The permit denial was made without prejudice to Northern California Aggregates, leaving the door open for the company to file another use permit application at any time.

The handful of persons who witnessed the board's action yesterday contrasted with crowds of up to 500 persons who had attended public hearings on the appeal which began in March.

Conservationists had warned of an ecological disaster if the use permit was granted.

Following action on the appeal yesterday, Petaluma Supervisor George T. DeLong introduced a resolution directing the state to take necessary steps to return the mouth of the Russian River to its natural state.

DeLong said the interference of man has caused the mouth of the river to be periodically closed, causing flooding and interference with fish life and recreational use of the river.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

A statement of the Arab group said the "recent arbitrary measures" taken by Israel in its roundup of Arabs over the weekend in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip added a "new dimension to Israel's policy of terror."

The statement was delivered to Secretary General Thant by Syrian Ambassador George Tomeh, this month's president of the group. It did not mention any link between the arrest of the Arabs and the recent hijacking of planes to a Jordanian desert airfield by Palestinian guerrillas.

The iron shutters of Amman's business houses, glaring white in the desert sun, were rung down as a general strike called by guerrilla sympathizers closed the stores one by one. By afternoon the strike appeared 98 per cent effective.

The new military government pledged to use an "iron first" to stamp out troublemakers who have threatened Hussein's throne and tried nine times to assassinate him. They appealed for a truce with the Palestinians but each side prepared for war.

Guerrillas, clad in checkered burnooses or khaki pants that looked like U.S. Marine hand-me-downs, manned roadblocks at the edge of the city, their leaders lounging with pistols thrust in their hip pockets. A committee of the Arab League was trying to arrange for talks between the two factions but had no immediate success.

The guerrilla armies were in control of the towns of Zerqa and Irbid, north of Amman and guerrillas said they were on "full alert." The Jordanian army with its tanks and superior weaponry also was alerted but the whereabouts of its units were not known.

Prospects for peace dimmed when the guerrilla movement said it did not recognize the military government and would not negotiate with it. They denounced it as Fascist and said Hussein's true nature had been unmasked. And they were unhappy because anti-guerrilla men were named military governors of the provinces.

Hussein tightened the martial law he first imposed on Jordan during the 1967 War—and which was never lifted. He spoke of the Palestinian conspiracy against his government and the division of his country and added: "We cannot allow this state of affairs to continue."

Hussein first fired civilian Premier Abdel Moneim Rifai and replaced him with Brig. Mohammed Daoud, a Palestinian who nonetheless is not popular with the guerrillas. And he named Al-Majali as military governor of Jordan and commander-in-chief.

The guerrilla militia was led by Brig. Abdel Razzak Yahya, who is general commander of the Palestine Liberation Army. Those forces were united under Aarfat who restored the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine to the full guerrilla movement.

The Front was suspended because it hijacked four airliners and blew up three of them on the Jordanian desert and one in Cairo. It still holds 54 hostages in Amman—and it was clear that they would become pawns between the government and the guerrillas if civil war flared.

The guerrilla forces held a few strongpoints in Amman but their main armies were massed in the northern outskirts and at the towns of Zerq and Irbid north of Amman where bitter fighting has flared for a week. A cease-fire reached Tuesday was never effective.

In fighting in June, the two sides were reported to have lost 1,000 men killed or wounded And in addition to his troubles with the guerrillas Hussein also faced revolt among his young officers who want to wipe out the guerrilla movement.

'Bridge' Victim Finally Identified

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The body of a young woman who plunged from the Golden Gate Bridge was identified by a man friend Tuesday as that of Constance Pann, 25, who had been a volunteer at the San Francisco Suicide Center.

Previously Mrs. Louise Reyes had mistakenly identified the body as her daughter, Sandra Stricker, 21, because of the young woman's physical similarity.

Miss Stricker, who had left home, telephoned the coroner's office, correcting that and saying she was working at a YWCA hotel.

Juan Garcia, a psychiatric counselor who identified Miss Pann, said she previously had attempted suicide and felt "overwhelmed by the alienation which exists in this society."

dissidents interrupted the President's remarks with shouted questions and obscenities. Located directly across from the President they unfurled a sign saying "how many more will you kill."

As Nixon listed several recent acts of criminal violence the youths shouted "how about Kent State?" and "how about the ghettos?"

Although their number was small their voice in the fieldhouse enclosure was loud. But the applause of the predominantly friendly crowd drowned out the protesters when the President called for a willingness on the part of dissatisfied youngsters to listen to somebody without trying to shout him down.

Nixon said he was not suggesting students adopt an attitude of dull passive conformity.

"But at the same time," he said, "we must take an uncompromising stand against those who reject the rules of civilized conduct and of respect for others—those who would destroy what is right in our society and whose actions would do nothing to right what is wrong."

He listed four "acts of viciousness" which have occurred in the U. S. within the past five weeks—the courtroom spectator who kidnapped Judge Harold J. Hanley and touched off a gun battle in which four persons, including the judge, were killed, the murder of a police sergeant at his desk, the vandalism of a Nobel Prize winner's research work on cancer, and the patrolman who was killed while responding to a call for help.

Nixon Picks Oct. 11 Pulaski Memorial Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has designated Oct. 11 as Gen. Casimir Pulaski Memorial Day, in honor of the Polish commander who fought with the colonials in the American revolution.

"It is appropriate," Nixon said, "that we commemorate Gen. Pulaski's belief in liberty for which he gave his life in the cause of American independence. In doing so we dedicate ourselves anew to those fundamental ideals of freedom on which this nation was founded

5,000 Will Join Walk For Starving

About 5,000 persons are expected to walk in the 20-mile Marin Walk Against Hunger through several Marin communities Sunday, according to Marin's Walk Committee.

The trek to raise funds for food for needy people will start at Redwood High School in Larkspur at 7 a.m.and will close at the school at 8 p.m.

Walkers must have a sponsor, an individual or business, pledged to pay that walker a certain amount per mile walked.

PROCEEDS SPLIT

Fifteen per cent of the money collected will go to the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, a national organization which promotes walks and had educational and self-help projects in the U.S. and overseas.

Another 42.5 per cent will go to the Marin Economic Opportunity Council's supplementary food program, and 42.5 per cent will go to Meals for Millions, which distributes high-protein food supplement. The proceeds from the walk in Marin will help to equip a multi-purpose food factory in South Korea.

State senatorial candidates, Republican Peter H. Behr and Democrat Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael, are slated to be among the marchers.

Walkers will go through the communities of Larkspur, Greenbrae, Kentfield, Corte Madera, Mill Valley and Tiburon.

CHECKPOINTS

The committee said there will be checkpoints and refreshment stops every few miles along the route, and there will be cars at the stops and along the route to pick up walkers who wish to stop.

Walk cards, needed before a person can join the walk, are available at the Marin Walk Against Hunger headquarters, 882 College Avenue, Kentfield.

The committee said it needs sponsors, people to prepare refreshments at main checkpoints, and money to help pay printing costs and utility bills.

The idea of having walks to raise funds for needy people was developed two years ago by the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, and more than 180 walks have been held since then.

Haight-Ashbury Look On Lincoln Charged

San Rafael planning commissioners last night spent much of their four-hour meeting listening to arguments over gasoline service station proposals, including the city's first self-service station.

The hours were spiced with debate over whether the Fifth, Mission and Lincoln avenues area faces a Haight-Ashbury future.

Real estate broker Marie Rivers warned, "I have seen a dreadful change" in the area, comparing it to the blighted San Francisco neighborhood taken over by hippies. Lewis B. Grissell of Mill Valley agreed, as spokesman for Dr. George S. Fuller of 1116 Lincoln Avenue. He warned that homes in the area are 60 or more years old, and have become hippie communes. "It's difficult to believe the city could be setting up a potential ghetto" there, he said.

The warnings came in support of proposals to change zoning of parcels on Fifth, Mission and Lincoln Avenues to allow a gasoline service station for Mobil Oil Co. and to permit the existing nonconforming Hancock station to become conforming.

Thomas Bardet, Mobil real estate representative from San Mateo, told the commission that his firm wants to raze two 70-year-old houses to substitute a mission-style service station at the northwest corner of Mission and Lincoln. He cited a traffic count of nearly 30,000 cars daily at the intersection, and said the station would replace the one at Fourth and Irwin streets, due to be phased out of operation. He promised that his firm would try to save "the majority" of large old trees at the corner, but City Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner said most of them may be lost in order to widen Mission for a much-needed right-turn lane.

Howard Marcus, who said his brother owns a Lincoln Avenue apartment building opposite the Hancock station, disputed the hippie threat and said there already are three gasoline service stations within one and a half blocks. He urged continuing residential use of the area.

Robert Moore, executive secretary of the Marin Independent Service Stations Association, also objected to the proposed rezonings and stations planned. He claimed that there are 40 such stations already in the downtown San Rafael area.

Moore and other station operators also later objected strongly to Mobil's plans to convert its existing station at 575 Second Street to self-service operation, citing fire hazards and the need of trained station crews to spot possible mechanical hazards in customers' autos.

Hotchner, however, pointed out that he had already ruled that no change was needed in the station permit, to switch to self-service. The matter on last night's agenda was for approval of new signs, replacing the existing advertising at the station. The commission unanimously approved the signs.

The commission set a hearing for Sept. 29 to amend the C-1 zoning to make the existing Hancock station a permitted use, and unanimously asked the city council to rezone parts of the Mission, Fifth and Lincoln area from R-4 to C-2, which would permit the Mobil Station.

Home, School Windows Broken

San Rafael police yesterday reported vandalism to windows in a home and a school classroom.

Adelle Bonnie Spiesberger, 350 Mountain View Avenue, told police a bedroom window was found broken by a pellet gun, and the pellet found in the room, after the family returned from a vacation trip.

Indian Guides To Hold Series

The YMCA Indian Guides will hold a series of "get acquainted" meetings in Marin starting Monday for kindergarten, first and second grade boys and their fathers.

The meetings, all to be held at 7:30 p.m., are scheduled as follows: Monday, Del Mar School, Tiburon; Tuesday, San Clemente School, Corte Madera; Sept. 24, Tamalpais Valley School; Sept. 28, Park School, Mill Valley, and Sept. 29, St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae.

The program is designed to inform those interested in joining about the Indian Guide program.

Recovering From Surprise 'Trip'

ROME, Ga. (UPI)—Three employes of radio station WIYN were recovering today from unsuspected LSD trips—the gift of a listener who wished to express his "appreciation for the programming."

The LSD came in 10 bottles of soft drinks, some of which were consumed Tuesday by newsman Bill Underwood, 22; secretary Nancy Nichols, 20, and program director Windy Miller, 31.

All three were hospitalized in good condition. By late Tuesday night, Underwood and Miller were reported sleeping and Miss Nichols was still "happy."

Decision Is Delayed On Projection-Type Billboard

San Rafael planning commissioners last night blacked cut, at least temporarily, plans to flash advertising matter billboard-style on the walls of a building alongside Highway 101.

Mrs. Oonagh Perdue had sought a use permit to flash the "Mitralux" projector messages on a blank wall at 658 Irwin Street during nighttime hours. She said the messages could include boosts for San Rafael civic projects and other community services as well as "innocuous" advertising. But City Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner and his staff objected that there might be little control over the size and message of the projected signs.

"We only have two billboards in San Rafael now," Hotchner pointed out.

Commissioners first voted down, 3-2, a motion to deny the use permit outright, then unanimously approved a motion to postpone the decision indefinitely pending further staff work with Mrs. Perdue on proposed controls for the permit.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

MOBILE OFFICES — Unanimously adopted a staff recommendation setting a policy of discouraging use of mobile homes as offices, except temporarily under rigid restrictions.

ANIMAL PERMIT APPEALS — Approved amending the commission procedural rules to permit animal permit appeals to be included on the agenda.

SUBDIVISIONS — Unanimously approved splitting one parcel in the 2200 block of Fifth Avenue into lots of 5,207 and 27,793 square feet as requested by the Aldings Co. Also unanimously approved creating three lots instead of the two originally approved on Ridgewood Drive, for owners Andrew Pansini and Joseph Gereghty, despite opposition by neighbors who said building homes on the lots would interfere with their view.

RECREATION VEHICLES — Granted a use permit and approved site improvements and a sign for lessee Robert Greene, on a building and display and storage yard at 924 Jacoby Street, under the Highway 101 overpass, leased from the state Division of Highways.

TRUCK STORAGE — Refused to renew a permit for Balzan milk trucks to be parked temporarily alongside a gasoline service station at Second Street and Lincoln Avenue, after planning staff members said applicant S.E. Balzan had violated conditions of original permit.

FENCE — Granted a use permit for a redwood fence with a wrought iron gate 4.6 feet high on the William Hagans property, 27 Fairwood Court.

ARCHITECTURAL APPROVALS — Approved addition of a paint spray booth by Robert C. Jennings to auto service shops already in use at 228 Bellam Boulevard; a concrete tilt-up building for a National Auto Parts store at 55 Vivian Way; relocation of a projecting sign for the Candy Jar store to 1112 Fourth Street from the store's former site on B Street, and installation of an illuminated sign on the side of the Marin Manor retirement home, 603 D Street, requested by Dr. John Manwaring.

Commissioners Lawrence E. Mulryan and Jorgen V. Lunding were absent.

Marin College To Eye Projects

The Marin Community College District board will consider preliminary plans tomorrow at 8 p.m. for the $168,000 remodeling projects at Olney Hall and the business and chemistry buildings.

The work, slated for 1971-72, will include reconverting class rooms, building laboratory space, and improving heating facilities among other things.

Meeting at Olney Hall, the board will also discuss the proposed campus at Novato, receive a status report on Phase 3-A of the Corte Madera Creek project and continue consideration of a new computer system for the college.

Tam Fire District Awards Contract

A $25,310 contract for remodeling fire station 2 in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District was awarded to a San Francisco firm Monday night by the district board, according to commissioner Byron O. Boulware.

The contract, which includes construction of a dormitory for firemen and an additional truck stall, went to general contractor Carl F. Hartman, Boulware said.

Bench Warrant, Bail Ficker Given 6-1 Odds

A bench warrant with bail set at $6,250 was issued Monday in Marin Superior Court for Floyd Kermit Ware, 19, of San Francisco, when he failed to appear for arraignment on a charge of burglarizing a Kent Woodlands home on July 21.

Ware is also awaiting trial on two earlier burglary charges.

Kentfield Trustees Draft Transfer Policy

The Kentfield School District board has approved drafting of a new policy aimed at limiting interdistrict attendance requests with districts that demand a tuition payment for enrollment of students from other districts.

According to Supt. Anthony G. Bacich, the board's decision Monday will not effect districts which continue to maintain the mutual no tuition agreement.

The action was prompted by recent changes in policy by the Reed and Mill Valley school district which now demand tuition from districts transferring students under the agreement.

"Our board has instituted a policy similar to theirs (Reed and Mill Valley)," Bacich said, "excpeing where mutual interests exist.

The Kentfield School District Board Also:

ASSESSED VALUATION — Heard a report that the official assessed valuation established by the county for the district rose 6.7 per cent this year to about $41 million. Last year's assessed valuation was about $39 million.

OUTDOOR EDUCATION — Referred to the district superintendent for further study, the district's proposed enrollment of fifth and sixth grade students into the outdoor education program located in the Santa Cruz Mountains. The week long program costing $36 per child, the financing to be studied, provides wildlife and conservation education.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Approved four interdistrict attendance requests for students to attend school in the San Rafael and Larkspur school districts.

ATTENDANCE — Heard a report from Bacich that the district enrollment totals 1369 students, down about 31 from the predicted figure.

LOAN — Approved requesting a county loan totalling $700,000 for operation and payrolls until the district's tax revenues become available in December. The loan will then be paid back.

Retired Teachers Take In 32 Members

Thirty-two new members were welcomed into the Retired Teachers' Association of Marin County at its first fall meeting last week at the Shadows in Nicasio. This brings the membership to 234, reported president Dorothy Olsen of Novato.

Hugh Paterson, legislative chairman, reported on his visits to the state legislature in Sacramento in behalf of teacher retirement legislation.

Mini Beats Midi In Auto Safety

NEW YORK (UPI) —A girl wearing a mid-thigh high miniskirt is likely to be a safer driver than one wearing a mid-calf length midi-skirt, according to Graham Gardner, a safety engineer for British Leyland Motors in the U.S.

The mini allows more freedom of leg movement making it possible for a woman to reach the brake pedal in minimum time in an emergency, he explained.

Midi skirts which unbutton to above the knee are probably as safe as minis, says Gardner.

Transfers Of Two Pending County Test

Undisclosed charges against "district personnel" during a closed session of the Marin County Board of Education Monday night were followed by approval of inter district attendance appeals for two Sausalito students.

Transfer was conditioned on their successful qualification for an accelerated learning program, Deputy Supt. Lyle O. Wright reported yesterday.

He said the charges were made by T. Howell Breece of 141 Woodward Avenue, Sausalito, who had appealed denial by the Sausalito School District board of his transfer request in which he claimed the Sausalito district had low academic standards. He had earlier sought to enroll his two sons in the Mill Valley district.

Breece's sons, Timothy, 11, and Theodore, 13, are slated to attend Martin Luther King School but Breece maintains opportunities for enriched educational programs at the school are few, Wright said.

Upon retiring from closed session, the board said it would approve the transfer of the students to the nearest school offering the accelerated classes if the students pass a county administered test, Wright concluded.

Ice Removal

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) —During the 1969-70 winter it cost the Oregon State Highway Division $7.4 million to remove snow and sand icy roads.

Amendment Leads To Veto Of Fishing Bill

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — On the chance that it might interfere with the rights of fishermen, and at the request of its author, Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed Senate Bill 945.

The part of the bill that raised doubts in the minds of the author, Sen Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ventura, and the governor, was a last-minute amendment added by Assemblyman Gene Chappie, R-Cool, chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee.

The amendment would have allowed nonprofit organizations which have dammed and stocked privately owned streams to keep the fishing to themselves.

Chappie said that his amendment was the the purpose of protecting those who had developed previously fishless streams, and that he did not believe it would have any effect on prior fishing rights in other streams.

He added that in view of the doubts raised, the thing to do was "put the bill to sleep" for 1970.

"Senator Lagomarsino has informed me that the amendments added in the closing hours of the Legislature went far beyond his original intent," the governor said.

"As written, the bill might have provided some interference with the right of access to public fishing areas, a situation which Sen. Lagomarsino definitely did not intend in his original drafting of the bill."

Ex-Convict Draws Bench Warrant, Bail

A bench warrant with bail set at $2,500 was issued Monday in Marin Superior Court for Robert Wayne Kitzmiller, 34-year-old ex-convict, when he failed to appear in court for arraignment on four charges stemming from a fracas with a San Rafael woman in July.

Kutzmiller is accused of possessing a shotgun, possessing such a weapon as an ex-convict, brandishing it in a threatening manner and battery against the woman.

Sewage System For Tundra Camp

NEW YORK (UPI) —Problems of waste water disposal reach to the North Slope of Alaska, where exlpoitation of the rich oilfields is under way. In an area where temperatures may dip to minus 65, and alternate thawing and freezing of the tundra have made conventional waster water treatment ineffective, work camps must provide their men with showers, toilets and laundry facilities for their basic needs.

Working with state and federal regulatory agencies, Met-Pro Water Treatment Corp. of Lansdale, Pa. has designed, built and shipped two skid-mounted waste water treatment systems, each with a daily capacity of 24,000 gallons.

Controller Sees Possible Hike In Taxes

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A tax increase is in the cards for Californians if the state's financial condition remains the same, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

The state's fiscal officer told a press conference Monday the ending surplus this year was $150 million less than in the last fiscal year, meaning that at the current rate of expenditures, there will soon be no surplus at all.

Flournoy cited the reasons for the decline as the poor financial condition and rising costs of welfare. He said welfare accounted for 16 per cent of the state's expenditures.

Noting the recent supreme court ruling regarding welfare increases, Flournoy indicated that if the increase were extended to California a tax increase may be necessary even sooner than anticipated.

In a specially prepared report on the current financial condition of California, Flournoy showed that there was a current surplus of $385 million, compared to more than $500 million during the 1968-69 fiscal year.

Flournoy said that passage of the much-debated governor's tax reform program would have made no difference in the current fiscal outlook.

Park Service To Seek Ideas For Point Reyes Plan

Public comment on what should be included in a new master plan for Point Reyes National Seashore will be solicited by the National Park Service in a "pre-planning" meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday in Room 311 of the Marin Civic Center.

Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the service's western region, said the master plan will provide the overall direction for the management and development of the seashore.

The purpose of the public meeting, he said, will be to solicit commetns from the public before the master plan team even begins its work. Later, when a draft plan is available, another public session will be held to get public reaction, he said.

The study team consists of John L. Sansing, superintendent of the seashore; Douglass Nadeau, team captain; Bruce Black, park planner, and Ronald Treabess, interpretive planner, all of the western regional service center in San Francisco.

Expert To Decide On Kennel, Barking Dogs

The operator of the Boyd Veterinary Kennels in Mill Valley and a neighbor, who charged he is kept awake by barking dogs, snapped at each other before the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday afternoon.

Supervisors decided to call in the Marin County Humane Society for an investigation of the legal status of the kennel and suggestions on how the noise from the barking dogs can be reduced.

The kennel, at 209 Morningsun Avenue, is owned by Dr. Henry P. Boyd, and has been operating there since 1923.

Robert F. Barney, who moved into his new home at 207 Morningsun Avenue in July, complained that barking and yelping from the 30 dogs keep him awake most of the night.

Dr. Boyd replied he has been getting telephone calls "from this profane man" several times a night. "It's the phone calls from this man that wakes them (the dogs) up. The constant harrassment from this man in unbearable."

Barney demanded to know what Dr. Boyd meant by "profane man," but chairman John F. McInnis cut off further sniping and referred the whole problem to the Humane Society.

Barney submitted a petition signed by 18 neighbors asking for relief from the barking dogs. At one point, he even played a taped recording of the barking and yelping to back up his point.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

EMERGENCY AMBULANCE — Approved a new set of specifications on which to call for bids for emergency ambulance service and rejected the idea of a negotiated contract. Bay Cities Ambulance Co. now has a contract with the county, with a county guarantee of $14.95 on dry runs (where no patient is picked up) or where the bills are uncollectable.

SOIL TESTS — Approved a $2,000 outlay for Harding, Miller, Lawson and Associates of San Rafael to conduct soil tests at Marin Juvenile Hall in Lucas Valley where ground preparation has started for a 20-unit girls' dormitory.

ZONING CHANGES — Approved amendments in the county zoning code to allow day care centers for six or more children in one-family residential areas with a use permit, and to allow veterinary hospitals in commercial districts instead of only in industrial districts.

KATHARINE BRANSON — Dropped a scheduled hearing on a request by Katharine Branson School to establish a boys' school in Kentfield. School trustees withdrew the application because of strong opposition from residents.

FLEA MARKET — Postponed until Sept. 29 a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of four acres of property just north of H. Koch and Son luggage plant in Corte Madera, where a flea market operates each weekend. Mayor Edward W. Colthurst said both sides in the controversy want the two weeks' continuance.

FREE MARCH — Informed Colleen Fitzhenry of Kentfield that the county has no objection to a 20-mile march which students want to conduct this coming Sunday from Redwood High School, using public streets along Greenbrae, Kentfield, Larkspur, Corte Madera, Mill Valley, and Tiburon Peninsula. Proceeds from the march will be used to provide food for the needy.

MINIFILM FEE — Decided that the county's $2 fee for chest minifilms performed by the county health department should apply to all uniformly. Marin County Employees Association asked for a waiver of the fee, and the director of public social services asked that the fee be waived for foster home families.

Supervisors Back Wornum Drydock Idea

Supervisor Michael Wornum yesterday came up with a new idea on how the huge drydocks can be removed from Richardson Bay: Let the Army engineers do it.

Marin County Board of Supervisors endorsed Wornum's idea with a unanimous vote.

Wornum said he talked to a colonel in the Army Corps of Engineers and learned that there is a provision by which the federal government can remove drift, debris and derelict vessels from harbors and waterways.

Wornum conceded this may take some time. "Even if it takes a year, it would be great if they can remove it."

The county has been trying for three years to remove the four wooden drydocks mired in county waters off Sausalito. Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court last Friday ordered the drydocks demolished or removed, but the cost is expected to be considerable.

The docks were brought to Sausalito by the late Delmar D. Wise and later purchased by the present owner, J. Christopher Roberts of Mill Valley. Roberts wanted to convert the structures into a cultural center.

Traffic Accidents Are 'Very Cruel'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) —Traffic accidents in Johannesburg are becoming just too much for some people and "E.N." of Residensia, a local suburb, wrote off indignantly to the African daily newspaper, The World, about the situation.

"Sir" he wrote, "Here in the (Trans) Vaal, people are being knocked down by buses almost every other day.

"This is very cruel . . ."

NEW MEMBER FOR YOUTH COMMISSION

Howard Hodes, a student at San Rafael High School, was named yesterday to the Marin County Youth Commission by unanimous vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Hodes, who lives at 24 Locksley Lane, San Rafael, will succeed Cathi Prebil, who resigned to attend college.

County supervisors also called for applications by youths from the fourth supervisorial district because Madelyn Angress of Marshall resigned to attend college.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar said interested youth should contact him. His fourth district covers the southern part of San Rafael, most of Larkspur and Corte Madera, San Geronimo Valley and West Marin.

Plea On Opening Doctor's Office Will Be Studied

A request from a Sausalito physician who wants to open an office in Marin City will be considered by the Marin County Housing Authority today at 7:30 p.m. in the Homestead Terrace project, 110 Linden Lane, Mill Valley.

According to Wallce K. Shepherd, acting director of the authority, Dr. William Rothman has asked to lease a one-bedroom unit in the housing project. If the authority acts favorably on his request, Shepherd said it will be forwarded to the housing assistance office in San Francisco for final approval.

There is now no physician with offices in Marin City.

Commissioners will also hear a progress report on recruitment of an executive director at the meeting.

Present Flood Control Channel Route Backed

The Corte Madera Creek flood control channel through Ross will have to follow the present creek alignment as proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers because other proposals, like a bypass, are unfeasible, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

In a motion by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors unanimously adopted a resolution supporting the corps of engineers concrete-lined channel from the Ross Post Office to Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at Winship Avenue near the San Anselmo city limits.

Arrigoni said he had met with officials from San Anselmo, Ross, and the county to review alternative flood control measures presented by engineer Milton Hudis of Santa Rosa, but all were too costly or physically unfeasible.

The flood control phase approved yesterday is the Army Corps of Engineers phase 3-B which calls for a 33-foot wide concrete channel 13 feet deep from the Ross Post Office to Winship Avenue bridge. Supervisors asked the Army Engineers to make every effort to preserve the creek's esthetics.

Arrigoni said this phase does not affect San Anselmo and the Hub City still has latitude in deciding what will go in within its boundaries.

Condition Good After Wreck

A 29-year-old San Rafael teacher was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with severe cuts and broken ribs after his cycle collided with a car at Los Ranchitos and North San Pedro roads in Los Ranchitos at 8 a.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said Charles Schultz, of 14 Pacheco Street, was riding his bicycle south on Los Ranchitos Road when a car driven by Peter G. Johnson, 44, of 51 Circle Road, San Rafael made a left turn in front of him.

The impact threw Schultz, a fifth grade teacher at Oliver R. Hartzell school, over the hood of the car and onto the pavement, officers said.

Guilty Plea In Molesting Case

Ronald Paul Rowell, 23, of Novato, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of molesting several small girls in Novato.

He was told to appear in superior court Monday for setting of a sentencing date on the felony charge.

The offenses took place between December 1969 and March 1970.

To Higher Court On Drug Charges

Richard Arlen Sparrow, 32, of San Quentin Village, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on four felony charges of possessing heroin and methamphetaimine and trying to bring them into the prison.

He is to be arraigned Monday.

Sparrow was arrested last month on a warrant which had been issued following an incident at the prison gate Feb. 14. Guards said he threw a hypodermic kit into the gate office.

Bond Issue Wins

OAKLAND (UPI) — Voters in the New Haven Unified School District yesterday passed a $5.1 million construction bond issue for a new junior high school. The bond issue received a 51.5 per cent majority.

Petaluma Teen In Cycle Wreck

A 17-year-old Petaluma boy was reported in satisfactory condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with injuries suffered when the motorccyle he was riding collided with a car yesterday.

Ditomaso was northbound on Gossage Avenue, north of Magnolia Avenue in Petaluma, at 3 p.m. when a vehicle driven by Elizabeth Stewart, 22, of 1107 Gossage Avenue, who was traveling south on Gossage, turned left into Ditomaso's path and the two collided, the California Highway Patrol reported.

More Relief For Rich Seen In Demo Tax Plan

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, last night said that millionaire Henry Salvatore would have gotten more property tax relief from a Democratic tax revision plan than from the unseccessful plan he authored.

Bagley, speaking at the annual meeting of the Marin County Dental Society at the Meadow Club in Fairfax, also dredged up a hitherto unknown Los Angeles resident whose property taxes would have quadrupled under the Democratic tax plan.

The Republican assemblyman twitted his fellow legislator, Jess Unruh, Democratic nominee for governor, for leading newsmen last week to Salvatore's Bel Aire estate. Unruh's idea was to stress that the Republican tax plan would have benefitted the wealthy. Salvatore is a close friend of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"Jess Unruh's new friend, Henry Salvatore," Bagley said, would have had his taxes cut by some $10,000 under the Democrats' plan, without the balancing provision in the Bagley plan to require him to make up a portion of the reduction by increased state taxes.

"Even more astounding," Bagley said, "the Democratic program would have vastly increased taxes on the very lowest valued homes because the initiative repealed the existing $750 exemption homeowner's exemption.

"For example, Mr. Credie E. Smith of 1507 Kemper Street, Los Angeles, would have had his property taxes quadrupled. Mr. Smith's property taxes on his $3,360 full value home would have skyrocketed from $11.13 to $40.32.

"That is indeed shocking, but I do not intend to disturb the peace and quiet of Mr. Smith's adobe by acosting him at his front door," Bagley said.

"Passing a tax reform package," he concluded, "is like pulling teeth — the phonies scream the loudest."

Fairfax Panel Approves Transfers

The Fairfax School District board last night granted one second grader permission to transfer to the Mill Valley School District, then accepted one from the San Anselmo School District.

Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Pollack of 29 Arroyo Road asked for the transfer of their son, David, because they wanted an open-ended, less structured education than Fairfax offers, according to Gwyneth McGee, the board's executive secretary.

She said Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. King of 51 Scenic Avenue, San Anselmo, wanted their son, Robert Welch, to attend Central School because his baby sitter lives nearby, she said.

The Fairfax School District board also:

MOBILE WALL — Heard a report that a mobile classroom divider at White Hill School will be completed by mid-October.

FIELD — Were told the city would provide men and equipment for installing a sprinkler system and preparing the fields at White Hill School for seeding.

INTRADISTRICT — Referred to staff a request for transfer from Central to Deer Park School of Cynthia Winfred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Winfred of 314 Cypress Drive.

STUDENT TEACHING — Signed an agreement with San Francisco State College for 36 units of practice teaching — enough for eight to 12 sturents — spread over the school year.

BACK TO SCHOOL — Set "Back to School" night for Manor and Deer Park schools on Oct. 13, for White Hill School on Oct. 15 and for Central School on Oct. 29.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Sept. 29 at 7:45 p.m. at the district office.

Los Angeles Rates As Largest U.S. County

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Census Bureau reports Los Angeles County, with a population of 6,970,733, is the nation's largest county.

Cook County, Chicago, was second with 5,430,075; Wayne County, Detroit, third with 2,641,805; and Kings County, Brooklyn, fourth with 2,562,245.

The great redwood forests which line the Pacific Coast do not extend inland more than 35 miles.

Planners Approve 109-Unit Development For Alto Bowl

With a minimum of discussion, the Mill Valley Planning Commission has approved Cal-Fong Investment Corp.'s plans for a 109-unit housing development in Alto Bowl.

Zoning administrator Howard W. McGill said the plans, approved by the commission at its Monday meeting, now must be approved by the city council.

The drawings show 104 garden cottages and five one-family residences on 27.5 acres for a density of 3.96 units per acre. The area presently is zoned for three units per acre.

The new plan would leave 17 acres of the parcel, most of it a broad hillside, in permanent open space. The proposal differs slightly from Cal-Fong's earlier plan, which was the subject of 18 months of hearings before city bodies.

That plan called for 120 units on the 27.5 acres, a density of 4.3 units per acre. The commission approved the proposal, but the city council on July 6 turned it down after a parade of residents complained that the development would pose drainage and traffic problems for Alto Bowl.

Councilmen said they thought the requested density hike, from three to 4.3 units per acre, a difference of 44 per cent, was too high a price to pay for the open space. The current proposal would involve a 32 per cent increase in density.

McGill said a few residents spoke against the project at Monday's meeting, but there was "no great outcry." The real battle is expected to come when the city council considers the plans Monday.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also:

PERMIT — Continued to its Sept. 28 meeting consideration of a use permit to allow Otto H. Schreier to build two apartments within a commercial zone at 469 Miller Avenue.

Campus Bombed In Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)—An explosive tossed onto the porch roof of a University of Colorado building before dawn today caused minor damage as it blew a hole in the roof.

The explosion damaged Mackey Auditorium, a 61-year-old stone building housing offices and classrooms of the Colleges of Music and Journalism.

Nobody was in the building when the blast occurred at 2:18 a.m. Damage, confined to a 12-by-18 hole in the roof, was estimated at between $500 and $1,000.

Pinkerton Picked For Housing Post

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Former Fairfield Mayor Donald H. Pinkerton, unsuccessful Republican candidate for state Senate in the Fourth District, has been named director of the state Department of Housing and Community Development.

Pinkerton, 38, ran for the senate office in the June primary in the three-county district of Marin, Napa and Solano. He came in third, losing the nomination to Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley.

His new post, subject to Senate confirmation, pays $25,000 a year.

Pinkerton succeeds former Santa Rosa Mayor Charles LeManager, who resigned. Pinkerton was appointed as assistant director of the department immediately after the June primary election.

In Congo

KINSHASA (UPI) —A total of 21,637,976 people, including 932,402 foreigners, live in the Congo, an area as big as the eastern half of the United States, according to the latest official census.

New Pet Laws Worry Marin Humane Society

New state laws are expected to add to the headaches of the Marin County Humane Society, executive director Mel L. Morse warned yesterday in his report to the 63rd annual meeting of the society board.

He cited one law which requires that all injured animals brought to the humane center be turned over to veterinarians for decision on treatment or disposal, pointing out that nighttime calls for veterinary service have been costing the society $15 each. Another worry is a pending law which requires at least a deposit on spaying any cat the public obtains through the society. Veterinary charges for the operation are running $45 to $90 each, he warned.

"These costs are very tremendous . . . we are really uptight about the charges, and there is no charity rate for veterinary services," Morse said.

Humane society president Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., in his annual message, told the society that he is concerned over public resentment against the society's pound and animal control operations. Many pet owners fail to realize that it is their own responsibility to prevent unwanted puppies and kittens from be coming problems, he said.

The society unanimousl elected five directors to ne three-year terms: George Black well, Harold S. Elberg, Jac Greene, James Grossi, Mr Carl Riznik and Mrs. Virgini Keating.

An engraved plaque wa presented to the Independen Journal, expressing the socie ty's appreciation for assistanc to humane efforts. Morse note that thousands of owners hav recovered their lost pets afte reading the daily listing found animals the I-J has pul lished for the society for dec ades.

Engineering Span Pact To Be Eyed

A proposed $355,000 contract to engineer repairs and improvements to the Golden Gate Bridge will be considered by the bridge district's building and operating committee at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in toll plaza offices.

Ammann and Whitney, the New York engineering firm that traditionally captures contracts with the district, made the proposal at the invitation of the district after the firm recommended $10.5 million in work over the next decade.

The recommendations were made after a two-year inspection done by the firm for $490,000.

The work includes new suspender ropes, development of new methods to stop corrosion of the bond between the roadway slab and the supporting steel members, and repair of the lateral bracing in the San Francisco approach.

Also on the agenda are a proposal to open the western sidewalk to bicycles from 4:30 p.m. to sunset on Fridays and on days before holidays, progress reports on lighting the towers and roadway, and a proposal for installing wind socks on the bridge.

Also tomorrow, the special committes on suicide prevention will meet at 2 p.m. to seek methods to counter a soaring suicide rate. Twenty-five suicides have been confirmed from the bridge so far this year, compared with a total of 14 throughout 1969.

Powers Pact For Lagoon, Creek Survey

The Novato Flood Control Advisory board Monday night approved a joint powers agreement with the Bel Marin Keys Community Services District for an engineering survey of Bel Marin Keys Lagoon and parts of Novato Creek.

The planned survey will cover Novato Creek from the Petaluma River to Highway 101. The Novato Flood Control Advisory Board also:

ARROYO AVICHI CULVERT — Recommended to the board of supervisors approval of installation of a box culvert on Arroyo Avichi Creek at the Nave Shopping Center as a partial solution to area flooding problems. Supervisors will hold a hearing on the project Sept. 22.

CREEK POLICY — Passed a creek policy resolution delineating drainage areas for which flood control zone No. 1 (Novato) will take primary flood control responsibility.

At 8 p.m. on Monday at the San Rafael home of James Kerwin, 111 Corillo Drive; at 8 p.m. on Tuesday at the Mill Valley home of George Fay, 208 Ricardo Road; at 10:30 a.m. next Wednesday at the Larkspur home of F.J. Buscher, 7 William Avenue, and at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Mill Valley home of Jerome Downs, 6 Hollyhock Court.

Deputy Denial To Be Radio Topic

Marin County supervisors' refusal to allow Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos five more deputies to enable two-man nighttime patrols, will be the topic of tomorrow's radio KTIM "Sounding Board" program at 9 a.m.

Sheriff Mountanos, Supervisor Michael Wornum — one of three supervisors opposed to the extra hirings — and San Anselmo Mayor James Reed plus Greenbrae resident Mrs. Ronald W. Tennler will make up the panel moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer.

Listeners' questions submitted in advance will be answered during the broadcast, which will be recorded for rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

McCarthy Favors Nod On Proposition 18

Proposition 18 on the November general election ballot has been endorsed by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

The proposition, a constitutional amendment proposed by the Legislature, would allow counties to divert 25 per cent of their gas tax revenue toward transit with voter approval.

McCarthy, in his monthly "Capitol Report," said that "a rapid transit line can reportedly carry three times as many people as an eight-lane highway without the resulting air pollution. Rapid transits' efficient use of valuable space is also an important advantage."

He added that while "our state highways must continue to be improved, I am convinced alternate methods of transportation are critical in this age of urbanization."

McCarthy also endorsed Proposition 1, a $250 million bond measure to upgrade sewage treatment plants.

Scene Set For Life-Style Changes

a time when opposition to the Vietnam War was growing, when many young people began to feel despondent about the failure of mass peaceful demonstrations to change American policy. At home, there was a feeling that Bob Dylan's prophecy of "A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall" was coming true.

After she arrived at the University of Michigan in 1966, Diana joined the Children's Community School, a project based on the Summerhill method of education and founded by a group of students the year before. It was there that Diana met Bill Ayers, the son of the chairman of Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago and one of the Weathermen later indicted on bomb conspiracy charges. Ayers probably exercised the single most powerful influence over Diana until her death.

The school, a kindergarten in the basement of the American Friends Committee building, was based on the premise that something had gone wrong with America's schools. Its goals were to create an integrated student body where black and white children would be treated alike.

Diana was loved by the children and, as she had in Guatemala, plunged herself totally into the effort to make the school a sucess.

At the Children's Community School the students spent more time on outings than in the classroom. They visited supermarkets to learn the value of money and when one child asked what a dead person looked like, they all went off to visit a morgue. They had Sunday picnics and a huge party at Christmas, 1967, where the children gave each other presents. Bill gave Diana a long Indian dress and she gave him a pair of leather pants.

Bill and Diana grew closer and eventually began to live together in an attic room near the university. Like most of the men Diana had been attracted to, Bill was charming, manipulative, and a bit cruel. Diana was always at his side and when she went home to Dwight, she talked about him frequently.

In March 1967, Diana's sister, Carol, got her a job offer to work for the crusading, liberal Washington journalist, L. F. Stone, who was looking for an editorial assistant fluent in Spanish. Diana considered it seriously for several months, but finally decided to stay in Ann Arbor with Bill. The relationship deepened and a year later, she and Bill tried to have a child but failed.

The Children's Community School had begun to attract considerable attention by the end of 1967, and had expanded to include first and second grade levels. Ayers, who had become somewhat of a figure in Ann Arbor, ran for the town's school board in April 1968, on a joint ticket with a Negro woman, Joan Adams, the mother of one of the children in the school. Both were defeated.

NEW LOOK EMERGES — As a member of the Jesse James Gang at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Diana Oughton took part in a number of minor demonstrations and protests in the fall of 1968. In keeping with her new life style, she appeared more and more in hippie-type clothing — cutting her hair short and wearing a headband and gold-rimmed glasses. (UPI Telephoto)

Despite its early acclaim, the school began running into severe problems in the spring of 1968. The American Friends Committee complained that the kids were running wild, marking up the walls, and damaging property in their basement.

In June, the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) board in Ann Arbor turned down a request for funds by the school, which had previously been self-supporting. It was a double blow for Bill and Diana because members of the black community in Ann Arbor, including some with children at the school, were among those who argued most heatedly against the grant.

When the school ran into still other problems because of state zoning regulations, Bill and Diana, too disappointed to go on, looked elsewhere for involvement and became more active in the Ann Arbor chapter of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

Ayers had been a member of the SDS Radical Education Project for several years at a time when SDS was still a loosely-organized group of students who believed in experimental schools and community projects as vehicles for change.

In June 1968, they attended an SDS convention in East Lansing where a sharp split was emerging between the Progressive Labor Party (PL) and the cultural revolutionaries who naturally attracted Bill and Diana. PL was a dour, highly disciplined but distinctly old-fashioned Marxist-Leninist party which frowned on marijuana, sexual freedom, long hair and anything else which would offend the American working classes.

After the convention, Diana and Bill spent part of the summer in Chicago working in the SDS national office where they had intense political discussions with Mike Klonsky, an SDS national officer, and Bernardine Dohrn, a later leader of the Weathermen. Diana and Bill became convinced that direct action rather than education and peaceful reform were the way to change society.

Diana was deeply affected by the demonstrations at the Democratic Party Convention that August and what she and the SDS and eventually the Walker Commission felt was a "police riot." At the peak of the violence, she called her sister, Carol, in Chicago for $150 to help bail Tom Hayden, one of the founders of SDS in 1962, out of jail. A day or two later she called again and said she and Bill were leaving the city because "it's getting too rough."

It was also during that summer that Bill and Diana turned full-scale toward the cultural revolution. They developed a taste for "acid" rock at ear-shattering volume. They cut off their hair and began to wear hippy headbands and wire-rimmed glasses. They took LSD, sometimes with another couple. On one occasion one of the group ran out into the street naked but was coaxed back inside before the police came.

They returned to Ann Arbor that fall in an activist mood. At the first meeting of the Ann Arbor SDS on Sept. 24, 1968, a sharp division in the group was apparent. Diana and Bill along with some 40 other radicals banded together against the moderates and formed a faction which they called "The Jesse James Gang."

The gang disrupted SDS meetings and made vicious personal attacks on its opponents. The meetings frequently degenerated into brawls.

Ayers, Diana at his side, spoke against the failure of education to change people and described the gang as "the arms of liberation inside the monster."

"We are tired of tiptoeing up to society and asking for reform. We're ready to kick it in the balls," he told one opponent.

The behind the-scenes leader of the Jesse James Gang was a mysterious, 31-year-old man named Jim Mellen who appeared out of nowhere in Ann Arbor that fall. No one knew where he had gone to school or why he had come to the University of Michigan. Although he was the major intellectual force behind the gang, Mellon carefully avoided any position of formal authority. A rumor began circulating among his critics that Mellon was an agent provocateur sent by the Central Intelligence Agency to destroy the SDS and the radical movement in Michigan.

Ten months later, after helping to write the Weatherman manifesto and playing a part in the June 1969, SDS convention which destroyed the organization, Mellen faded from the An Arbor radical scene as mysteriously as he had arrived.

Within a period of a few weeks the Jesse James Gang triumphed within the SDS chapter at Ann Arbor. Early in October 1968, the moderates decided they had had enough and walked out to form their own group. Through psychological warfare and vague threats of violence, the gang had captured the single most important SDS chapter in Michigan, which automatically gave them a powerful voice in the national organization.

The gang carried out few actions, but when they did the entire University of Michigan campus generally knew about them. On one occasion they held a demonstration outside a campus building while the university's president, Robben Fleming, was giving a speech inside. Armed with a portable public address system, records and loaves of bread they attracted a crowd. Diana spoke during the demonstration while other gang members handed out slices of bread, shouting, "Here's the bread. Get the baloney inside."

Ayers rise to a position of strength within the gang was because of his ability to dominate groups through a combination of charm and the volume of his voice. Handsome and brash, he was a notorious lady's man who did not hide his promiscuity from Diana.

Diana told friends that although she was hurt by Bill's infidelity, it made her redouble her efforts to be a true revolutionary.

In November 1968, Diana became a regional organizer for the SDS in Michigan, not fully aware that the appointment was an attempt by national SDS to head off criticism by the just-born women's liberation movement that SDS was "male chauvinist." Diana's status as a token woman brought her into conflict with other women radicals, but she eventually earned acceptance as a genuine liberationist.

Early in 1969 she organized a "Cuba month" on campus, a series of films and seminars on the Cuban revolution. Gradually she became known less as Bill Ayers' sidekick than as a radical "sister" in her own right.

Diana's upbringing made her an asset to the movement. Naturally gracious and tactful, she was used as a negotiator in disputes with other left groups, and with the university administration.

As Diana deepened in her political commitment her relationship to her father, which had always been close began to break down.

During December 1968, Bill and Diana both began to emerge as leaders in the national SDS at a conference held in Ann Arbor. At about the same time, on Dec. 9, 1968, she wrote in one of her last letters home:

"It gets harder and I get more reluctant to justify myself over and over again to you . . . I feel as if I've gone through a process of conscious choice and that I've thought about it a lot and people I admire agree with me, educationally important, recognized and respected people . . ."

In October 1968, Diana and Kathy Boudin, believed to have been one of the two girls who ran from the house after the bomb explosion which killed Diana, went to dinner at the Chicago apartment of an old college friend of Diana's, Karin Rosenberg.

The pair was astonished at the "bourgeois middle-class" way in which Karin and her husband, Merrill, lived. "The only people I know who live like this are friends of my parents," said Kathy.

During dinner Diana got into a long, heated argument about politics with Merrill, a liberal who said he agreed with some of SDS's goals but not with its methods.

(Next: The Weathermen and violence — "It's the only way, mummy.")

DIANA'S GREAT INFLUENCE — Bill Ayers, with microphone in hand, has been described as Diana Oughton's greatest influence during her change into a revolutionary. As one of the leaders of the Jesse James Gang, he was responsible in driving the moderates out of the Ann Arbor, Mich., Society of a Democratic Society chapter. The picture was taken in November 1968 as Ayers addressed a rally across the street from the police station in protest of alleged mistreatment of a University of Michigan student. (UPI Telephoto)

Rec Group Endorses Saving Mound

The Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission has endorsed an effort by the Miwok Indians Preservation Center to have an Indian mound at Miller Creek School declared a national monument and historical site, according to recreation director William A. Gordon.

The Miwok committee was formed to save the Indian mound being excavated by a San Francisco State archaeology student from destruction by vandals. Federal action would accomplish that end, Gordon said.

The park and recreation commission on Monday also approved the fall list of activities and decided the swimming pool will be open to the public from 4:30 to 6 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday through November, Gordon said.

Events approved were a luau for adults featuring a polynesian dance group from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Oct. 17 and a similar event for teen-agers on Oct. 23 from 7:30 to 9 p.m., both events at the recreation center; and a trip to a University of California football game by chartered bus Sept. 26, Gordon said.

New Weed Laws Start In Ohio

COLUMBUS (UPI)—A law making possession of marijuana a misdemeanor instead of a felony on the first offense went into effect today.

The change, enacted by the Ohio legislature in June, reduces maximum penalties for first-time marijuana offenders to a $1,000 fine or a jail sentence of one year, compared with the former maximum penalties of $15,000 fine and 15 years in prison.

In other changes in the state's new omnibus drug law, marijuana is reclassified as a hallucinogen. Penalties for drug pushers are stiffened, and educational programs on drug abuse are to be instituted in Ohio schools.

Prison Sentence In Police Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Michael Webster, 20, who was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the slaying of a policeman, was sentenced Tuesday to from one to 15 years in prison.

Judge Walter F. Calcagno in Superior Court also ruled Webster would not be eligible for a probation hearing for six months.

Webster and Vincent Fredericks, 30, were convicted in the killing of patrolman Eric Zelms, 22, who was shot New Year's Eve while investigating a burglary in San Francisco's Tenderloin.

Fredericks, convicted of the same crime, is to be sentenced Friday.

Alameda Approves Two-Man Patrols

OAKLAND (UPI)—Two-man night patrol car units for the sheriff's department have been authorized for Alameda County's unincorporated southern section.

The county Board of Supervisors on Tuesday also approved a two-bailiff system for Superior Court's six criminal departments.

Hiring the necessary 22 deputies will cost $243,000 from the remainder of fiscal 1970-71.

Supervisors also approved an alarm system from the criminal courts to the sheriff's office as a guard against outbreaks or demonstrations.

Guards Permitted Loaded Guns

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill permitting security guards and private investigators to carry loaded guns was signed Tuesday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Assemblyman Don Mulford, R-Piedmont, the bill's author, previously said state law permits operators of private security services to carry loaded guns in public but doesn't specifically cover their employees.

tA a committee hearing on the measure, a spokesman for the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards testified there are about 15,000 such armed guards in California who are technically breaking the law.

MARIN'S NEWEST

A U.S. Citizen Via Japan With A Portuguese Heritage

A Portuguese citizen who has never set foot in the land of his ancestors, but spent five years under house arrest in his native Japan as a possible American spy, is now an American citizen.

Guilherme Alberto Da Silva, 66, of Mill Valley was naturalized in U.S. District Court in San Francisco last month.

Born in Yokohama, Japan, his father was a Portuguese clerk employed by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, Da Silva lived in Japan and Korea for 60 years before moving to 35-B Lomita Drive in 1964.

Da Silva lived with his family in Yokohama until 1923 when an earthquake destroyed all their possessions and he moved to Kobi, Japan.

An accountant, he worked for Pond Products Refining Co. of New York in Kobi until 1973 and in Pyongyang, Korea, until the Japanese closed the area in 1940.

Intending to emigrate to Brazil, Da Silva said he returned to Japan instead and took another accounting job. However, he was arrested the day fighting erupted. "I didn't even know the was was on when I was accosted by the gendarmes as a spy."

Kept in solitary confinement for two months, he said he was sent to the Japanese city of Gora under house arrest after refusing to admit he was a spy.

Freedom didn't come until Aug. 15, 1945, when American troops had taken over Japan. While working as official guide for General Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, Da Silva said, he became bored and in 1946 returned to Korea as a film distributor.

Missing his wife and children, who were living in Yokohama, he resigned in 1948 and went to work for United States Lines in Yokohama as an accountant until his retirement in 1964.

Da Silva, who attended a college in Japan run by American priests, sent his five children to American universities and they all settled in Northern California.

Mill Valley was a logical place to reitre to, he said, because his daughter and a son also live there. His three other sons live in Petaluma, Palos Verdes and Saratoga.

His wife, Marie Josephine, became a citizen more rapidly than he did although they filed at the same time.

Not until after his wife became a citizen in May did he learn that his naturalization papers were lost — poor treatment for a man who lived five years under guard as a suspected American spy.

Other Marin and Southern Sonoma residents naturalized last month are:

Christopher In Reagan Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— George Christopher, former San Francisco mayor, accepted appointment to Gov. Ronald Reagan's advisory committee Tuesday and joined the re-election campaign of his onetime political rival.

Christopher, who will be the commitee's vice chairman, told a news conference he opposed the tactics of Jess Unruh, the Democratic Party gubernatorial candidate.

Unruh confronted Reagan supporter Henry Salvatori at Salvatori's Beverly Hills home and Christopher declared, "It was personally repugnant to me."

75 Per Cent Fresh Water In Icecaps

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) —Less than one-tenth of one per cent of the earth's water is available for human needs and about 75 per cent of all fresh water is frozen in the polar icecaps of the Arctic and Antarctic, according to a water company executive.

Americans use more than 400 billion gallons of tap water daily which is 57 per cent of all that is available, says John G. Scott, president of the Mountain Valley Water Co. In about a quarter of a century, however, the nation may need 900 billion gallons daily, more than today's total supply.

Lagunitas School Reading Plan Funds Cut—Part Of State Pinch

Lagunitas School District trustees have been informed that the school's Miller-Unruh reading program funds had been cut by 25 per cent — or $2,500 — as part of the statewide pinch in such remedial reading funds.

Dist. Supt. Joseph Amato said he received a letter Monday, from the state Department of Education advising that all districts were being cut by one fourth because the department's $24 million special reading program request had been granted only $16 million in the state budget.

No action was taken by the district board Monday night.

Amato said the district employs the minimum allowed of one special reading teacher, and the cut "puts us in a bind."

The board approved Amato's recommendation to eliminate shortened "rainy day" sessions which had caused confusion with the district bus drivers and students' parents. Amato reported first-day attendance for the new year was 481 pupils.

Trustees decided not to appeal the Marin Superior Court order that teacher Richard Plant be rehired to the eighth grade classroom post from which he once resigned and then reconsidered. Amato said Plant has participated in all normal teacher activities since school started.

Mrs. Frances George was hired half-time as a counselor at $4,050 per year and College of Marin use of Lagunitas School classrooms for adult art classes was approved.

The nation's first state game refuge was established in 1869 at Lake Merritt, now located near the center of Oakland, Calif.

'Fun And Games' History Covered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Visitors to a new exhibition called "Fun and Games" at Fifth Avenue's Hallmark Gallery can join the fun by playing games on outsize versions of chess, checkers, backgammon, ticktacktoe and solitaire.

For kids, there are marbles, jacks, tiddlywinks, hopscotch, dominoes, beanbag toss and other amusements.

The exhibit covers the history of games and pastimes. Also on view are American Indian playing cards made of rawhide, the first Monopoly set and a priceless antique French chess game with figures of solid gold and silver.

Tasty, Nutritious Lentil Dish

Lentils are listed in the recommended "Daily Food Guide" as alternates in the meat group, with their contribution to the diet of protein, minerals and iron needed for growth and repair of body tissues — muscle, organs, blood, skin, hair. Because of these qualities, they have become a popular and basic food requirement for growing children and for adults the world over.

HONEYED BAKED LENTILS
(For 12 hearty servings, each a rounded half cup)

Pre-cooked Lentils

1 pound (2 and ⅓ cups) lentils, washed
1 small bay leaf
5 cups water
2 teaspoons salt

Combine in a Dutch oven or in top-of-the-range heat-proof cooking ware. Bring water to boiling point. Cover tightly. Simmer 30 minutes. Do not drain.

For Baked Lentils

1 teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon powdered ginger
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ cup chopped onions
1 cup water
6 slices of bacon
½ cup honey

Mix together the mustard, ginger and soy sauce. Add onions and water. Stir into precooked lentils. Cut bacon in 1-inch pieces. Stir most of the bacon into lentils, with remainder sprinkled over top if pot has narrow-mouth. If a casserole is used, sprinkle most of the bacon over the top. Pour honey over all. Cover tightly. Bake for 1 hour in 350-degree moderate oven. Uncover last few minutes to brown the bacon. Bacon may be partially cooked if desired.

To serve

This is good eating served with brown bread, cole slaw, fresh fruit and cookies. Unusual and great for buffet service is to set out chilled bowls of crisp lettuce and green onions, a basket or plate of sliced hot brown bread and the piping-hot baked lentils. Fill your honey jar with bread and butter pickles. Have nearby an assortment of soft nippy cheeses and summer sausage, sliced or not. A snack-rack with the cheeses, meats and a knife hanging from the rack over the attached cutting board encourages a do-it-yourself project like topping the arranged lettuce leaf, brown bread, Honeyed Lentils on very hot plates, with thin slices of the cheese and meat to give a pizza-like top. The green onions and the chilled bread-and-butter pickles are good accompaniments.

Variations

1. With Chutney: use ¼ cup finely chopped chutney instead of the soy sauce and ginger. Use bacon and honey as directed in first recipe.

2. Barbecued Lentils: to precooked lentils, stir in a mixture of ½ cup catsup, ¼ cup molasses, 2 tablespoons brown sugar. 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons minced onion. Use bacon as in Honeyed Baked Lentils but omit the honey.

Made Yesterday: these baked lentil dishes may be put together the day before and refrigerated. To cook, allow about 15 minutes more because of chilled utensil and ingredients.

IF YOU ARE not acquainted with Lentils, one of the dry vegetable family, a pot or casserole of Honeyed Baked Lentils will assure a lasting friendship. One way to enjoy this economical, nutritious main course dish is to serve the lentils atop slices of hot brown bread with a frill of crisp lettuce, a garnish of bread and butter pickles and green onions.

Making Lunch Box Meals Can Be An Interesting Challenge

School has started, and again it is time to think about nutritionally balanced and appetite-stimulating lunches.

The school lunch should be planned to supply one third of the daily nutritional requirements, according to Dairy Council of California nutritionists. The lunch should also include variety, interesting flavor and colorful foods. Well wrapped foods will keep all of their freshness and flavor.

The family member who makes the lunch can accept the challenge of making the meal time away from home a new adventure each day by following these rules for lunch meal making.

Add surprise treats such as dried fruits, nuts, carrot and celery sticks, radishes, cherry tomatoes, pickles, ripe or green olives, cheese strips or cubes, or when time allows, cut cut shapes from cheese with cookie cutters.

To plan your sandwich making remember these facts about sliced breads — enriched white or wheat. One pound loaves of bread average 16 slices; one and one quarter pound loaves average 19 slices and one and a half pound loaves average 24 slices.

When buying bread, read the label carefully to be sure it is enriched to provide your family with additional nutrients. This means extra food value for your money.

Add variety to lunch bags by planning ahead to vary the kind of sandwich filling from day to day.

Desserts that freeze, pack and carry well in the lunch bag are simple unfrosted sweets such as spice, chocolate, applesauce and pound cake. Prune, date or nut breads carry well, and cup cakes, double crust pies and turnovers are always welcome. Drop, filled or refrigerator cookies can be a pleasing treat. Desserts not suitable for the lunch bag are cream pies, sticky-frosted cakes, custards and meringue cookies.

Put frozen berries in a tightly covered container. By the time they are eaten, they will be defrosted but cool and flavor-fresh.

Stuff pitted prunes with cubes of mild cheese, marshmallows or nuts.

There are a variety of wrapping materials to use when making lunches. Use the one that suits your budget. Pick from plastic bags and wrap, aluminum foil, waxed bags and paper and moisture-vapor proof papers for freezing sandwiches.

To correctly wrap a sandwich, place the sandwich in the center of the paper. Bring opposite ends together and fold over and over until flat on the sandwich. Tuck under open ends.

Ways To Vary The Ever Popular And Nutritious Peanut Butter Sandwich

One of the first sandwiches a child learns to ask for or make himself is a peanut butter sandwich. Adults never cease to be amazed by the fact that children will consume stacks of peanut butter sandwiches day in and day out and love every minute of it. But mothers, take heart in this phenomenon because peanut butter is an excellent source of protein and provides children with energy as well.

Homemakers in the 1890s had a bit of a chore on their hands though, when they had to prepare the peanut butter themselves. First the peanuts were put into a roaster. The roaster was placed on the top of the old wood or coal burning stoves and then the drum was turned constantly during the roasting process to avoid scorching the nuts. After roasting, the peanuts had to be skinned and then churned into butter.

For variety in the children's sandwiches, try some of these recipes that incorporate bacon and apples. Or, now that apples are plentiful, try making a sandwich with whole apples, and peanut butter and cream cheese as the spread.

CHEESE 'N APPLE PANWICHES
(Makes 4 servings)

⅓ cup smooth peanut butter
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 slices rye or white bread
Thinly sliced apple
Lemon juice
2 slices processed American cheese, cut in strips

Combine peanut butter and mayonnaise. Spread on bread slices. Dip apple slices in lemon juice. Drain. Alternate apple and cheese on peanut butter. Broil 3 inches from source of heat for 2 minutes, or until cheese is melted and lightly browned.

Here are more delectable dishes which the entire family will enjoy:

PEANUT BUTTER FRUIT SANDWICHES
(Makes 8 servings)

1 cup smooth peanut butter
¼ cup soft cream cheese
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅓ cup orange juice
4 medium apples
4 medium pears

Blend all ingredients together except fruit. Slice fruit in half; spread peanut butter filling on each; hold 2 halves together with wooden skewers. Remaining mixture may be piped around fruit; using pastry tube. Chill before serving.

PEANUT BUTTER BACON PANWICHES
(Makes 4 sandwiches)

8 slices sandwich bread, crusts trimmed
½ cup smooth peanut butter
6 crisp bacon slices, crumbled
Butter for grilling

Spread 4 slices bread with peanut butter; top with crumbled bacon and remaining bread slices. Grill in butter on both sides, in covered skillet until bread is golden brown.

RECORD BILLIONS

Education Costs Rise While Enrollment May Be Declining

By GAY PAULEY

(UPI) — The cost of education USA will soar to new record billions for the 1970-71, school year, while enrollment at some stages will level off or even decline.

The U.S. Office of Education estimated at $73.6 billion the total outlay for the 1970-71 school year for elementary, secondary and higher education for both public and nonpublic schools. The total compares with an estimated $69.5 billion for the 1969-70 school year.

The largest group of students answering the September 1970 school bell are the kindergarten through the eighth grade of regular public school, some 32.24 million of them. USOE said the figure was about the same as last year's.

THE NEXT largest is the ninth through 12th grade public schools, with 13.33 million, up from last year's 12.93 million.

Enrollment in regular public colleges is expected to be up slightly for 1970-71, with 5.6 million enrollees. Last year's was 5.4 million.

USOE breaks down other enrollments this way:

Private schools, grades kindergarten through eighth grade, 4.17 million, compared with last year's 4.27 million.

Private schools grades nine through 12, this year, 1.36 million, the same as last year.

Private colleges, 2 million for the coming year, up from last year's 1.9 million.

The number of teachers in regular elementary public schools is estimated at 1.115 million for the coming year, compared with last year's 1.108 million.

SOME 146,030 teachers will staff nonpublic elementary schools this year, 934,000 the public secondary, and 80,000 the nonpublic secondary.

At the higher education level, this year's estimate is 394,000 teachers in public colleges and 199,000 in nonpublic.

The teacher shortage that has plagued the education system the past several years now is ended, except in some areas reports the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

To help the states meet shortages at certain grade levels and in special fields, HEW has awarded more than $15 million in grants under the Education Professions Development act.

Shortages are largely in the vocational-technical and early childhood education fields, said Don Davies, of HEW, and in education for the mentally and physically handicapped.

MEANWHILE, THE National Education Association, representing the bulk of the nation's teachers, is decrying the taxpayers' reluctance to spend more and more on education. During calendar year 1969, it said, voters "said thumbs down" in school bond issues totalling $2.3 billion, while approving "only" $1.8 billion.

NEA says the nation's educational system is "starving."

"Many schools are in crisis, evidence by decay, neglect and continuing deterioration," says NEA. One of the problems is the Indochina war, it continues.

"With skyrocketing defense costs straining the federal budget to the limit, there isn't enough money left over for education and other social needs."

"Unless there is a reordering of priorities at the federal level of government," warns NEA, "the situation will become increasingly chaotic. Teacher strikes and school closings will multiply . . ."

NEA cites some statistics to cite its complaints of imbalance of spending. The defense budget for the current year will be $82 billion, up from $48.6 billion in 1963. The U.S. will spend $4.4 billion on education, with the rest coming from state and local sources.

LAST YEAR, the per capita cost of defense was $399, while only $26 per capita of the federal tax bill went for education.

"The $82 billion for defense is just about equal to all of the money spent throughout the nation to build new homes, apartments, factories, warehouses, shopping centers, motels, schools, bridges and highways," it says.

NEA figures that the bill for the antiballistic missile system — $12 billion — could pay for almost one-third of the basic cost of public education.

The cost of one atomic submarine, at $158 million, could buy a nutritious lunch every day for 1,416,111 school children for one year, it continues. And the cost of producing the F-111 which, notes Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., "after years of testing continues to lose its wings," was greater than last year's entire budget of the Office of Education, $4 billion.

Knitted Wools In The Male Wardrobe

NEW YORK (UPI) —It had to come—this boom in men's knitwear, because men (more than women) have always put comfort in top priority.

The collections this year reveal the expanded perspective of knitted wools in the male wardrobe with styles ranging from suits in sweater knits, handsomely tailored double knits, jumpsuits, coats, blazers, slacks, to the new "shrinks," body shirts and deep brushed mohair "whisker" sports sweaters.

By the turn of the century, knits will dominate men's fashions and may well be the only fabric that survives.

The knitted wool tailored suit has finally come to full practical realization. Designers have taken advantage of wool's resilient richness to create tailored suits with superb comfort and distinction. These suits move away from formality with a no-sleeve jacket, called the "Free Suit" or the "Shirt Suit," and the sweater-suit takes still another step toward casual ease with its sweater-knit texture. One of these new easygoing suits combines ribbed wool pants with a jacket in spaced ribs by Himalaya. Double-knit wools are giving a new fashion punch to the separate pants category, appearing in an explosion of lively patterns, including art deco, stripings and imaginative scrolls.

In sweaters, the body-fit is the new signal, manifested in shrunken-looking styles that appear like miniatures in the hand, but the accordion-stretch of the flexible wool ribs give them a free-motion, body conforming fit. These waist-length "Shrink-Fits" may be tank-top style, long-sleeved, with deep U-necks, often with fishtail ribs that hug the waist.

Sleeves are narrowed, with small armholes, sometimes with deep ribbing from waist to elbow emphasizing the snugness. Style by Alps comes in a tweedy orange and yellow waffle knit, sleeveless tank-top, and by Robert Bruce in a Fair Isle jacquard. The trend toward the lean fit is a strong one that also appears in Western sweater shirts, cartoon pullovers, and original tie-dyes like the links-stitch wool by Pendleton.

Belts are part and parcel of sweater-wearing, as knitted self-belts or as individualistic accessories, worn single, double or triple to emphasize the short, close-fitting pullovers. The self-belts bring the Norfolk jacket into prominence, and define the line of the longer pullovers and vests. One of the most popular in strong ribs carries the Puritan label.

Whiskery wool sweaters are in, complementing the trend to more face and head foliage. In deep brushed mohair-and-wool or all-wool, these have a new furry texture of great richness that gives a flow of dimension to patterns such as argyles, stripes, and blanket plaids. Belted vest style by Lord Jeff deserves special merit because the mohair is brushed to a texture as soft as mink.

The poncho has evolved into a full-fledged trend. Its fringe benefits have been adapted in fishtail pullovers, and tank tops, bordered with wool fringe varying from a foot long to just a couple of inches. The matching sports sweater scarf is very much on the scene, long and leaner, with fringe accentuating its length. Spirited designs include jacquard Indian head isolated on the front of a pullover, an all-over design of the peace symbol, Navajo blanket patterns, and colorful patchwork. Color follows through on the young inclination with a lively range of purples, pinks, copper, blue and green.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists of three major food companies disclosed plans to nutritionalyy fortify foods ranging from milk to potato chips.

They gave credit to consumer and government pressure for overcoming indifference to the idea by their sales departments.

Appearing at the International Congress of Food Service and Technology, Dr. G. Robert DiMarco, chairman of the Department of Food Science at Rutgers University, said there had been "a phenomenal awakening (food) industry awareness about nutrition." He and food industry research executives discussed the subject at a news conference.

Dr. Hartley Howard, technical director of Borden Inc., New York, said his company is test-marketing milk fortified with iron and developing fortified potato and corn chips.

Dr. Howard Bauman, vice president of science and technology for Pillsbury Co., Minneapolis, said his firm now fortifies flour in cake mixes. So did Varnum D. Ludington, vice president and director of the center for applied nutrition of General Foods Corp., White Plains, N.Y.

Ludington said General Foods also had added Vitamin C to its soft drink mix, and also is fortifying instant potatoes.

The scientists said their marketing departments used to shrug off nutritional suggestions. But they agreed that consumer groups and the government had awakened a nationwide interest in nutrition.

Palo Alto Computer Talks To Kids And Drills Them In Math

PALO ALTO, (UPI) — A new generation of elementary school students is taking computers in stride.

At Willow School in East Palo Alto, six- and seven-year-old youngsters are so enthusiastic about computers used for teaching mathematics that the biggest problem is getting them to leave when the period ends.

"As soon as classes are dismissed at the end of the day, the kids come back to use the computer," Ronald Weaver, principal at Willow said.

The Ravenswood City School District, in which "CAI" — computer assisted instruction — has been used for more than five years, has had more experience in the field than any other school system.

"At first," says Bill Rybensky, director of the program, "some of the younger students were concerned about the 'lady in the box', but we explained what was really happening."

A new low-price CSI system has been installed at Willow School this year. It is a computer education set-up developed by Hewlett-Packard Co. It costs less than $150,000, a price within range of many school districts.

"Results are what count in this business," says Rybensky. Tests are now being conducted to see whether the computer can really teach children.

Willow School has 32 teletype terminals in its computer lab. Students from the first six grades use the computer for mathematics drill and practice about 10 minutes a day, with each pupil progressing at his own rate.

A typical lesson begins like this:

Computer: "What is your ID number and first name?"

Pupil: "12345 Jimmy."

Computer: "Is your last name Schmidt?"

Pupil: "Yes."

Computer : "Hello, Jimmy. We hope you enjoy today's problems. Here we go."

What follows is a fascinating 10-minute exchange between Jimmy and the computer, which stands in a room adjacent to the lab where the teletypes are located.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

Check Crisper

When buying a refrigerator check the capacity of the crisper. It's usually stated in quarts. Also determine if the crisper is deep and long enough to hold the vegetables you purchase most often. Some crispers have a humidity seal to hold moisture which does the best job in assuring freshness of vegetables.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Driving Habits Of Parking Lot Attendents Irks Pedestrian

DEAR HELEN:

I think something should be done about the driving habits of parking lot and public garage attendants.

I work in a mid-town Manhattan building which houses a garage. I must pass the entrance going to and from lunch. Yesterday I luckily stopped just in time when I saw a car whizzing out of the garage. On the way back from lunch this same attendant barely missed me, and when he saw my grimace, he motioned me on with "What's the matter, lady?"

I asked a man who looked like the dispatcher why these people couldn't be more careful and at least beep their horns.

"The customers want cars fast. It's the nature of the business," was his inane reply.

"Never mind the customers," said I. "Think about the pedestrians. You don't want bodies all over the place, do you?"

I'm sure other big city residents have the same experience over and over again.

Outside of getting run down so we can sue, what can we do? — ELEANOR

DEAR ELEANOR:

In my city (Sacramento) a letter of complaint to the garage owner would give attendants pause — and you the right of way. But in Fun City where it's every driver for himself and the devil take the pedestrian (or anything else in his path), well, I'd still write that letter, but I'd also proceed with extreme caution. Good luck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

How do you tactfully and gracefully break up a party when the hour gets late. — YAWNING

DEAR YAWNING:

Adults usually start getting the message when you turn lights off here and there. To close down a teen party, try turning the lights on. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This guy I know is hooked on this "Let's Touch" therapy. He goes to extremes. Now he's insisting that you're only "sincere" when you look eyeball to eyeball with the person you're talking to, and he bellies up to me and breathes in my face while patting me on the arm and elsewhere.

He spouts about searching for the soul through the eyes, and tells me I look away and back off because I've got something to hide. — WHO'S RIGHT?

DEAR WHO:

He sounds a little strange to me. Maybe you should hide something from him — like yourself. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

About the baby sitter who said five out of ten of her male employers were flirts: We solve this problem by insisting that the wife bring our daughter home from her babysitting jobs.

It's really safer in several ways, as the woman usually isn't drunk when she comes home from a party, but the man is often not safe behind the wheel, liquorwise or pass-wise. — MRS. J. B.

Neglected Dandruff Leads To Infection

Although dandruff is considered more of an unsightly nuisance than a disease by many persons, when neglected, it can lead to a scaling scalp infection, inflammation of the eyelids or an ear infection.

According to an article for pharmacists treatment for dandruff can be as simple as washing hair and scalp. However, an effective dandruff shampoo should be substituted for a plain one.

"A problem with many is that they do not maintain treatment," the article notes. Habitual use of the shampoo is necessary to control the condition.

A dermatologist may prescribe special therapy for stubborn cases. But, for the usual case, "a pleasant shampoo containing the proven-effective sulfur and other medications will give the continuous control needed."

A number of effective dandruff shampoos which contain sulfur can be used as a "regular" shampoo after the condition clears.

Half of the people who enter a drug store have dandruff, according to the article.

A Mixer Secret

The blades of an electric mixer won't clog, when mixing cold shortening, if you heat them in hot water just before using.

Dispel Odor

Next time you fry onions, pour a cup of vinegar into the pan after cooking. Let it simmer for a few minutes. Then wash pan, the usual way. The pan will be odorless and fresh again.

Water Quality Conference Panel Concerned With Skin, Hair Care

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Some of the panel topics at the recent Water Quality Conference here get into some common problems having little to do with drinking water but much to do with daily living.

One was the effect of water quality on personal care of the skin and hair. Most experts agree that for best results in personal cleanliness, it is important to use water that is naturally soft or made soft by a conditioner.

The most common sign of hard water is the ring around the tub left after bathing. The ring is caused by a residue of minerals such as salt, iron, and magnesium, which form insoluble curds that are not easily washed away.

When this type of residue is left on the skin, it may cause irritations such as redness, itching and dryness. That is one reason why soft water is best for bathing and shampooing.

One of the panelists, Dr. Jay G. Barnett, explained further. He said soft water also leaves the skin feeling softer while hard water may leave it feeling somewhat sticky. He said bacteria also forms in the residue left by hard water.

A dermatologist with the Orentreich Medical Group in New York, Dr. Barnett had these other bits of advice on the best ways to bathe and shampoo:

Don't bathe too often. "Too frequent bathing, especially in the winter-time, can cause the skin to become dry, red, and irritated."

Rinse away all traces of soap so it cannot penetrate and injure the skin in the ways mentioned above.

Do not scrub with strong soap "which often causes excessive degreasing of the skin and subsequent dryness, chapping, and itching . . . don't use medicated soaps unless advised to do so by your physician."

Water is better than face creams. "Water washing your face a few times daily is very often better than cream cleansing." (It's also considerably cheaper).

Shampooing does not cause people to lose hair, although it may appear to. "Hair can be washed daily without harm" The more oily the scalp, the more frequently you should shampoo it.

Dr. Barnett emphasized the value of soft water in shampooing as well as bathing.

"With soft water," he said, "hair washed with soap is cleaner, more manageable, softer, more lustrous and better-looking than hair washed with detergent."

"With hard water, hair washed with soap forms curds which cling to the scalp and hair strands, dull the hair's natural luster . . . and increase the number of bacteria present."

With hard water, detergents will overcome the curd problem, but they will not be as satisfactory in other ways as soap and soft water.

In other words, according to the experts, the quality of water can have more effect on skin and hair condition than the type of soap or detergent used.

Mrs. James Good, central Marin League president, says "Today, when rising taxes and prices seem to be matched by rising welfare costs, we suspect that people are more than ever concerned about standards and administration of welfare programs. These unit meetings are a direct outgrowth of one of the League's primary purposes — to help inform interested citizens."

Membership in the League is open to all women citizens who have reached the age of 18, and all league informational meetings are open to the public.

Maxicoats Are Cleaners Problem

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) —Drycleaners last fall viewed maxicoats with apprehension. It wasn't such a huge headache for them after all.

The cleaners feared gutter splashes would present hard-to-remove stains, including some containing salt residue from ice removal preparations scattered on streets. A check of the biggest maxi problems, by the National Institute of Drycleaning here, showed that maxi coats with worn hems were the biggest problem for the cleaners.

Paint Touch Ups

After painting a room, fill an empty fingernail polish bottle with some of the paint. The little brush is handy to paint over chips and scratches when they occur later.

ABANDONED — Broken glass, torn screens and the relics of life that is lost and forgotten are the subjects for photographer Stanley Bowman's Byron Hot Springs series currently displayed at Dominican College's San Marco Gallery.

ART REVIEW

Desolation Keynote To Photo Essays

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Out of debris, abandonment and decay have come many exquisite photographic essays. So, that Stanley Bowman delivers the same with his photographs of Byron Hot Springs certainly doesn't set him apart. What does elevate Bowman's work, on display through Oct. 9 at Dominican College's San Marco Gallery, is a compelling quality that is as solely his as it is devastating.

The photographer's last series shown in Marin dealt with the painful human loneliness that seems to linger around all bus depots. And while unpeopled, his new series has that same air of desolation.

SENSE OF EMPTINESS

These new prints ache with emptiness and the cracking, rusting, rotting vestiges of abandonment. In buildings that once were filled with living, doors stand ajar and Bowman's camera looks from room to room through a tunnel of loneliness.

At times, Bowman's small black and white photographs encompass broad areas such as a stairwell where high unseen windows are mirrored in a roof-leaked puddle on the floor. Or they may focus closely on the disintegration of a thing itself. You almost feel you could peel the paint eroding from a battered, knobless door or touch the crusted dirt on plates which cast sharp circles on a stained wood floor.

COMPOSITION

Because of composition and contrast an empty light bulb socket, old basins or a single arch of pipe become important as they reach against the darkness. Bowman does everything right as far as design, texture and interest are concerned. But while always strongly structured, his photographs rely on contrasts of gray and black rather than stark whites. And the dim, quiet light heightens their dust covered sense of the forgotten.

Still, the things that set Bowman apart most completely are his insight and his ability to reach out and into others with the meaning he finds within his subjects. It's a case of real interaction with work which seems to compel it.

Return Of Rail Strikers Halts Charges Of Contempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge Howard F. Corcoran today dropped proceedings under which officials of four rail unions could have been cited for contempt in allowing a brief strike of about 40,000 men against three major railroads Tuesday.

At the same time, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy hinted strongly that President Nixon would use all his legal authority, including imposition of a 60-day cooling off period, to prevent or halt any national rail strike.

At the request of attorneys for the railroads, Judge Corcoran vacated an order he issued Tuesday ordering the unions show cause why they should not be ruled in contempt, and possibly fined, for violation of a temporary restraining order against selective strikes that he issued late Monday night.

Francis M. Shea, atotrney for the carriers, told the judge at the brief hearing in U. S. District Court that the show-cause proceedings were no longer necessary since the strikers had returned to work.

Service was returning to normal on the Southern Pacific and the combined Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio lines, which were struck Tuesday.

Corcoran's order forbidding so-called whipsaw strikes against only certain carriers is in force until midnight next Wednesday. The judge has set a hearing for the afternoon of the previous day.

If Corcoran rules in favor of the railroads at that hearing, the unions will be permanently enjoined from striking selectively but will have the option of walking out all 71 carriers — every major one in the country.

Should the judge decide the unions can whipsaw, they are likely to do so and the railroads probably would retaliate with lockouts.

As for President Nixon's role in the labor dispute, Kennedy said in reply to a question during an interview today (CBS Morning News):

"I am sure that on all sides (a strike) would not be desirable. I am sure that the President will take the actions that are desirable to keep the trains moving."

UAW Digs In; Long Auto Strike Forecast

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers members dug in for a long strike against giant General Motors Corp. today after negotiators said no serious talks will be held at least until next Tuesday.

G.M. said the strike against plants in the United States and Canada was costing the economy $162 million a day. Some suppliers already had begun to lay off employes and five of 27 G.M. plants exempted from the strike also began layoffs.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock planned to join picketing at three GM plants in Detroit early today, then leave for Chicago. Woodcock and Irving Bluestone, codirector of the union's G.M. negotiations, planned cross-country meetings with local UAW officials before returning Sunday to prepare for Tuesday's bargaining.

Chief G.M. negotiator Earl Bramblett said the daily cost of the walkout, which began at Monday midnight, was $12 million in wages, $90 million in sales, $40 million in payments to suppliers, $20 million in taxes and a daily production loss of 26,000 cars.

On the picket lines, the loss was more personal.

At hard-hit Flint, Mich., home of Buick and several Chevrolet plants, members of local 598 just were beginning to recover from a 136-day production standards walkout that ended Feb. 9.

Presidential adviser Robert Finch, in Detroit for an election campaign appearance, said the Nixon administration would not intervene unless asked. "We have been invited out by both sides," he said.

Despite the shutdown, G.M.'s divisions went ahead with introduction of 1971 models.

It was the third national strike called against G.M., the world's largest manufacturing firm. The longest previous national strike was 119 days. Production continued normally at most Chrysler Corp., and Ford Motor Co. plants, although contracts expired there Monday midnight.

Youths Elect Temporary Officers

George Kewin of Mill Valley, a freshman at University of California, was named temporary chairman of the Marin Youth Commission last night at the Civic Center.

He will succeed Mark W. Tracy of Novato, who will be leaving the county to attend college.

Other temporary officers elected last night were vice chairman Paul Cohen of Mill Valley, succeeding Karry Fitch Jr. of San Rafael; and secretary Carol McClure of Ross, succeeding Ann Elliott of Ross, who resigned in July to attend college.

Tracy, chairing his last meeting last night, said the new officers are designated temporary until all vacancies on the youth commission are filled and the full commission agrees on the new officers.

Tracy announced that the youth commission has not yet received an application for financial aid from a group of Novato teen-agers who want to set up rap sessions with the San Quentin SQUIRES. He said a representative from the Novato teen group is expected to attend the next meeting of the youth commission, set for 8 p.m. Sept. 29 at the Civic Center.

Complaints

CAIRO (UPI) —During its first six months a government committee set up to investigate complaints by private citizens handled 5,200 complaints. Most of them were directed against ministries in the fields of agriculture, education and local administration, the government said.

Nine-County Transit Plan Bill Signed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill creating a nine-county Metropolitan Transportation Commission in the Bay Area, including Marin, has been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure, by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, will create a commission with binding authority over local transportation plans, including those drawn by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

It will be financed by transfer of $530,000 in federal and state planning grants now going to the Association of Bay Area Governments. The association opposed the measure.

A similar Foran measure last year passed his own transportation committee, but got no further.

The 19-member commission will have one representative each from Marin and Sonoma counties, each to be selected by the boards of supervisors. It will review all applications for state and federal grants, and "forward only those applications that are compatible" with the regional transportation plan it is to draw by 1974.

The commission will be formed in late November after the new measure becomes effective.

Tam Services District To Curtail Sewage

Directors of the Tamalpais Community Services District, asked to curtail the amount of waste the district deposits in the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District's system, have agreed to do what they can.

According to director Glenn Lambacher, the board this week voted to begin plans to improve its collection system to curb inflow and infiltration of storm and ground water into the lines.

Lambacher said the move is necessary because the Sausalito district, which handled 122 million gallons of Tamalpais Valley sewage last year, is nearing capacity.

After much discussion Lambacher said the directors agreed to work with Sausalito "in staving off the date when we reach capacity. Lambacher said the services district will attempt to comply with the Sausalito district's request that it keep gallonage pumped into the Sausalito system to 1969-70 levels.

He said Sausalito had originally asked that the services district refuse to issue any further permits for sewer service, but said the sanitary district had agreed to wait and see how the improved collection system works.

He said the district will continue to issue permits for new service as long as we keep below last year's gallonage.

Directors also voted to review — in one year — the improvements and their effect and to see — at that time — whether a master plan for southern Marin sewage disposal has been effectively adopted by the agencies concerned.

"Then, if it is deemed necessary, the board will enact a ban on further new connections to our collection system," he said.

Man Booked In Three Burglaries

A 22-year-old San Rafael man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday by Mill Valley police on suspicion of burglarizing three Mill Valley residences.

Held to appear in Marin Municipal Court today was Alexander Jose Semons, of 220 Canal Street.

Police said they arrested Semons Monday for violation of parole and rebooked him yesterday on three burglary counts. He is suspected of burglarizing the homes of Linda K. Walsh, 12 Molino Avenue, Alan Mintz, 57 Millside Lane, and Elizabeth Martin, 74 Millside Lane.

Woman Hurt In Two-Car Crash

A Novato woman was injured in a two-car accident at 5:45 p.m. Monday at the Highway 101 off-ramp in Terra Linda, San Rafael police reported today.

Lennie F. Johnson, 49, of 779 Clausing Avenue was reported in good condition with multiple fractures of the ribs at Novato General Hospital.

She was a passenger in the car driven by her husband, Charles R. Johnson, 51, northbound on Highway 101 and turning onto the off-ramp. It collided with another northbound car driven by Walter S. Press, 62, of 784 Los Colindas, San Rafael, police reported.

San Anselmo Asking School Grant Again

The San Anselmo School District board, set back recently by state's rejection of its application of funds to operate an excellerated learning program, last night directed the district superintendent to ask again for the grant.

Supt. William Kenneth Lowry said today the application requesting about $8,000 has been rejected by the state because it was not submitted 30 days prior to the beginning of the new school year.

Lowry said the funds were to have provided testing and programs for between 60 and 80 students with intelligence quotients of 130 or better.

Lowry said the board took no further action on the program, pending a reply from the state on the district's second request.

The San Anselmo School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Approved hiring Jean Shilling to coordinate at six-week vision testing program at $2.75 per hour, Ann Toldrian as a second grade teacher at Yolansdale School at $9,387 per year, William Trumbo as a temporary teacher at Hidden Valley School at $27.50 per day and Eva McKay as a library aid at Red Hill School at $457 per month.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SERVICES — Tabled discussion on a proposal made by psychologist William Emerson for testing and aid to educationally handicapped students. The district has budgeted $4,000 for such a program and is seeking program proposals.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Approved three requests for interdistrict attendance between Larkspur and San Rafael school districts, providing the district is not billed for tuition.

MEETINGS — Approved the rotation of the first meeting of each month between schools, while the secnod meeting of each month will remain at Red Hill School.

MENTALLY RETARDED — Approved an agreement with the county board of education to provide special classes for the district's educationally mentally retarded students.

Body Washes Up At Seadrift

The body of an unidentified man, which washed ashore in Stinson Beach twice in the last week but drifted out again before it could be recovered was found at noon yesterday by sheriff's deputies on a sandspit at Seadrift.

Coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said he believed it was the body of a 22-year-old man reported missing from Walnut Creek. He withheld identification pending a check of dental charts.

Craig said the man apparently had been dead about a week. Cause of death appeared to be drowning, he said, and there was no mark of violence on the body. It was taken to Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

To Enter Plea In Credit Card Forgery

Warren Hardin Allen, 26, of Oakland, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of credit card forgery stemming from his alleged attempt to purchase clothing with a stolen credit card Sept. 7 in a Sausalito shop.

He is to return to court next Tuesday to enter a plea to the charge.

WAT TAKESHITA
His reporting honored

Health Panel Will Honor I-J Reporter

Wat Takeshita, Independent-Journal Civic Center reporter, will be honored by the California Association for Mental Health on Sept. 25 for his contribution to public awareness of mental health problems.

Takeshita has been selected as one of several persons from various parts of California to be honored at a luncheon of the association's annual convention at El Mirador Hotel in Palm Springs. Don Wilson, radio announcer and television personality, will be master of ceremonies.

In nominating Takeshita for the award, the Marin County chapter of the association cited him for "his role in opening up the columns of his newspaper to coverage of mental health events in this county on a scale and of such quality as never before."

It cited particularly his stories on a series of secret meetings by the Marin County Board of Supervisors relative to dismissal of the Marin Community Mental Health Service director, attempted dismissal of the Mental Health Center director, and reorganization of the service.

"His story Sept. 23, 1969, was the first comprehensive review in the newspaper of factors involved in an intramural disagreement in community services," said the nomination. "Throughout the following months Mr. Takeshita has reported developments in this complicated and as-yet unresolved situation within the community mental health services in a style that represents the highest standards of journalism — thorough research, objectivity, and accuracy."

Golf Course Bridge Report

The North Marin County Water District board last night heard a report that replacement of the Indian Valley Golf Course Bridge was expected to begin Oct. 2 and be completed by Oct. 9.

The bridge is being replaced with a Culvert by contractor D. D. Altermatt.

The board also held a closed session to discuss impending legal action in the Independent-Journal's suit to compel the board to release the names positions and salaries of all district employees.

Nine Nabbed In Cocaine, Pot Raid

An alleged offer yesterday to sell $6,200 worth of cocaine to a narcotics agent led last night to the arrest of nine persons at houses in Forest Knolls and Tamalpais Valley.

Those arrested and the charges are:

Charles Noell Hess, 22, of Forest Knolls, offering to sell cocaine and possessing marijuana; Frederick Martin Engelhardt, 29, of Forest Knolls, possession of marijuana; Robert Barton Pemberton Jr., 21, of Palo Alto, and Ronald Joseph Wishart, of 27 Helen Lane, Mill Valley, both, possession of cocaine for sale; Therese Guillory, 21, Janet Ruth Simensen, 18, and Susan Irene Macaulay, 21, all of 645 Northern Avenue, all charged with possession of marijuana for sale and possession of cocaine; Elwin Douglas Myers, 37, of Glen Ellen, and Randolph Scott Caswell, 23, of Long Beach, both, possessing marijauan for sale.

Agents gave this account of the arrests:

About 5 p.m. yesterday the agent who allegedly had arranged the sale of cocaine with Hess went to the latter's Forest Knolls home.

Hess reportedly told the agent that Pemberton would go get the drugs and when he left, officers followed Pemberton to a house at 645 Northern Avenue, Tamalpais Valley, where Pemberton later emerged accompanied by Wishart.

These two men were stopped and arrested in their car in Fairfax, and agents said they found eight ounces of cocaine carried by Pemberton and a small amount in Wishart's possession.

Agents then went to Forest Knolls and arrested Hess and Engelhardt, who lives there also. Officers said that the Forest Knolls house belongs to Robert Franklin Black, former Marinite now in prison in Crete for hashish smuggling.

(Black, Hess and Engelhardt were arrested together in a $350,000 drug raid in Tamalpais Valley in 1969.)

Later in the evening other agents raided the Tamalpais Valley house and arrested the three women as well as Myers and Caswell after obtaining a search warrant. They said they found more than five ounces of cocaine, five pounds of "good quality" Moroccan hashish and a small amount of LSD as well as marijuana in several places.

One vial of cocaine was hidden in a plastic bag containing grapes, agents said. They also seized $1,460 in cash.

Those arrested were held in Marin County Jail in lieu of bail ranging from $2,500 to $10,000.

They were to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Anonymous Tip Recoups Auto

An anonymous phone caller yesterday led San Anselmo police to a stolen 1965 Porsche being prepared for stripping in a garage at 44 Elm Avenue.

Police said the vehicle, owned by Richard J. Massey of 112 Spencer Avenue, Sausalito, was reproted stolen Monday in Sausalito.

Officers said they questioned the garage owner, Bonnie Merz, 23, shortly after receiving the call at 7:05 p.m. and are continuing the investigation.

Services Committee Elects Head

Janey Rice of Mill Valley was elected last night to head the family and children's services advisory committee as chairman for the next 12 months.

She succeeds Jocelyn Bell of Fairfax, the past chairman. New vice chairman is Lynne Bishop of Larkspur, succeeding Eldon Hasstedt of Novato.

The committee members met last night at the Hall of Justice and decided to focus attention this year on increasing the supply of low income housing, evaluating the effectiveness of welfare and social services, and getting facts concerning welfare to the public.

Members decided that the day care program to help working mothers will also continue as one of the top priority items.

The Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee will continue to meet on the third Tuesday of each month. Next meeting is set for 8 p.m. Oct. 20 in room 254 of the Hall

AMSTERDAM (UPI) —Sales of books in Holland in 1969 totaled $100 million, an increase of 11 per cent over 1968. The average Dutchman spent $8 on books last year.

Architect Panel Gives Height Exception

Architects drawings for the reconstruction of Pat and Joe's Restaurant, 71 Throckmorton Avenue, were approved last night by the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee.

Zoning administrator Howard W. McGill said the committee members felt that the design of the building justified granting an exception to the 35-foot height limitation. The crest of the roof will be 44 feet high.

The committee also approved of the concept of granting air rights to the restaurant to build apartments over a public sidewalk. The city council must decide whether to lease or sell the rights.

Also approved were minor changes in landscaping at a Burger Chef Restaurant at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue and the repainting and installation of a new sign at a service station at 340 Miller Avenue.

Bomb Ends Turtle Rock Controversy

MARKLEEVILLE (UPI) — Alpine County's eye-catching turtle rock has been decapitated.

Shaped like a turtle complete with a head, the rock recently became a bone of contention and the state agreed to a request by the Alpine County Historical Society to move it to Turtle Rock Park.

But an explosive blast cut short the controversy Sunday night. Someone placed a bomb under the head and set it off, blasting the head to bits and pieces.

Contractor James Coburn of Sonora received an $8,400 contract to move the rock from the right of way of California 89 several hundred yards to the park entrance.

Arraigned In Pot, Driving Charges

LeRoy Raymond Willey, 39, of San Anselmo, has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana and drunken driving.

Officers said he had a plastic bag of suspected pot in his pocket when stopped Saturday on Highway 101 for erratic driving.

Willey is also awaiting trial on a charge of credit card forgery.

He is to return to court next Tuesday to enter pleas to the new charges.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Two-Man Sheriff Patrols —And Tough Pay Demands

We have heard little but criticism of the Marin County Board of Supervisors for turning down Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos's request for additional officers to provide two-man patrols on the night shift.

The contention is that peace officers traveling at night place themselves in hazard of their lives, and that the hazard is increased disproportiontaely when an officer must patrol alone.

There is no quarreling with this. Its truth is obvious. Nor does it provide sufficient answer to say that the officer has a radio in his car on which he may call for assistance. He may not even be in the car when he needs assistance. He must leave his radio to investigate; he may never get back to it.

HOWEVER, THERE IS MORE to the supervisors' decision than this. The three-man majority of the board did not turn down the sheriff's request for more men because it wanted to put his officers in jeoprady.

It is possible that the sheriff's personnel assignments could be rearranged to provide two-man patrols at night without the additional officers. We are not suggesting this would be easy. But it might be possible. Certainly an attempt should be made, and we feel sure will be. Adding men is the simple way, but it may not be the only way.

SOME HAVE SUGGESTED another possibility which, while it would not be as satisfactory as having two regular officers in each car, might be helpful. This is volunteer citizen patrol.

This involves using citizens who volunteer their service without charge, for one or two nights a week. They ride with the officers, although they are not themselves officers. This has been tried in some places, reportedly with fairly good results. Citizens who are concerned about law and order might be willing to volunteer in sufficient numbers. Such assistance would give the deputy a "backup man" who, though not trained and armed, might be of considerable assistance. It is a possibility worth investigating.

THE SUPERVISORS' resistance to the request for more officers cannot, of course, be divorced entirely from another matter: the demand by the sheriff's deputies for a 12½ per cent pay increase.

The officers have done themselves no service in the eyes of either the public or the supervisors by their suggestion that they might walk off the job if the demand is not met.

The distribution of raises to county employees this year was something of a fiasco. We concur with the peace officers and firemen in the belief that they were ill-treated in comparison with some others.

However, the fiasco must be blamed in part to a law which public employees themselves, through their organizations, helped put on the books. We are not convinced that the collective bargaining procedure used by industry and labor unions is the best method for public employees. The teachers tried it first, with the Winton Act, and their consequent loss in public esteem probably has been far greater than any increase in salary beyond what they would have received by the informal committee discussions that prevailed before the act was passed.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Issue In Welfare Disagreement Boils Down To Who Is Boss

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Ever since the days of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, which started the concept of government as the caretaker of the people, there has been a dispute between state and federal governments on matters of "conformity."

Conformity is the process of complying with the orders of the federal government bureauracy which now happens to be the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. In the old days, it was the Social Security Board which called the turns. But despite the change in name, the principles remain the same. The orders come down from headquarters, and the states generally wind up taking the orders, whether they like them or not.

The supreme penalty for failure to comply with the HEW orders in the loss of federal funds to finance the various programs which are centralized in Washington, D.C. And no state likes to be cut off at the pockets, which it can be despite the fact that the taxpayers of the states involved pay not only the bills for the programs involved, but also support the vast army of bureaucrats that calls the turn on "conformity."

THE LATEST dispute over "conformity" is between the Reagan administration and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The argument has gone so far that California will appeal the ruling of a federal court judge which held that this state is out of conformity with federal welfare requirements.

Lucian Vandegrift, secretary of the state human relations agency, said the federal government and court refused to allow the state to exhaust its administrative remedies before issuing its ruling.

Vandegrift pointed out that this state leads the nation in the amount of social services provided by the taxpayers for welfare recipients. And the state already is a leader in average payment to families with needy children, and to the blind, old age assistance, and aid to the disabled.

"Only a vast bureaucracy," Vandegrift said, "intent on perpetuating itself and its own interests, without regard to the legitimate interests of the taxpayers, could allow itself to somehow accept the notion that a state so generous to the truly needy could be out of conformity."

He pointed out that the whole issue boils down to a matter of technical and procedural differences, which have very little if any relationship to the real issue.

THE REAL ISSUE appears to be what government agency is going to run the welfare operation — the state, or the federal government? So far, the federal government calls the shots, for the simple reason it can cut off the money if its bureaucratic wishes are not observed.

On the other hand, the state must do what it is told to do, no matter what the cost to the taxpayer.

Consequently, the immovable object meets the irresistible force and as usual, the public suffers.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A new whale, deposited at the Coney Island Aquarium, was so hoity-toity she wouldn't even give the time of day to older occupants of the tank. "How come she puts on such airs?" wondered Tillie Whale. "Status," explained Eudora Whale. "Her ancestors swam over under the Mayflower."

The hour was getting late at a business luncheon hosted by a prestigious Wall Street banking house, and the toastmaster rose to introduce the last speaker. "I know you're all anxious to get back to your offices," he begun, "but our last speaker will address you on a subject close to your hearts — SEX. Furthermore, I've asked him to be as brief as possible."

The speaker thereupon arose, beamed at his audience, announced, "Gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure" — and sat down.

Helicopter Service Hopes For Upturn

All of us here at SFO want to thank you for your good coverage of our plight and the excellent editorial that accompanied it.

This is our first step in trying to bring the message to Marin County and we are all certain that it is going to be extremely effective. It is hard to say now how much this will effect seat sales, but I, for one, will be willing to bet that by this time next week they will be up by a considerable percentage.

SFO Loss Blamed To Shortcomings

The plight of SFO is unfortunate, and as a regular traveler from Marin I regret the prospect of losing its service here. In all truth, however, the problems which SFO has encountered are the result of its own shortcomings in service. Here are some of the difficulties I have in trying to use their service:

1. Ticketing. SFO cannot ticket other airlines, and travelers leaving on short notice must make a separate trip to pick up tickets if they are to qualify for the interstate prices.

2. Reservations. SFO has a poor record of over-selling rush hour flights . . .

3. Rush hour problems. SFO has no provision for extra service during rush hours on Monday and Friday, when most of us need them . . .

4. Personnel. Passengers are angered to watch bullying and wheedling have effect on who gets taken and who left behind on oversold and standby flights . . .

5. Information. The interstate discounts are not properly advertised, nor are the schedules. SFO advertising has not been of help.

6. Baggage. SFO's record has been so poor that some major airlines refuse to check bags through on them . . .

I need the helicopter service. I would use it regularly if it were just more convenient and reliable than my car. But when I return to San Francisco on a Friday night, tired and impatient to get home, I'm in no mood to scramble through a hectic and tense ordeal with SFO, possibly get stranded 40 miles from home, trying to complete the last leg of the trip to Marin.

Another Rider Seconds Complaint

I certainly second Mrs. (Janet) Nogara's complaint (Sept. 3) in regard to "tennis shoes, shiny blue pants and flailing arms."

I also ride several hours a day on the water company property and have had these characters sneak up behind my horse without a sound of warning. Each time I have asked them to whistle or make some sound of warning so as not to frighten horses and get someone killed. So far I have not had Mrs. Nogara's luck of an answer, all I have gotten has been a surly look and flailing arms disappearing around the bend in the road.

Turns Other Cheek —It Gets Slapped

Somewhere in the Great Book which is read by a select few, I recall reading the passage said by an ole timer that goes kind of like this, "When things hit you, turn the other cheek."

Approximately six weeks ago someone stole the two front wheels from our modern day horse which was parked in the bright afternoon sun in San Rafael's parking lot. According to present tribal law, proper action in form of reports, etc., was taken. My heart was sad — truly sad — that some peoples must resort to this type of doings to get their desires.

Thanking God that we have the questionable priviledge of having two cars, I turned my other cheek and parked our TR by the College of Marin between the happy wisdom-getting hours of nine and sunny noon. Upon returning to the car, I noted that the top covering had been removed and the metal ribs which give the top body had been neatly and tidily laid to rest in the proper position. No doubt, the covering is now clothing the taker's naked ribbed car.

Again proper tribal action has been taken.

Now I must go back to reading the Great book. Must find the answer of what I can do to stop contributing to the delinquency of my fellow natives — guess I could stop driving a car.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

There's A Silver Lining To Nerve Gas Episode

(Reprinted from (Washington Evening Star)

There are those who argue that, if one looks hard enough, some good can be found in everyone and everything. Now there is important new evidence to indicate that the incurable optimists may be right.

It would have been impossible, just a short time back, for anyone to come up with a really good thing to say about the dumping of those nerve gas rockets in the Atlantic. The oceanic disposal was, perhaps, the only feasible way of getting rid of the loathsome product of man's inventive genius. But being the least objectionable of a number of appalling possibilities does not meet the qualifications for inclusion in the Polyanna Department.

The first argental glimmer showed when, even before the lethal coffins were given the deep six, Secretary Laird let it be known that never again would any part of the nation's ample supply of nerve gas be buried at sea. Then Congress got into the act, and the sterling really came shining through.

At last count, no less than 10 bills have been introduced, all aimed at curbing the age-old practice of using the ocean as the dumping ground for civilization's malignant garbage. One bill would require the council on Environmental Quality to approve the disposal of any military trash in the sea. Another would require the council to take a new and critical look at the present national policy concerning the dumping of anything at all into the oceans.

So the silver lining is there, after all. Maybe, as a result of the nerve gas flap, the United States will finally call a halt to its carefree poisoning of the oceans. It's even possible that the awakening has come in time to achieve that elusive goal, the preservation of human life on this planet.

THE DRUMMONDS

Scranton Commission Will Call On President To Heed Youth

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The Scranton Commission on Campus Unrest is ready to urge President Nixon to act boldly on far-reaching proposals to avert mounting danger on the campus.

There is good reason to believe that the commission's conclusions will include:

1 — A hard-line approach to meet youth unrest will not work. It makes a bad situation worse.

2 — Such an approach alienates and radicalizes large numbers of nonviolent students who are thereby steadily drawn into the orbit of violence.

3 — Something near to chaos on campus is in sight unless student views are more responsively and sympathetically heard —and, when justified, heeded.

4 — It is imperative that President Nixon bridge the constantly widening chasm between himself and American youth — now so vast they can hardly see or hear each other across it.

5 — IF THE PRESIDENT is to arrest and reverse the gathering peril of disruption on major campuses, three things are needed:

(a) — Speed the pace of withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam and make it clear that this is irreversible.

(b) — Convince the country that he is decisively and fully committed to crucial domestic reforms to aid the poor, the blacks, the cities and the environment, and put enough advocacy into these causes to show that his heart as well as his mind is in them.

(c) — Begin to make his own ideas and ideals for a better America more visible and more persuasive.

THIS IS WHERE the evidence before the commission plainly points to one central, overriding judgment — act now or pay the price later. There is a deep conviction that unless Mr. Nixon puts the full prestige of the presidency to work, a national calamity is in the making.

The commission is astonishingly united. Few believed such unity could be attained in view of the diversity in age, politics and background among its members. Few would have expected that youthful Harvard activist Joseph Rhodes Jr. and retired Air Force Gen. Benjamin Davis or New Haven Police Chief James Ahern would find themselves in substantial agreement on the gravity of the campus crisis and what most needs to be done.

THE COMMISSION is simply doing its job.

The President gave the commission this mission: Get the facts about campus unrest and advise him what to do about it.

If President Nixon had not wanted straight facts and candid advice he would not have appointed the members he did — from his trusted friend and first choice for secretary of state, former Gove. William Scranton of Pensylvania, to the skeptical, outspoken young Joseph Rhodes, whom Vice President Agnew wanted removed.

RICHARD NIXON will get the facts and advice shortly.

They will not give him entirely comfortable reading. The report will urge him to some things he hoped he would not have to do.

Mr. Nixon hoped he could postpone major increases in domestic spending, but the commission will almost certainly say that delay is dangerous.

President Nixon hoped he could further racial justice and help the poor and the blacks without talking too much about it. But the commission will inevitably say that he must begin to speak out more openly and ardently if he is to convince the restless and the aggrieved that they can have hope in him.

President Nixon hoped he could proceed quietly and cautiously in order not to offend his natural constituency — Middle America. But the evidence before the commission shows that Richard Nixon must persuade Middle America to allow him to do more.

This is why the Scranton Commission report will seek to win the mind of Richard Nixon as the best means of winning the mind of Middle America to do what is needed.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Fate Of War Prisoners Pressed Upon President

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and his top advisers must soon come to grips with the question of what happens to Americans, held as prisoners of war, as the Vietnamization program goes forward.

The question is being asked privately by POW families. By its nature, it is a question which cannot be muted for an indefinite period and will ultimately require a full and forthright answer.

The issue is simple enough: President Nixon, in Vietnamizing the war in Southeast Asia, is gradually drawing down U.S. combat forces. What are the hopes for more than 1,500 Americans now prisoners or "missing" if the war winds down without a negotiated settlement?

Some U.S. prisoners have already been held by the Vietcong and North Vietnamese for several years.

IF THE TALKS continue to be fruitless in Paris (where the POW issue has now been forcefully raised) and troop withdrawals continue, does there come a time when Vietnamization halts pending a settlement of the prisoner issue?

The POW families continue to escalate their drive to dramatize the plight of the prisoners.

The National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia is focusing on Nov. 11. The idea is to make Veterans' Day something of a war prisoners' day in public ceremonies this year.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Sybil Stockdale, wife of a captured Navy captain, the league has also been spearheading the campaign for a joint session of the House and Senate on the prisoner-of-war issue. Most of the House and Senate leadership have approved the idea of such a session.

The league has been trying to have such a joint session scheduled in early October to coincide with its first national convention which has been scheduled here in Washington.

THE CAMPAIGN for support by the POW families has probably been more effective than is generally realized. That is particularly true with respect to congressional sentiment.

The pages of the Congressional Record bear testimony to the fact that "hawks" and "doves" alike think something must be done to secure better treatment — and, eventually, release — for the American POWs. Many of the speeches delivered in the House and Senate are short and attract no attention on a day-by-day basis. The cumulative effect is considerable, however.

In one such recent speech — less than 200 words — Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., flayed the Communist regime in North Vietnam for refusing to abide by the requirements of the Geneva convention. He called the plight of the POWs "one of the great unanswered problems of the year."

That is certainly how it is shaping up for President Nixon, who will come under increasing pressure to explain how release of the prisoners can be obtained from the intransigent North Vietnamese as U.S. forces in Vietnam and Southeast Asia become progressively weaker.

COUNTRY PARSON

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

ERIK M. INGRAM

Larkspur Can Control Creek Shores Without Moratorium

The future of Corte Madera Creek's marshland between Highway 101 and the Bon Air Bridge in Larkspur may not be quite so bleak as the city council's rejection of the building moratorium might make it appear.

In fact it is not bleak at all. The marsh has about the same chance of preservation under existing city ordinances as it would under any moratorium imposed by the city.

Why then the public outcry led by the planning commission against development along the creek if the commission already has the power to control it?

"PROPONENTS of the action saw the moratorium as the best approach," is the only answer special city attorney Albert Bianchi could give Monday. "With the ordinances they already have the commission can develop a policy for preservation of the creek," he added.

This has been Bianchi's position since he was commissioned in early August to oversee the legal aspects of the development debate between builders and conservationists.

In a letter dated Aug. 7, he told the planning commission it was already authorized to impose "reasonable and appropriate conditions upon the granting of applications for architectural supervision and for variance." He later expanded this to include subdivision approval and use permits.

BIANCHI LISTED examples from the municipal code which provide that a structure must "have an appearance that will lend itself to the harmonious development of the city; enhance the desirability of residence, investment, occupation and recreation in the city; make optimum use of the land; be compatible with the area in which it is located and not be detrimental to the health, safety, peace, morals, comfort, convenience, prosperity and general welfare of the surrounding neighborhood."

And in yet another letter dated Sept. 2, Bianchi stated: Without adopting any ordinance other than those already in existence, the city could impose uniform limitations which would require dedication of public access and/or the maintaining of certain areas in their present state as a condition to the granting of subdivision approval, architectural supervision, applications for variances, etc.

"If this were to be done," he continued, "it should be on the basis of specific findings that such action is necessary to protect and preserve the welfare, health, comfort or convenience of the citizens of the city or upon some similar findings."

BIANCHI ADDED on Monday that he felt the city's refusal to approve the hiring of an expert to define the marsh land limits in order to designate building setbacks posed no problem. This could be handled by the city's staff and if needed, the county's.

Only when rebuffed by the city council on its request for the emergency building ban ordinance did the planning commission fall back on the alternative offered by Bianchi.

It had claimed that the moratorium was needed to give time for analysis of the marshland, but under existing ordinances, with possibly minor revision, it has had years for such a study.

So having gone full circle, it can be hoped ths commission is a little wiser, and will begin to exercise the powers it has been granted through the municipal code.

And as Bianchi has also pointed out, the ultimate decision of the public's right to open creeksides rests in the courts, no matter what course the city follows.

Tunney To Speak At Marin Rally

Rep. John V. Tunney of Riverside, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, will address a rally by conservation groups at 10 a.m. on Saturday at Goat Rock Beach, Jenner.

Tunney's campaign staff billed his address as "a major address" that will deal with the need for new legislation to protect the coastline.

The rally is being sponsored by the Sierra Club and the Jenner Coalition.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Changes By The Hundred In State Education Code

By Bryce W. Anderson

California school districts may now start teaching reading in kindergarten, and use state funds to do so.

This is the result of one of a host of changes in laws affecting the state's schools which were passed by the 1970 session of the legislature.

Assembly Bill 411, by Assemblymen John F. Dunlap, D-Vallejo; Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, and John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, extends the Miller-Unruh Basic Reading Act of 1965 to kindergarten; but it provides that school districts starting reading instruction in kindergarten will not be entitled to additional Miller-Unruh Act funds for doing so. It went into law with the governor's signature as an amendment to Section 5571 of the bulky Education Code.

NO FEWER than 186 Assembly bills and 84 Senate bills changing or adding to the Education Code passed the legislature this year.

They range from bills advancing state funds to individual hard-pressed school districts and setting up another $22.5 million state school building aid fund to measures changing "junior college" to "community college" and permitting schools to send students on visits to Washington, D.C.

Nine of them make changes liberalizing the state teacher retirement law. Most of these were introduced by Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, who is himself a retired Navy chaplain.

AB 724, by Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-Bakersfield, specifies that the county superintendent of schools must call an immediate election to fill any school board vacancy, and that the date of the vacancy is that specified in the board member's letter of resignation.

However, the county superintendent won't conduct the special election he calls. Senate Bill 1253, by Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tuston (who was not around when the bill finally passed, having moved on to the United States Congress), gives the conduct of school elections back to county clerks —where it was until switched to county school superintendents a few years ago. It turned out that the school people were not particularly well versed in conducting elections.

More lawsuits against school districts likely will result from AB 1945 by Assemblymen James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, and William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights. This measure, signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan, provides that school employee organizations have standing to sue in any action on behalf of one or more members. It may have resulted from a 1969 case in Alameda County in which the court held the American Federation of Teachers was without standing in the action.

A CHANGE that will become apparent to everybody who follows school affairs — and bring sighs of relief from school board members and administrators — is made by SB 51, by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose. It moves the date for publication of the next year's school budget back to where it used to be — the last week in July, with public hearing following during the first week in August.

There is a story behind this. Two years ago, a pair of bills in the legislature — which were supposed to move together — called for the legislature itself to set the amount of state aid to school districts in May, and for the districts to publish budgets and hold hearings in June. But the first measure died — the legislators not being about to hurry themselves — while the second passed. This resulted in somehighly unrealistic school budgets, since the districts had to complete them before they knew what state money they would get.

HARDLY ANYONE except the state printer ever will be aware of some of the laws enacted. Such a one is AB 291, by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-Huntington Park. It repeals the "California Academies Act," a dead letter from the last century which provided for establishment and operation of state academies.

By the time school authorities find out what's in all of them, though, the legislature will be in session again, making more changes.

Not Much Childish About These Diseases

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —The so-called "childhood diseases" are a myth, says the Texas State Health Department.

Health officials warn that adults can catch diseases such as mumps and measles and are sometimes sicker. However, most people have had them by adulthood and thereby have developed immunity.

Practical tips on how to get more for your money

Presented as a public service by private enterprise—this newspaper and your business-supported Better Business Bureau.

How smart are you in your job as "family purchasing agent"?

One survey found that most high school graduates can do a very competent job of shopping in a supermarket — can buy almost as efficiently as a professional home economist. Another study discovered that most women know exactly what to do when disappointed in a purchase: they complain either to the store, the manufacturer or the Better Business Bureau.

So it's quite possible that you already are the wise, informed shopper our headline talks about. But maybe some of these suggestions will help you be still more knowledgeable and alert.

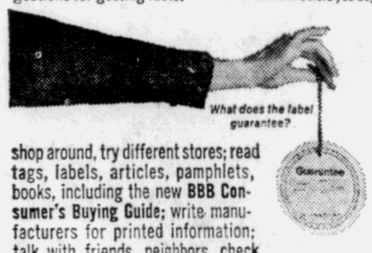
Ask Right Questions

Before you buy anything except routine necessities, first ask: "Should I buy it? Can I afford it? If I buy this, will it deprive me or any of my family of something else we need more?"

Second, "What are my requirements? What specifications — exactly what size, capacity or whatever — do I really need?"

Third, "What does similar merchandise sell for elsewhere? What facts should I know about this item, and how can I get them?" (Suggestions for getting facts:

Think with ink before you buy



What does the label guarantee?

shop around, try different stores; read tags, labels, articles, pamphlets, books, including the new BBB Consumer's Buying Guide; write manufacturers for printed information; talk with friends, neighbors, check their buying experiences; call your Better Business Bureau.)

Rules for Buying

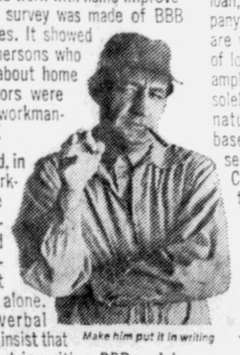
Finally, to get your money's worth, keep in mind these rules for intelligent buying: 1. Buy only from reliable businessmen. If you don't know the firm, see what the experience of others has been. 2. Don't shop for price alone. Quality can be just as important. 3. Read ads carefully. Be cautious when you see such claims as "unbelievable savings!"

4. Learn to recognize an honest salesman: he knows his merchandise, gives a full explanation, does not evade questions. 5. Never sign a blank contract. Always read before you sign. 6. Get all promises in writing. 7. If in doubt about a company or business practice, call your BBB.

Now, consider how these rules work out in practice:

Making Home Improvements

To help people select and work with home improvement firms, recently a survey was made of BBB experiences in 79 cities. It showed that most frequently persons who complain to Bureaus about home improvement contractors were distressed over poor workmanship or unfinished work.



Make him put it in writing

These problems resulted, in part, from itinerant workers and high pressure selling, but also because many people did not seek out a reliable contractor or just decided on price alone. Many accepted verbal promises, did not insist that promises be put in writing. BBBs advise: Know the contractor's reputation. Make sure all work to be done is written into the contract, and read — and understand it — before you sign.

TV and Radio Repair

Manufacturers are working constantly to produce trouble-free radio and TV sets. Still, electronic devices can have occasional operating problems, most of them readily solved by competent servicemen. However, your BBB suggests you know the reputation of a serviceman before you call on him.

Although most radio-TV service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of complaints. When a concern advertises home service at an extremely low price, it may be "bait" to get your set into the shop, where higher charges are added. Reputable firms provide qualified personnel and equipment, a guarantee on work and materials, a work order showing prices of each part.

Deal only with radio-TV repair firms you know to be reliable. When in doubt, contact your BBB.

Facts About Borrowing

To be safe and sensible when you borrow money, borrow only for worthwhile purposes, and only as much as you can repay comfortably. Payments of more than 15% of your total income could spell trouble. There are many ways to borrow — from your insurance, a bank, a savings and loan, a finance company, etc. And there are various types of loans — for example, a loan based solely on your signature vs a loan based on tangible security or collateral.

Read and understand before you sign

Co-makers may be required, and interest rates may be higher, when the lender takes a greater risk. In obtaining money from a lending institution, the new federal lending law requires that you be informed of the total dollar cost of the loan as well as the annual interest rate.

These are just a few things smart consumers must know about buying specific kinds of goods and services. You also must know enough to reject such unscrupulous practices as "bait and switch".

No reputable company would stoop to such a practice, but some firms will run an ad offering a product at an extremely low price merely as a come-on. That's the "bait". When customers come in, the salesman tells them the advertised product is inadequate or "sold out" — and tries to sell them something more expensive, and often, over-priced. That's the "switch".

If a product is advertised well below the usual price, be cautious. Check the advertiser's reputation with your BBB. If you come in and the salesman tries to switch you, tell him you're just not interested!

Truth in Advertising

Fortunately, most business is honest; and over the years, advertising and selling have become more truthful and informative.

Thirty years ago, most people called the Bureaus to complain — about advertising or selling misrepresentation. Today it's just the opposite. Most people call the Bureaus not to complain but simply to inquire. Of the more than 4½ million calls to the BBBs last year, 9 out of 10 were inquiries — people who simply wanted to check on the reputation of a company or find out about some business practice.

Frequently, today's problems result from unintentional mistakes. In 80-90% of the cases, Bureaus report voluntary solutions. Even so, there's room for improvement. That's why communications media and business work constantly with the Bureaus to make advertising and selling honest and helpful.

Don't get hooked by bait and switch

BBB 6-Point Program

But that's only part of the BBB activity. To serve and protect you, the consumer, American business spends millions of dollars every year to maintain 147 BBB offices across the country. These Bureaus operate a 6-Point Program in your behalf:

1. BBBs answer your consumer inquiries. 2. BBBs act on your consumer complaints. 3. BBBs handle customer relations problems. 4. BBBs work with advertising and media to lift advertising standards. 5. BBBs offer you consumer information. 6. BBBs make facts about business-customer relations available to government.

Available from your BBB (Better Business Bureau)

How well does this business-supported program serve you personally? To a considerable extent, that's up to you. The more you use it, the more you benefit. Before buying anything, if you have doubts about a company, questions about a business practice, or simply want more information, accept this invitation and call your Better Business Bureau.

Low Bidder Claims Error, Wanting Out

The low bidder in Mill Valley's middle school project wants to withdraw its bid because of a $100,000 error, the Mill Valley School District board has been told.

Supt. James A. Collins reported that the Charles Branagh Co. of Oakland submitted a $2,518,600 bid Friday for construction of the 1,200-student facility, but a spokesman later said that the bid was $100,000 lower than intended.

Collins said he met Saturday with two members of the school district board, Assist. County Counsel Richard V. Godino and a Branagh representative to discuss the error.

"The board made no decision Monday night on whether to release the company from its bid," Collins said. A special meeting was set for next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Park School to consider the middle school question.

If Branagh is not held to the bid, the contract for the school at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue probably will be awarded to Dickman Construction Co. of Mountain View for $2,592,00. District engineers had estimated the school would cost $2.6 million.

The Mill Valley School District board also:

HANDICAPPED — Agreed to cooperate with the Child Center of San Anselmo on developing a program to evaluate the district's educationally handicapped program.

STUDENT TEACHERS — Approved a student teacher agreement with San Francisco State College.

TRANSFERS — Approved the transfer of two Richmond students to the district because their father studies at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary and their mother works there.

CLOSED SESSION — Met in closed session to instruct its negotiating team on salary discussions with the Mill Valley Teachers Association. Collins said the team would hold another closed session with the board Monday for further instruction.

Bid Refused On Stinson Beach Land

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District refused to award the bid on the sale of the nine-tenths-acre Stinson Beach school property Monday night because neither of two bidders reached the district's acceptable minimum price of $12,000.

According to Supt. Lester M. Horning, the two bids received were for $8,100 and $7,500. He said the board plans to call for bids on the site a second time at a date to be determined.

The Bolinas-Stinson School District Board Also:

JIM GILMARTIN

He's Irv Chapman, Alias Mr. Shoes

Golf Digest Magazine, the national pasture pool bible, has sent a giveaway contest entry form to shoe merchant Irving Chapman at his place of business.

Addressed to: "Mr. Chapmans Shoes, 1236 Fourth Street, San Rafael, CA, 94901," it's the same old "personalized" sales pitch for new subscribers.

Chapman's letter goes like this: "Your lucky number, Mr. Shoes, is LE3101. You may have already won a chance for you and another member of the Shoes family to escape San Rafael for the British Isles ..."

Continuing, the lengthy letter gushes enticingly, "Imagine, Mr. Shoes, leaving 1236 Fourth Street, San Rafael behind to spend 15 glorious days ..." etc.

Later on, the very personal letter explains: "Please keep in mind, Mr. Shoes, all prizes will be won in this giveaway."

Then The Sales Pitch

The letter also goes to great lengths to tell Mr. Shoes how a subscription to Golf Digest could lower his handicap "by 2, 3, 5 even 10 strokes!" To prove it, the letter listed these names and potential scores: "Billy Casper, 68; Sam Snead, 69; Deane Beman, 68; Chapmans Shoes, 67."

Mr. Shoes ... er, Mr. Chapman ... thinks the Golf Digest computer is a bit confused, but he got a kick out of it anyway, bless his sole.

AND WHILE we'r on this golf kick, it delights me to tell you the story of Mr. Peter Pantages of Corte Madera.

Mr. Pantages, accompanied by two friends, attended a meeting at the San Rafael Elks Club recently and purchased three chances in a drawing for a set of Wilson K28 golf clubs and leather bag.

Mr. Pantages generously gave each of his friends a ticket so it was a really a case of poetic justice when the ticket he kept for himself won the prize, val ued at an estimated $400.

And he can use the fancy sticks. An ardent golfer, Pantages also is publicity chairman for the Mill Valley Men's Golf Club.

Jackson Pays The Price

HONOR JACKSON, the ex-Tamite doing big things for U. of Pacific's football team, caught 7 passes for 120 yards and a touchdown in that 24-18 victory over U. of Texas at El Paso last Saturday, but paid a price for the stardom: A dislocated thumb.

JOHN DOLINSEK, the Novatan who for a long time this summer led the Southern League in hitting while starring for the Columbus, Ga. Astros, has slumped under .300 for the first time this year. Latest word out of the S.L. puts his average at .296. Jawn's 10 triples lead the league in that category.

The Terra Linda Trojans worked on blocking yesterday in practice for Saturday night's game at San Rafael against tough Riordan.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Terra Linda Has The Upper Hand

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Marin County Athletic League football season, 1970 style, may not be much of a race. The team at the top, Terra Linda, is likely to remain there for a fourth straight year. A state power, the Trojans seem better than last year when they won theMCAL crown.

Last Saturday night the blue and gold debuted with a 31-7 slaughter of Palo Alto. Don Lucas' charges have everything — size, speed, depth and experience .They also possess an intangible but highly important asset known as momentum.

If the Trojans should falter, however, no fewer than three teams will be waiting to claim the MCAL crown, and the league could turn into a free-for-all.

A clearer picture will begin to develop this weekend when all the rest of the league teams begin their pre-league practice schedules.

Only two clubs are considered no-contenders, and ironically, they tied each other for second place last season. Redwood, which lost 18 players from 1969 including four all-leaguers, will be the weakest it's been in years. For new head coach Phil Roark the coming season means a fresh start for the team that dominated the MCAL in the early sixties.

San Marin surprised a lot of people by posting a 6-2 record in 1969, the team's first year of varsity competition. But, like Redwood, the Mustangs lost four all-leaguers, and this year the picture looks bleak. Only 28 boys came out for the team, and it will take all of coach Bob Martin's know-how to make the Novato school's record respestable this season.

Three teams in the MCAL — San Rafael, Drake, and Tamalpais — are evenly matched, and any of them could give Terra Linda trouble.

San Rafael is, by consensus of league coaches, the best of the three. The Bulldogs have speed, numbers (16 lettermen), and a couple of offensve stars in quarterback Dirk Gansloser and flanker Scott Duncan. The team's passing attack, with Gansloser throwing to veteran receivers Duke Bessee and Doug Puskar, should be among the most effective in the league. Coach Bob Muster can look forward to a highly successful season.

Drake is another club highly regarded by opposing coaches. But where San Rafael depends on speed, the Pirates' strong suit will be size. Their line, the biggest in the league, will average over 200 pounds from tackle to tackle.

That line should give quarterback Rick Mason all the time in the world to throw.

Perry Stretches Shutout Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gaylord Perry refuses for even one second to talk about his chances of winning the 1970 National League Cy Young award but he has to be thinking about them now that he has 21 victories with three more starts remaining.

The hard-working righthander who celebrated his 32nd birthday, stopped the Atlanta Braves on four hits Tuesday night for his third consecutive shutout as the San Francisco Giants chalked up an easy 8-0 victory.

EASY

The nine scoreless innings gave Perry a string of 29 and he made it look ridiculously easy as he ran through the Atlanta lineup in 104 pitches and in 2 hours and 9 minutes. With 298 -2-3 innings in the can already Perry figures to beat his N L leading 325 innings worked in 1969.

"Please don't ask me anything about winning awards," Perry said. "I'm just happy to be pitching and winning. I don't want to think about anything except my next start."

In winning his 21st game Perry tied Bob Gibson of the Cardinals for most victories in the N.L. and a couple of more victories should put him in the running for Cy Young Honors.

EXTRA DAY

Perry was given an extra days' rest since winning his 20th game and both he and manager Charlie Fox agreed it made a difference in his performance against Atlanta.

"An extra day off at this time of the season makes a lot of difference," said Perry. "I really needed the time off and I was happy to get it but I didn't ask for it."

Perry gave up a double and single to Rico Carty and two singles to Mike Lum. He didn't walk a man and struck out only two, which is low for him.

"I don't care about strikeouts," Perry said. "It's outs," Perry said. "It's better to get them to hit my pitch and get them out that way. It saves a lot of wear and tear and if you win what's the difference."

Alan Gallagher hit his fourth big league homer in the fourth for a 4-0 lead and the Giants put the game out of reach with four more runs off reliever Bob Priddy in the eighth.

INTREPID WINS

America's Cup Double Protest

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)—A hearing by the New York Yacht Club's racing committee today will either verify the opening America's Cup victory by Intrepid or disqualify the 1970 defender and award the race to the challenging Gretel II of Australia.

Bob Bavier, helmsman of the winning 1964 Constellation and moderator at a post-race press conference Tuesday, said in his opinion the race would not be resailed.

OPINION

"My guess is that the race will be awarded to the skipper whose protest is upheld," Bavier explained. "In that case, the race will not be resailed."

Both skippers, Jim Hardy of Gretel II, and Bill Ficker of Intrepid, hoisted early protest flags and the red banners flew for the duration of the race won by the United States' defender in five minutes, 52 seconds.

The committee can disallow both protests, or find one of the skippers right.

Hardy asked for a lay-day to clear sea water from his winches and Ficker expected to spend today washing Intrepid's sails and making some minor steering adjustments prior to Thursday's second race.

CLOSE

The actual race was close for the first two legs, with Intrepid grabbing a two-second lead at the start, boosting the margin to 1.03 at the first mark and 1:08 at the second leg.

Two unfortunate occurrances killed Australia's chances for making the race close at the finish. The Aussies lost time following the first turn when Gretel II's spinnaker became fouled as the sail wrapped itself around the headstay and could not unfurl. The blue and white spinnaker looked like an hourglass running out of time.

SHORT LOSS

The disciplined Aussie Crew, however, managed to hoist a matching sail and lost only five seconds along the four-mile stretch. Gretel II then lost a crewman as Paul Salmon was hit by a wave on the rain-slicked deck and fell overboard. Hardy made two passes at picking up his water-logged crew member and lost approximately two and one-half minutes. Sir Frank Packer's second entry into America's Cup racing reached the third marker behind the speeding Intrepid.

Never having lost a race in its original form, the redesigned Intrepid did not falter on the fourth leg as Ficker, the 42-year-old Newport Beach, California architect, increased the margin to 4:11 and added more than two minutes on the fifth leg downwind to make the final turn 6:15.

NOT BOTHERED

Gretel II closed again in its windward specialty and reduced the final margin to 5:52.

Ficker, unlike an Intrepid Syndicate spokesman who complained that the U.S. Coast Guard failed to police spectator boats properly, said he wasn't bothered by the fleet of onlookers.

A Powerful Year For Campaneris

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bert Campaneris is approaching the conclusion of his strangest season in the major leagues.

Oakland's slender but muscular shortstop, never known prior to 1969 as a power hitter, enabled the A's to split a doubleheader with Milwaukee Tuesday night by slugging a pair of home runs. Oakland won the nightcap 6-5 after dropping the opener 1-0.

20 HOMERS

Campaneris now has 20 homers, leaving him tied in that department with burly Sal Bando and one behind powerful Reggie Jackson. He has 58 runs batted in to place fourth among the A's in that category.

The home run and RBI totals are Campy's highest in his seven-year major league career, yet his batting average has not taken a corresponding dip. In fact, his current mark of .279 is better than his previous career high. He also leads the American League in stolen bases.

Campaneris homered with a man on and two out in the ninth to pull Oakland from a 5-4 deficit to a nightcap victory. He had given the A's their first run of the game with a bases empty blast in the third inning.

BEST GAME

Skip Lockwood, formerly a member of the A's farm system, hurled the best game of his major league career in the opener to blank Oakland on only two hits. Dave May drove in the winning run in the fifth inning against A's starter John Odom, who fired a five-hitter but suffered his seventh defeat compared to eight wins.

The A's remain eight games behind first place Minnesota in the American League West. They close their series against the Brewers with a single game tonight. Diego Segui (10-10) of Oakland pitches against former teammate Lew Krausse (13-16).

Getting Wound Up With Sports Watches

Well, I see where some guy got rich making Spiro Agnew watches. Now they're making Ronnie Reagan watches and Richard Nixon watches. You're nobody till somebody winds you.

I expect some entrepreneur to move into the world of sports with his wrist watches soon, and here is what we may expect:

THE PETE ROSE watch — put it on and it runs so fast, every hour is only 30 minutes long and it never needs winding.

THE WILLIE SHOEMAKER watch — put it on and it gains on the JOHNNY LONGDEN watch.

THE WALTER ALSTON watch — put it on and it explains the infield fly rule.

THE BOBBY BONDS watch — put it on and it always strikes three.

THE FLOYD PATTERSON watch — put it on and it keeps falling down every 10 seconds.

THE SONNY LISTON watch — stick it in a corner and it'll quit.

THE JIMMY JONES watch — doesn't do anything for the first 57 minutes, then catches up and goes past itself in the last three.

THE MAURY WILLS watch — put it on and it steals other watches.

THE DON SUTTON watch — the dial is actually a gopher.

THE JOE NAMATH watch — can only be seen in the dark.

THE RICHIE ALLEN watch — the big hand is a martini glass, the little hand is a champagne bottle, and it hiccups on the hour.

THE JIM BOUTON watch — squeals round the clock.

THE FRANK HOWARD watch — the big hand is a glove, the little hand is a ball falling out of it.

THE GEORGE ALLEN watch — has 70 minutes to the hour.

THE WOODY HAYES BIG TEN FOOTBALL COACH watch — knows what time it is but won't tell you, and has removed the hands in case you spy.

THE DEACON JONES watch — a 2-for-1 bargain, comes with the quarterback of your choice wrapped in his arms.

THE MERLIN OLSEN watch — an alarm clock, set it and it gives you a clout along the helmet at the time you want to be awakened.

Then, there's the LLOYD BRIDGES watch which works only under water, the WILT CHAMBERLAIN watch which dunks the hour, and the POLISH OBSERVATORY watch which gives the right time but the wrong century, and the LEO DUROCHER watch which is rated "R".

Dope Scandal Hits Weight Lifting Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Five of the first six finishers in the first two events of the world weight lifting championships here, all from Iron Curtan countries, were disqualified Tuesday after tests revealed the athletes had taken amphetamines.

The weightlifters. two each from Poland and Hungary and one from Russia, were disqualified after urine tests made on the top three finishers in flyweight and bantamweight competition revealed "not just a dab of drugs but a great deal, and there were no borderline cases," said a tournament spokesman.

JUST ONE

The only top preformer through the first two days of competition to pass the test was bantamweight champion Mohammed Nassiri of Iran. Flyweight winner Sandor Holczreiter of Hungary was one of those disqualified.

The urine tests on Monday night's top finishers, which included Poles Mecislav Nowak who won the featherweight title and teammate Jan Wojnowski who finished second, were expected to be made public today.

Two Poles and a Hungarian were the top three finishers in the lightweight competition Tuesday night and were given urine tests immediately after the event.

WINNERS

Zbigniev Kaczmarek of Poland won the event and Waldemar Baszanowski, a teammate and defending champion, was second. Janos Vagocs of Hungary was third.

The announcement brought angry rebuttals from the foreign delegations. In statements made through a translator, Arkady Lenz of Russia charged there was the possibility of a "frameup."

"It was with deep regret that we learned about the farce staged before the 1970 world championships," said Lenz. "One wonders about the so-called fairness when the five disqualified people were all from behind the Iron Curtain."

Januz Przedpelski of Poland said his country's delegation would withdraw unless the decision is changed. Lenz said his group would "reserve the right to withdraw."

DISPUTED

Lenz, Przedpelski and Dezso Toth of Hungary disputed the test analyses with claims the tubes of urine were not sealed and were taken to a hospital laboratory by only one person.

"It looks like a frameup," Lenz said. Soviet athletes have a "long tradition of pure sportsmanship," he added.

The Hungarian team physician, who was not identified, said his country's athletes "didn't use this. It couldn't happen. This (dope) is forbidden in Hungary. We will do everything we can do to have the decision reversed."

International weightlifting president Clarence Johnson of Detroit said, "naturally we will

McCloughan Survives Raider Cut

OAKLAND (UPI) — Former all-leaguer Kent McCloughan, hard pressed to regain his place in the heavily populated secondary of the Oakland Raiders, has survived the final roster cut prior to the club's regular season opener.

McCloughan was assured of a role in Oakland's 1970 plans Tuesday when defensive backs Jackie Allen and Howie Williams were among four players waived by the Raiders.

TAXI SQUAD

Allen, a second year pro from Baylor, was picked up by the Buffalo Bills along with rookie tackle Art Laster of Maryland State. Williams, a nine-year veteran from Howard University, remained eligible for the taxi squad along with second year tight end Lloyd Edwards of San Diego State.

The slender, exceptionally swift McCloughan perfected the bump-and-run style of pass defense in his rookie year of 1965. As he advanced to all-league acclaim in 1966 and 1967, his defensive style became a trademark of the entire Raider defensive backfield.

INJURY

Sidelined by a knee injury all of 1969 and much of 1968, McCloughan was under pressure to win his job back from left corner Nemiah Wilson. Ironically, Wilson had the best year of his career in 1969 after coming to Oakland and adopting McCoughan's technique.

Coach John Madden has chosen to leave his stingy Soul Patrol secondary intact by keeping Wilson in the starting lineup.

Eagles Release Ex-49er Mira

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

PHILADELPHIA — Quarterback George Mira, for five years a frustrated reserve with the San Francisco 49ers, has been released by the Philadelphia Eagles.

Mira was placed on irrevocable waivers Tuesday.

He had been traded to the Eagles in 1969 for offensive lineman Randy Beisler and a future draft choice. Both Beisler and the drafted player, John Isenbarger, still are on the San Francisco roster.

In other football news:

STANFORD — Reserved seat tickets for next month's Stanford-USC football game already have been sold out. The game Oct. 10 is expected to be a pivotal factor in determining the 1970 champion of the Pacific-8 Conference.

The 18-year-old senior was suffering from heat prostration when he was rushed from practice at Lindale High School to Tyler Medical Center.

Boxing

NEW YORK — Referee Davey Feld was carried kicking and struggling out of Madison Square Garden by 10 uniformed policemen just before last night's bout between Floyd Patterson and Charley Green, won by Patterson.

Feld had been assigned to referee the bout, but trainers for both fighters objected to having him officiate. Tony Perez was named as a substitute, and when Feld tried to climb into the ring he had to be ejected.

Horses

Eighty-six endurance horseback riders competed Saturday in the Drake's Bay 50-mile round trip at Point Reyes sponsored by the California Endurance Team. Entries came from Nevada and all over California, according to Walt McLarreans, officer of the newly formed California Endurance Team.

FOOTBALL

Coach Bob Franceschini insists this will be a building year for Drake, but other MCAL coaches think otherwise.

The most mysterious team in the league will be Tamalpais. If Indian coach Mike Davlin had 18 lettermen like he was supposed to, the Mill Valley team would rate a solid choice for second place. Only 11 veterans and 27 players altogether showed up, however, and Davlin is faced with a question mark where an exclamation point had been.

Yet what they lack in quantity, the Indians make up for in quality. Clifford Hall, Bill Washington and Mark Costello are as good a set of backs as the league has to offer, and tackle Bill Rudolph should be an all-leaguer.

Besides depth, the biggest obstacle for Tam will be trying to find a first class quarterback. Three veterans are fighting for the job, but none has exhibited star qualities. If they can solve that problem and stay free of injuries, the Indians could be near the top.

The last team to be considered, the Novato Hornets, rate with San Rafael as one of the best passing clubs in the league. All-league candidate quarterback Marty Morowski will be throwing behind an all-veteran interior line to another possible all-leaguer, end Dave Judnick.

The Hornets figure to be a high scoring club that will give everybody trouble, but most of the league coaches do not rate them in the top four.

It appears, then, that San Rafael, Drake and Tam have the best shots at Terra Linda. But the Trojans may be unbeatable this year. They have a strong, balanced offense, and a rock-hard defense. And their depth is amazing. They have first rate talent at every position, something no other club can claim. If last Saturday was an example of things to come, the Trojan dynasty will be secure in 1970.

All MCAL teams will see preseason action this weekend, all except Terra Linda for the first time this season.

On Friday, San Marin will journey to Alameda for a game against Encinal at 3:30 p.m., Drake will be at Petaluma High at 8, and San Rafael will host Washington of San Francisco at 8.

Games scheduled for Saturday include Montgomery of Santa Rosa at Novato at 1 p.m., Redwood against Sacred Heart at Washington High School in San Francisco at 2, Tamalpais at Salesian in Richmond at 8, and Riordan of San Francisco vs. Terra Linda at San Rafael at 8.

Taylor Is 49er Starter

San Francisco waived three players Tuesday, including starting right corner Johnny Woitt, to make Taylor a first stringer beginning with Sunday's regular season opener against the Washington Redskins.

THREE CUTS

Woitt, a third year pro from Mississippi State, was cut from the active roster along with second year wide receiver Leo Johnson and rookie linebacker Carter Campbell.

Taylor, a rookie from Boston University drafted No. 2 on the first round, has been second string behind Woitt throughout the preseason. But coach Dick Nolan hopes speed and instinct will help Taylor neutralize his own inexperience.

Woitt came to San Francisco as a free agent in 1968. He fought hard to make the active roster but did not start a game until Kermit Alexander was injured for a couple of contests in 1969.

TRADED

Alexander was traded to Los Angeles prior to the 1970 season, leaving the job to Woitt and Taylor.

Johnson was drafted on the sixth round from Tennessee State in 1968. However, he did not make the active list until 1969, when he served almost entirely on the special teams.

Campbell, a quick but slender prospect from Weber State, was drafted on the eighth round.

Woitt, Johnson and Campbell all are eligible for the San Francisco taxi squad.

Doves Triumph

The Doves defeated the Bar, 7-4, Cain's Tires edged Suburban Auto, 4-3, and Fairfax Shell got by Foust Chevron, 7-6 last night in San Rafael adult softball league games at Albert Park.

Pirates' Victory Puts 'Em On Top

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates feel they won the most important game they have played so far in the three-cornered National League East race.

"I was a little apprehensive before the game," admitted Manager Danny Murtaugh after the Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-3, Tuesday night. "We lost a real tough one in Chicago Sunday and you never know how a team will react."

'CRITICAL'

Bill Mazeroski and Willie Stargell also admitted Tuesday night's game was "critical" because of Sunday's 3-2 ninth-inning loss to the Cubs.

"We could have gone either way but we went for the best," said Mazeroski.

Stargell sent the Pirates off in front with a three-run homer in the first inning and Mazeroski and Rich Hebner also homered in Pittsburgh's 12-hit attack. Luke Walker struggled with his control for five innings during which time he walked seven batters but the Pirates had a 5-2 lead by that time and Dave Giusti pitched the last two innings for the save.

The victory enabled the Pirates to complete the day one full game ahead of the Cubs and Mets with a .534 percentage. The Cubs have a .527 percentage after beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 while the Mets dropped to .527 after losing a night game to the Montreal Expos, 5-4 in 11 innings.

The Houston Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds, 9-2, the San Francisco Giants downed the Atlanta Braves, 8-0, and the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Diego Padres 5-4 in other NL games.

In the American League, was Baltimore 6 Washington California over Minnesota, 5- after a 7-5 loss, New York ov Boston 8-6 and 3-2, Clevelan Detroit 3, and Oakland o Milwaukee 6-5 after a 1 defeat. Chicago at Kansas Cit was rained out.

SANTO HOMERS

Billy Williams drove in tw runs with a pair of singles an Ron Santo hit his 25th home for the Cubs, who dealt Stev Carlton his 19th loss. Ke Holtzman allowed nine hits an all three St. Louis runs in th eight innings with Phil Rega pitching the ninth.

John Bateman's bases-fille single off Ron Herbel climaxe a two-run 10th-inning ral which gave the Expos the victory over the Mets. It was bitter loss for the Mets, wh tied the score 3-3 on Dav Marshall's homer with two o in the ninth and took a 4-3 lea on Tommie Agee's homer in th 10th. Jerry Koosman wil pitched the tying run home the Expos' 10th.

BOATING

Coast Guard Lists Safety Equipment

By STAN DAVIES

There are so many agencies talking about boating safety that there is frequently confusion in the minds of many boating people as to what safety equipment is required by law and what equipment is merely a good idea. Well, I'm sure that most people know that the law demands that every boat carry one approved life preserver, buoyant vest, ring buoy or buoyant cushion for each person on board. But undoubtedly many think their obligation ends there.

TO HAVE a clear understanding of exactly what your boat should carry in the way of safety equipment as required by law, obtain a copy of the official U.S. Coast Guard Recreational Boating Guide (CG-340). The booklet costs 45 cents and can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

There is a tremendous confusion in the minds of many boat operators concerning the required safety equipment as these questions I've been asked indicate:

Q. Buoyant cushions are a lot cheaper than life jackets. Are they as good?

A. They're just as good to sit on. However, as lifesaving devices, I think they have a very limited use. A lot of people share this belief. Ths cushions will not keep your head out of water if you should pass out from exposure — a common eventuality in boating accidents in our cold northern waters. Under these circumstances there is no substitute for the very best life preserver.

Q. I brought home three jackets from Europe (Britain). Are they acceptable here? here?

A. No. The word approved in the Act means that life jackets acceptable on American boats have to be approved by the U.S. Coast Guard. Otherwise they don't count.

Q. Must we have a life jacket for our six months old baby?

A. The law says each "person" aboard; it doesn't mention age; and Webster says a person is an "individual human being." And that includes your baby. However, there are various sizes of life jackets and buoyant vests and the smallest may not be a good fit for your baby without some extra tying tapes. Fit is very important for safety.

Q. I just bought a 26 foot inboard boat. It has no bell but I'm told it should have one. Why?

A. The bell is a fog signal. If your are anchored you must ring it for five seconds every minute.

Q. I am going on a wilderness trip in my collapsible boat. Should I take along flares?

A. They are not required by law but taking them along is a terrific idea, especially daytime orange smoke flares. If you do get into trouble they can be seen for miles and will bring help quickly.

Q. What kind of a life jacket is best for canoing?

A. None is required by law and learning how to handle a canoe is pretty good safety device in itself. It won't sink. Apart from that, a good life jacket would be a comfortable one that could be worn for long periods.

Q. I consider a bailer essential on a boat. What's a good kind?

A. I think the best of course is a pump. But a very effective bailer can be made from a big tin can, or from a one gallon plastic bottle —the type that has a handle. Cut the bottom out of the bottle, leave the cap on and use the handle in a scooping fashion.

Nice Guy Patterson Is Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—The doctor was waiting to examine the gash still oozing blood over Floyd Patterson's left eye. But first the two-time heavyweigh' champion had to convince his mother that the cut was just a nick.

"It's nothing," he said consoling her. "I never cut in my fights, and this is just a cut I got in training a couple of weeks ago, and it got reopened out there."

BOOED

For a few moments, however, as the crowd of nearly 11,000 at Madison Square Garden hooted and booed, it looked like the cut might end Patterson's comeback try against Charlie "Devil" Green after a two-year layoff. Dr. Harry Kleiman stepped into the ring and looked at the cut after it was opened in the fifth round, but then he let the fight continue.

With blood streaming dow his cheek, Patterson final' ended the bout himself b knocking out Green with only 6 seconds remaining in the 10 round.

DOWN TWICE

In the first round, there was Patterson on the canvas twice, wrestled and bulled down by his opponent instead of being dropped by punches. And while he tried to pull himself up by using a rope from the ring, the 28-year-old Green stood on his toes and punched Patterson in the back of the neck while the angry crowd went wild.

Patterson, a gentleman until the final knockout punch, merely held out his gloves, sort of an apology for falling down.

And not even the cut could stir the 35-year-old fighter's ire. "He (Green) opened it with a punch," Patterson said, "but it got aggravated by an accidental b' "

"It was a butt that opened it, too," Patterson's trainer, Ernie Fowler, said softly in the back of the dressing room. "It was so bad that the doctor could have stopped it right there."

SPRAWLING

In the eighth round, Patterson had figured out Green's barroom bouncer technique and cracked over a flurry of punches that sent the 2-1 underdog sprawling through the ropes cnto the ring apron. Instead of stalking to a neutral corner to await the count, Patterson helped Green to his feet, probably convincing Tony Perez, rushed in at the last moment as a substitute referee when there were objections to the original official, to call it a slip.

Finally, in the last round, Patterson whipped over a short left to Green's heart. Green went down in a heap and barely missed getting up before the count of ten. It was Patterson's 47th victory and 36th kayo against seven losses and a draw in 18 years while Green's mark dropped to 13-7.

Increased Attendance

SAN FRANCISCO — California League baseball attendance increased by nearly 30,000 over figures for the previous season.

Evan Perry's Great Sons

By JACK HANLEY

Evan Perry raised obth of his sons, Jim and Gaylord, to be pitchers. That he did a good job is evident in their records, particularly this season when the Perry brothers both won 20 games.

That's never happened before in baseball history. Neither the Coveleski brothers, Harry and Stan, nor the Dean brothers, Dizzy and Daffy, won 20 in the same season.

Evan Perry found time to pitch semi-pro ball between crops of tobacco, corn and peanuts on his Williamston, N.C., farm. He also found time to teach his sons how to pitch. The Perry brothers were the pitching staff one year of the Williamston High School team and Williamston won the state title.

AT AGE 19 in 1956, Jim signed with the Cleveland Indians for a modest bonus. At age 19 in 1958, Gaylord signed with the Giants for $90,000.

By 1960 Jim was an established star with the Indians. Indeed, he led the American League that year with 18 wins. Jim's quick success prompted a story that Cleveland got the pitching Perry and his younger brother got the bonus money.

Gaylord was called up from Tacoma by the Giants in midseason 1962 after opsitng a 10-7 record with a 2.48 ERA in the Pacific Coast League. He appeared in 13 games for the Giants during their 1962 pennant year. His 3-1 record looked good but his 5.23 ERA was, to say the least, disappointing. In 1963 his 1-6 record and 4.03 ERA both were disappointing.

GAYLORD INITIATED spring consultations with Jim. They saw a lot of each other in the spring because both Giants and Indians trained in Arizona and played a score of exhibition games.

The spring meetings between the brothers ended after 1963. The Indians traded Jim to the Twins who trained in Florida.

IN 1964 Gaylord first showed promise of becoming a big winner. His control, always good, became pinpoint sharp. He walked only 43 in206 innings He allowed only two earned runs in one 45 inning stretch. He pitched 10 shutout innings against the Mets and got the win in the 23 inning thriller of May 31, 1964. Still, his 12-11 record was that of a .500 pitcher.

In 1965 he wasn't even a .500 pitcher. His control was still sharp but now he was grooving the ball. In one seven game stretch he was whacked for 10 homers. He wound up 1955 a most disappointing 8-12.

IN THE spring of 1966 Gaylord, upon the insistence of Giant pitching coach Larry Jansen, discarded his three-quarter delivery and became an over-the-top pitcher. Jansen also taught Perry a slider and on his own Perry developed a super-sinker which the umps effectively stopped this season as a grease ball.

When Gaylord became a 20-game winner in 1936 for the first time, he was asked ir he still called his brother for advice.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Diversity Aiding Company's Outlook

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you comment on National Gypsum? Do you think earnings will cover the dividend this year? R.C.

A. The 15 per cent increase in housing starts in July was the third consecutive monthly gain in this figure, an encouraging development for any building-related company. The seasonally adjusted July rate of 1.59 million units was reached well ahead of predictions by Michael Sumichrast of the National Association of Home Builders, who projected that a 1.6 million unit-rate would be achieved by year end. National Gypsum, plagued by reduced sales, competive price discounting and higher costs, reported earnings for the first half at 35 cents a share, down from 63 cents in 1969. Aided by increased gypsum gypsum prices in the East, earnings for the full year should reach $1.10, particularly if housing starts continue strong. Although dividend coverage would be narrow, supported by National Gypsum's strong financial position, directors are expected to retain the $1.05 annual payment rate. President Colon Brown expects sales, including results of newly acquired mobile home manufacturer, DHM, will reach $415-$425 million this year. The long-range recovery potential in these shares is much improved as a result of a better outlook for the industry and diversification into the rapidly expanding mobile home field.

Q. I invested in Emery Industries at 22 for growth. It has declined over 50 per cent. Should I sell or hold? B.V.

A. A leading producer of fatty acids and organic chemicals, Emery Industries' impressive growth record was interrupted in 1969. While sales and earnings had increased consistently since 1961, higher raw materials costs and reduced consumer demand lowered profits last year and in the first quarter of fiscal 1970. Although earnings may continue to slide for at least another quarter, long-range potential is encouraging. Company has nearly completed a $35 million expansion program designed to increase capacity, particularly of products with higher profit margins. Start-up expenses may penalize profits initially, however, the enlargement will place Emery in a good position for the upturn in consumer spending expected later this year. Hold shares.

Market Takes Winning Tack Late In Date

With about an hour to go, the Dow Jones Industrial Average showed a gain of 2.74 at 753.29.

Of the 1,495 issues crossing the tape, advances topped declines, 718 to 478.

A four-hour turnover of 8,770,000 shares compared with 7,410,000 shares traded at a similar period a year ago.

Analysts said much of the initial setback was a spillover from yesterday's session when the market was largely influenced by the strike at General Motors.

Other analysts said concern over the impact of the General Motors strike on the economy and Middle East unrest "formed background for a downward technical correction" on Tuesday following recent sharp advances. But they observed the correction "may now be in the final stages", and that the list may be poised for a new rise.

Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's said the "basic propellant for the market has been the expansionary policy of the monetary authorities."

Smerling said "plenty of money" is on the sidelines and on any corrective retreat some of it "finds its way into the market."

William Nelson of Moody's Investment Service said he is "cautiously optimistic" about the market's near term prospects, primarily because of easier credit conditions. He said he believed lower interest rates would lead to a turnaround in the economy — "no boom, just a slow recovery."

Electronics and oils showed scattered strength, the two groups which led the recent upswing. Most other major stock groups traded narrowly.

Among the most active issues were Telex Corp., Pitney-Bowes, Computer Sciences, Occidental Petroleum and Natomas.

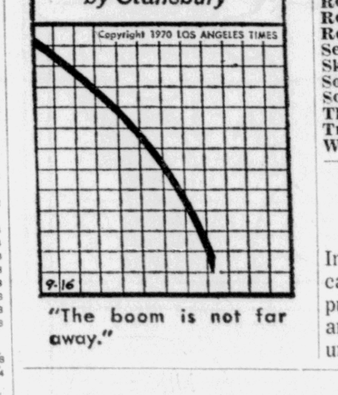
Spokesmen for Natomas and Computer Sciences said they knew of no specific reasons to account for the activity in the stocks.

Prices gained in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Russ Togs Closing Plants To Cut Costs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russ Togs Inc. has closed two manufacturing facilities in Florida and Pennsylvania and plans to close down its Andrew Geller Shoe Salon in New York.

Eli Rousso, president, told a meeting of security analysts Monday the closings are part of a cost-cutting drive. He said the apparel maker "for the time being (is) not seeking acquisitions."



"The boom is not far away."

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Alter Ego Cuts And Styles Both Men's And Women's Hair

A new hair cutting and styling shop for both men and women has opened at 175 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, across from the Country Club Bowl.

Owner young Keith Perry of San Anselmo calls his shop Alter Ego and keeps it open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. through the week and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

He was previously with the Gay Nineties International Barber Salon at Northgate for two years and has acquired a string of several first place prizes in California and Northern California competitive cutting and styling events.

This is his first venture in his own business.

THERE IS A NEW OWNER for Rosemary's Hair Styling at 413 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Mrs. Rosemary Bigel is moving from Marin and has sold to Mrs. Joy Blackmore Sparrow of Mill Valley. She previously worked at Rosemary's as a hair stylist, but for two years has been living in Idaho.

She will keep the same name of the business, the same hours. She has with her Mrs. Maite Alaman of Corte Madera.

A NEW SCHOOL Montessori de Terra Linda, has opened in the Education Building of the Christ Presbyterian Church at 620 Del Ganado Road, Terra Linda. Activities will be guided by Miss Judith Flynn, who received her credential from the London Montessori Training Center.

June H. Lord, administrator for Montessori de Terra Linda, is beginning her third year as administrator for the Ross Academy montessori School in Ross. Mrs. Angela Gonsman of San Anselmo, recently arrived from England where she was trained in the Montessori organization, is new directress at the Ross Academy.

NEW at 115 Third Street, San Rafael is G and S Fiberglass Repair and Refinishing.

This business, owned by Marvin Gelder and Jerry Simpson who spend most of their time out on jobs, is headquartered at Channel Boat Sales. This uses the same telephone number, but is separately operated.

JACK VIDANO of Kentfield has been appointed a vice president of Abrams Realty. His first assignment is as manager of the newly opened branch office at 910 Grant Avenue, Novato. Before joining Abrams he had his own company in San Francisco. He has been a broker for eight years.

I.F. (SCOTTIE) HARDIE of San Rafael will observe his 25th anniversary with Bank of America on Friday. He has been senior credit review officer at Santa Rosa regional headquarters since last year after 14 years of credit responsibilities in San Francisco headquarters. He spent his entire banking career in San Francisco until moving to Santa Rosa last year.

ACCORDING to a new study by Stanford Research Institute and the Center for the Continuing Study of the California Economy, Marin County will have the second highest rate of growth in retail sales of the Bay Area counties in the period from 1968 to 1975. Its 67 per cent gain will be topped only by Santa Clara County's 73 per cent. Third and fourth in line will be Contra Costa with 66 per cent and Sonoma with 65 per cent.

Add another five years to that period and Marin's 1968-1980 increase is expected to reach 140 per cent.

And if you stay around long enough you should see more jobs too — one more by 1975 for every four in 1968 — and three more for every four by 1980.

Investor Affairs Office Suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the world's largest brokerage firm has called for establishment of an "office of investor affairs" within the White House Council of economic Advisers to improve communications between Wall Street Main Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Donald T. Regan, president of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, told a meeting of the National Press Club that such an office "could act as surrogate for all those unpresented shareholders, and as a clearing house for information and analysis — a place where all interested and affected parties could get the facts."

With the establishment of ,,such a high level meeting ground, we might even see the exercise of some statesmanship — a word not usually associated with Wall Street," Reagan said.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 16, the 259th day of 1970.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

American historian Francis Parkman was born in 1823.

On this day in history:

In 1630 the Massachusetts village of Shawmut changed its name to Boston.

In 1893 the Cherokee Strip in Oklahoma was opened to homesteaders. More than 100,000 persons rushed to the area to claim land.

In 1963 the nation of Malaysia was created.

In 1969 President Nixon announced another 35,000 servicemen would be withdrawn from Vietnam.

A thought for thd day: Mark Twain said, "there are several good protections against temptations but the surest is cowardice."

Hijacker Draws 50-Year Term

PECOS, Tex. (UPI)—Joseph C. Crawford pleaded guilty to hijacking a jet airliner at knife point and was sentenced Monday to 50 years in prison.

"This is a terrible crime of an extremely serious nature which I thought you should be made aware of," U.S. District Judge Ernest Guinn said as he pronounced sentence.

Crawford hijacked the plane July 27, 1969, from the Midland-Odessa, Tex., regional airport. He permitted the pilot to return to Midland where the passengers disembarked. He then ordered the plane flown to Cuba.

Trump Opening Lead Lets Kantar Win At Least Two More Tricks

Even among the experts at a national tournament there are misguided souls who lead trumps simply because they're in doubt about what to lead. In one hand played in the Life Master Pair Championship a trump opening lead gave Los Angeles expert Edwin Kantar two or three tricks more than most other experts made with his cards.

LIMITED RAISES

Don't be misled by North's response of three spades. Kantar and his partner were playing "limited" jump raises, and I suspect that North had one of the low clubs mixed with the spades. Most of the experts bid two clubs with the North hand, but my readers are entitled to know what the experts bid even when their bids are somewhat peculiar.

Kantar played dummy's eight on West's opening lead of the three of spades. East put up the nine, and south won with the queen. Declarer next led the ace of spades, unblocking with dummy's ten.

READS THE LEAD

After some thought, Kantar concluded that West would not have led a trump from J-x-x. After more thought, Kantar decided that West's reason for leading a trump had been the hope of protecting strength in all three side suits.

With this in mind, Kantar led the low club from the South hand and tried a finesse with dummy's nine. When this succeeded, he led the deuce of spades from dummy. East followed with the five, and declarer tried a finesse with the six.

The finesse worked, and Kantar drew the last trump and ran the clubs, making 11 tricks.

At most tables, West opened the king of hearts, and the defenders took a heart, a trump, two diamonds and sometimes even a club.

A defender who is too obvious about trying to hold on to everything may manage to hold on to nothing.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ — 10 8 2
♥ — A 4
♦ — 10 6
♣ — A 10 9 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no-trump.

The six-card suit should provide four or five tricks even if partner has very little club length or strength. A raise to two no-trump is sound with 8 points when you have no suit length, but would not do justice to this hand.

Hostages Now Seen As Bargaining Counters

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Prospects for early release of 54 hijack hostages held in Amman by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine faded today as the guerrilla movement united against King Hussein and his imposition of full military rule on the country.

Guerrilla sources said it was clear that if civil war broke out the hostages, most of them American, would be turned into bargaining counters between the two sides. Hussein himself was reported shocked at the hijackings.

The Popular Front, which was suspended from membership from the Palestine Central Committee, was reinstated today as the guerrillas united under Yasser Arafat, the Al Fatah leader. The Central Committee groups all 11 major guerrilla organizations.

The guerrilla statement that hostages would become bargaining pawns came after Hussein tightened martial law, set up a military government and prepared for a showdown with the guerrillas.

The Vatican City magazine L'Osservatore Della Domenica expressed fear that the taking of hostages through hijackings could touch off big power interventionl in the Middle East and undo what has been achieved in 20 years of struggle against colonialism.

However, the United States in particular has stated it has no plans to intervene. The guerrillas have warned that the lives of the hostages would be imperialed if any military action was taken against them.

In London, British officials said there was reason to believe some progress had been made toward establishing the guerrillas' terms for releasing the hostages, but there were no details. Diplomatic sources said unofficial reports indicated the hostages were being reasonably well treated by their captors.

The International Red Cross sent two more delegates to Jordan today to try to ensure the safety of the 54 airline passengers still held hostage, and the powers concerned conferred again in Switzerland, indicating there might be hope the Red Cross would resume negotiations. The guerrillas condemned the Red Cross earlier this week as working for "imperialism."

Meanwhile in Zurich, a Swissair stewardess said today Arab hijackers stole $750,000 from a Swissair DC8 before blowing it up on a Jordanian desert airstrip Saturday.

The stewardess, Ursula Giger, said in a Swiss television interview the pilot of the plane turned the money over to the hijackers after they pointed a pistol at his head and told him they would shoot him unless he told them where it was.

"Naturally he had to hand over the money to save the lives of the passengers and crew," said Miss Giger, who was a crew member on the hijacked aircraft.

She did not say why the money was on board or where it came from.

Miss Giger said the guerrillas did not take valuables from the passengers, though they did keep some of the passports they took.

Golda Meir Heads To Key Nixon Round

Four supersonic F4 Phantoms escorted the prime minister's commercial El Al jetliner as it swung out over the Mediterranean. She was aboard a regularly scheduled flight.

The cabinet and diplomatic corps lined up on a red carpet to bid Mrs. Meir farewell as she inspected air force cadets while the four Phantoms screamed overhead at treetop level. She told newsmen, "All I have to say to you is shalom (peace). Perheps I will have some good news for you when I come back."

Passengers traveling on the same flight as Mrs. Meir were searched before boarding the aircraft. The plane itself was under guard all night and security men kept watch on all flights arriving at or leaving the airport.

As the premier began her mission, an Israeli military spokesman denied a report in The New York Times alleging Israeli violation of the Suez cease-fire.

"We deny, as the embassy in Washington has already denied, there has been any Israeli violation of the cease-fire. Everything that is being done, is being done within the framework of the cease-fire standstill agreement," he said.

During a 20-minute refueling stop at London's Heathrow Airport authorities mounted stringent security precautions. Mrs. Meir did not leave the aircraft during the stop but Israeli Ambassador Michael Comay went to the airliner to talk with her.

Political sources regarded Mrs. Meir's scheduled White House talks with President Nixon Friday as the most crucial visit to the U.S. by an Israeli leader since Israel was born 22 years ago. The two leaders met last Sept. 25 in Washington.

The 72-year-old grandmother premier will present Nixon with the largest military "shopping list" in Israeli history and will ask for credit for the first time in efforts to save Israel's dwindling dollar reserves.

The request for sophisticated military equipment, including additional supersonic F4 Phantom fighter-bombers, will be coupled with a plea for $1 billion in economic aid over five years.

Despite recent diplomatic uneasiness between Washington and Jerusalem, Israeli officials hope Nixon will be more amenable to the military requests than he was last year when considerable hedging on a bid for 25 Phantoms led to Israeli fears of an American closed-door arms policy similar to the British and French embargoes.

Police said yesterday the store was entered through a broken bathroom window. The cash register was moved into the bathroom, but not opened. The break-in was discovered shortly after 7 p.m.

Reading, Lights May Bring On Seizures In Epileptics

Van Dellen

Epileptic seizures usually develop spontaneously and often occur when least expected. They may take place when sleeping, driving a car or shopping. Some victims have discovered what precipitates their attacks, and a few develop seizures only in certain situations.

The most common of these unusual stimuli are flashing lights. A convulsion develops after the individual watches television, especially when the picture flickers. Youngsters have been able to bring on an attack by looking at the sun and waving the palm of the hand before their eyes. Certain types of music are blamed for seizures in some people.

READING EPILEPSY, one of the latest, occurs after prolonged reading, silently or aloud. It begins with twitching of the jaw, which gradually increases and is followed by a generalized convulsion. If the book is set aside, the twitching may stop, and there is no fit.

Abnormal waves are noted when the victim reads while attached to the brain wave machine (electroencephalogram). In reading epilepsy, the subject matter is unimportant, although attacks are more likely to occur when the reader is concentrating. Sometimes light, nonsensical reading material will activate the attack.

AUTHORITIES DISAGREE on the modus operandi of reading epilepsy. Some believe movements of the eye are responsible. Others blame the gradual, increased twitching of the jaw, which occurs initially in almost everyone with this type of epilepsy. Emotional reactions also may play a role.

Epilepsy is, perhaps, one of the most baffling of all neurological disorders. The majority of those afflicted are physically and mentally normal. The only positive finding is in the brain wave test; abnormal impulses fire off spontaneously or are provoked by fever, emotional stress, hyperventilation, reading or a flickering light.

'SPOILED' CHILD

Mrs. D.S. writes: My mother in law said that if we continue to pick up our baby every time he cries, we will end up with a 'spoiled' child. Is she right?

REPLY

Not necessarily. The baby develops a sense of love and security if he is picked up when the diaper is soiled or he has "gas" or cramps. On the other hand, it may be necessary to let the child "cry it out" when it is time to sleep.

FAT AND ARTERIES

H.R. writes: How long does it take for fats eaten at dinner to reach and damage the arteries?

REPLY

Fat shows up in the bloodstream within an hour after it is consumed. But we are not certain when or how the arterial wall is affected by this substance.

BOOTIES FOR BABY

A reader writes: On a chilly day, does an infant under one year of age need booties if he is wrapped up in a blanket?

REPLY

No, because the circulation in the hands and feet of an infant is better than in the older child or adult.

OPERABLE CANCER

C. T. writes: Is cancer of the prostate operable?

REPLY

Yes. However, in many instances, estrogenic hormones keep the condition under control for 10 or more years.

SMALLER LIPS

L. R. writes: Can any salve be rubbed on the lips to make them smaller?

REPLY

No savvy. Large lips usually are on an hereditary basis.

Sausalito Rejects Outdoor Music

The center, which had outdoor amplified music from an adjacent baseball field during the Sausalito Arts Festival over the Labor Day Weekend, was seeking to have it on unspecified Sundays, 1 to 10 p.m.

Residents of nearby Lincoln Drive said the surrounding terrain makes a built-in amphitheater from which the sounds of rock music bounced for three days.

Children couldn't sleep, and the sound was unbearable, neighbors contended.

After a sometimes heated one-hour discussion the council approved planned unit development in a single-family area, over the protests of about 15 residents.

David Hunter was granted a variance to have a planned unit development on a three-acre site on Santa Rosa Avenue near Glen Drive, which could have up to 22 units in a cluster.

Residnts contended that putting 22 units on the site would create traffic hazards, change the character of the neighborhood and would in effect be "spot zoning."

Hunter contended that under the plan he would build on less than 11 per cent of the land and leave the remainder in open space, whereas if he had to build single-family homes he would have to cover 35 per cent of the land, and do more harm to the hillside.

Without planned unit development, he would be entitled to build 20 single family homes, Hunter said.

Residents said the hillside was too steep to build 20 single family homes,and one man said Hunter was asking to "put 22 units where there is no road on a cliff."

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt said the planned unit development wasn't a change in zoning, and "would allow an option for something a little different" than the usual subdivision layouts.

Councilman Robin Sweeny pointed out that the council approval was only to permit planned unit development, and specific plans for the housing would have to be presented later for council approval.

The planning commission had approved the concept, and the council approval came by virtue of taking no action, in effect support of the commission decision.

Second Free Alto Rubbish Pickup Set

Residents of Alto will get an additional free rubbish pickup once a year, the board of directors of the Alto Sanitary District has been told.

Director Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported that the board was told Monday that the additional pickup had been negotiated with Mill Valley Refuse Service, which contracts for garbage disposal in Alto. As a result, there will be two pickups a year instead of one, Heynen said.

The board negotiated the pickup after the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association complained that residents of Mill Valley get two pickups a year while Alto residents get only one.

Heynen said the board also will accept requests from property owners to further review rate charges and additional pickups by the refuse firm.

The sanitary district board also gave permission to Bala and Strandgaard Engineers to reroute a sewer line to allow construction of a drainage culvert at Patricia Lane.

Priest Arrests Boys In Theft

Two 13-year-old Novato boys were arrested yesterday after they were caught by a priest taking money from the collection box of Our Lady of Loretto Church, Novato police reported today.

One was cited to juvenile authorities and the other booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of burglary, police reported.

Rev. Charles Farrell made citizens arrests of the two at about 3:45 p.m., according to the report.

PLEA GETS AID FOR WRONGED YOUNG MAN

A young man, found innocent in court of any traffic violation, appealed to the Sausalito City Council last night to reimburse the cost of towing his car away.

Geoffrey Rubin of 7 Excelsior Lane explained that he was given a traffic citation for his parking on Aug. 12 and his car was towed to a service station.

Since he was found innocent in court, "it follows that I was wrongfully towed," and should recoup the $20 tow charge from the city, Rubin said.

While the city was referring the claim to City Atty. Leland H. Jordan for study, Rubin was handed $20 by Sally Stanford.

San Anselmo Eyes New Sign Laws

The San Anselmo City Council last night worked its way through the first three articles of a proposed sign ordinance, but added only minor revisions to the proposal.

Alfred C. Kaeppel, city administrator-controller, said today the revisions were not substantial despite three hours of discussion.

The council changed its next meeting on the ordinance from tomorrow to Sept. 29 at 8 p.m. at the city hall, Kaeppel reported.

New Twist In KRON-TV License Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Two private detectives testified Tuesday they found romance when they were hired to investigate a man who challenged the license renewal of KRON-TV.

The detectives said they were retained to determine the motives of Albert Kihn, of Mill Valley, a former KRON cameraman who complained the station slanted broadcasts in favor of its parent company, the Chronicle Publishing Co.

Detective Tom Wichelmann told the FCC hearing that since this spring he has been dating Kihn's babysitter, identified only as Karen. However, he said he had not talked with her about the dispute.

The other private investigator, Henry Orwitz, said he had gone to interview a friend of Kihn's and wound up dating her and buying her red roses and a vase.

Both insisted their investigation was conducted with extreme discretion. They denied they had asked anyone about Kihn's sex life.

The hearing is to determine if the investigation constituted coercion, intimidation or harassment. The detectives were hired by the station's legal counsel.

Motorists visiting New York are finding they have to pay from $7 to $9 for overnight parking.

Center For Distraught In Marin

A Marin County suicide prevention center has been launched by a group of citizens, but the actual telephone counseling service will not go into operation until next year.

Deputy County Coroner Keith C. Craig, chairman of an ad hoc committee to set up the suicide prevention program, said articles of incorporation were signed Monday and will be sent to the Secretary of State in Sacramento for official registration.

"The next step is to find a facility for the round-the-clock telephone counseling service," said Craig. "We hope operations can open on Jan. 1."

Next meeting for the group has been set for 4 p.m. Monday at the Marin Civic Center. At that meeting, appointments will be made for the publicity and facilities subcommittees, and raising of private funds will be discussed. "We're looking for private funds because it will be two years before we can qualify for Short-Doyle funds," Craig explained.

Among those who signed the articles of incorporation were Craig, Rae Taub of Mill Valley, Sheila Cerofeci of San Francisco, who works in San Rafael, Charles Johnson of Redwood Chapel in Novato, the Rev. Hugh Hardin Jr. of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael, and attorney James Kennedy of San Rafael.

The purpose of the suicide prevention center is to provide telephone counseling all hours of day and night for distraught persons who want advice or someone with whom to talk about their problems.

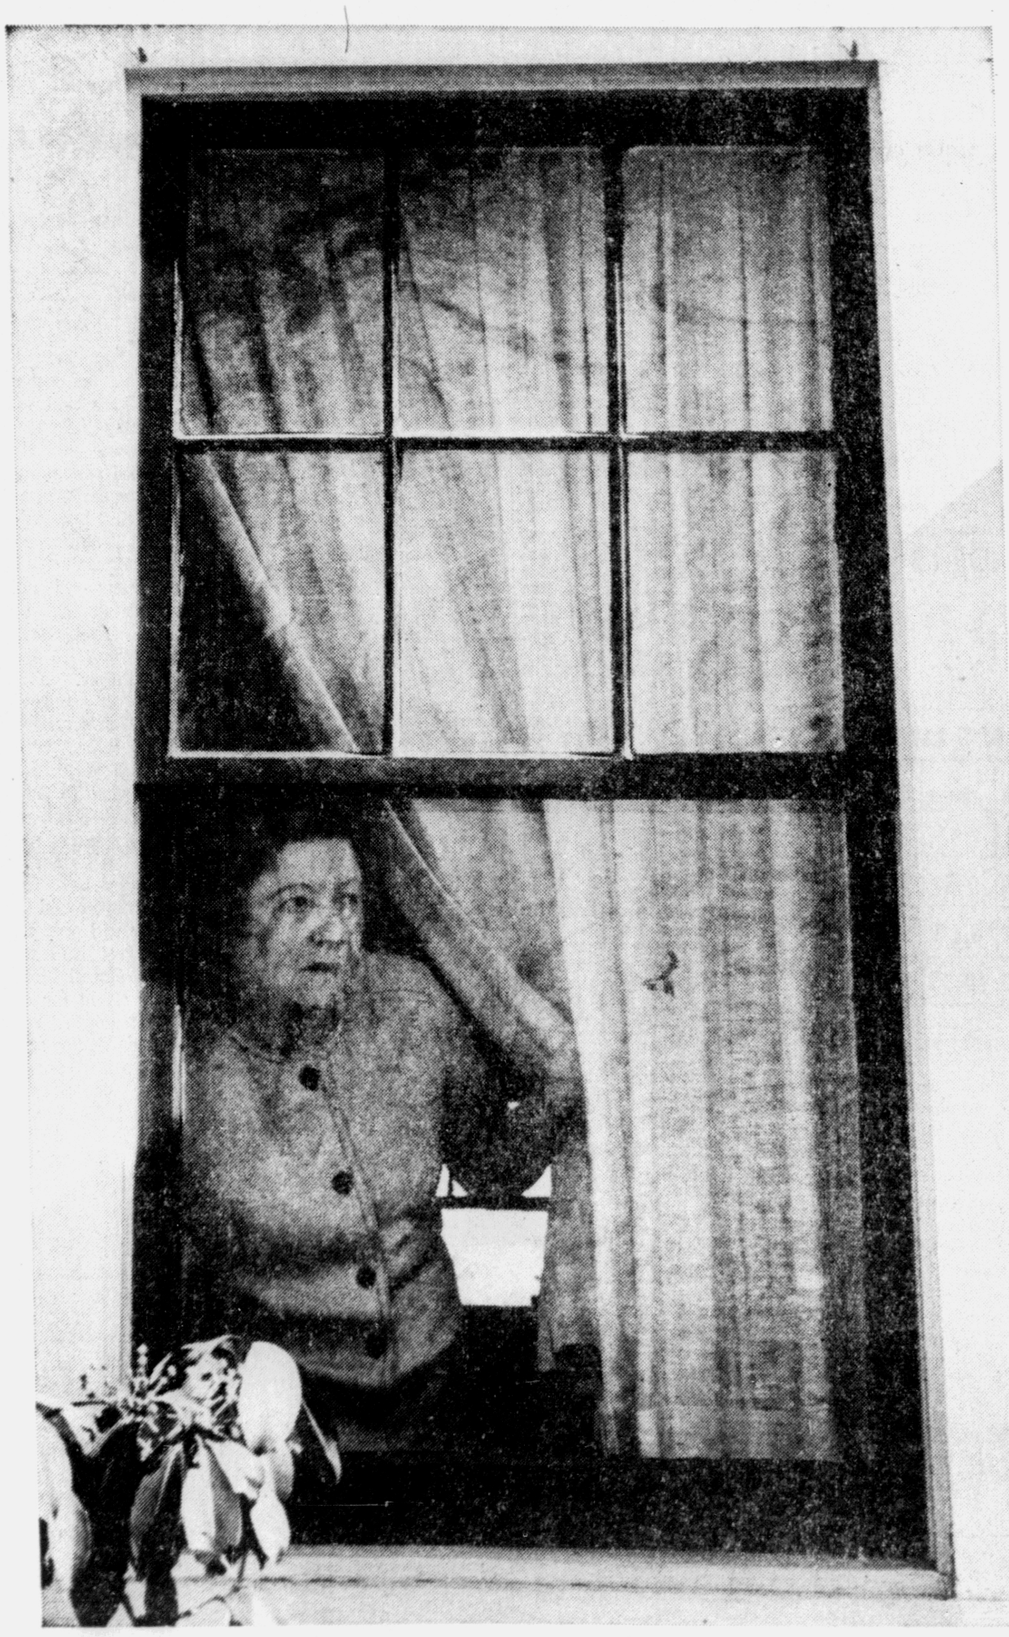
If our TV repairman says he'll be there on Thursday, he'll be there on Thursday or the cost of the labor is on us.



We know there are few things more maddening than waiting around for a repairman who never shows up.

So when we make a promise at ServiceAmerica to show up, we keep the promise. Or you keep the price of the labor involved in fixing your TV set.

Now while we're on the subject of fixing your TV set, you might be interested to know that our repairman can fix hundreds of different makes and models. Virtually any set ever made.

Further, our trucks carry enough parts that we expect to be able to fix 8 out of 10 sets right where they sit.

(When we present you with a bill we'll also present you with a thorough explanation of what everything cost.)

And so you'll know that what we fix is fixed, we'll give you a 90 day warranty on the parts we use. And a 15 day warranty on us.

Of course, if you'd rather save yourself some money, we have special walk-in facilities so you can come to us instead of us coming to you.

If you're strong enough to lift your set, lug it in and we'll do our level best to have it ready for you to lug home again within 48 hours.

ServiceAmerica. Here's where you can find us:

Right now we have five locations in and around the Bay Area. Call for home service or bring your set in.

Sylvania doesn't make them fast
Sylvania just makes them good

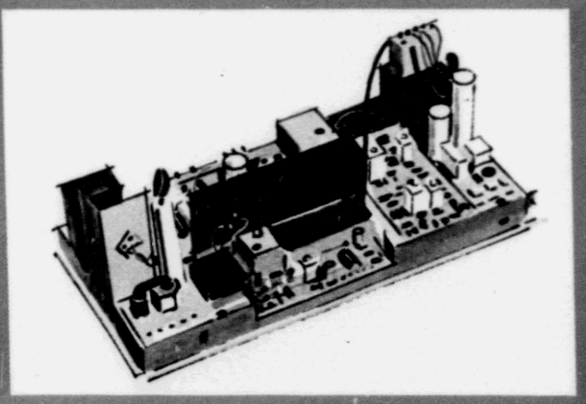
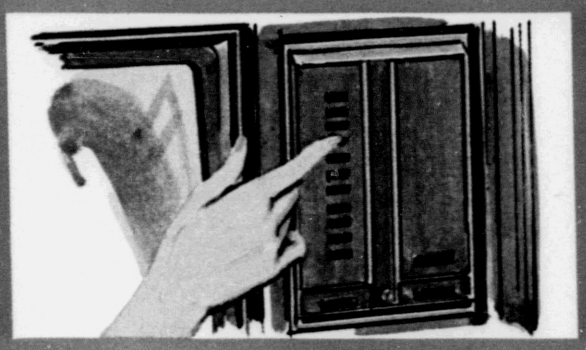
NEW DIMENSIONAL COLOR

A sharper way of looking at things. Brightness and contrast combined for the sharpest big picture tube in the business. New Dimensional Color brings together every technological advance. Sylvania developed rare-earth phosphors for pure, natural colors. Wrap-around black composite for high contrast. The Sylvania patented "dusting process" offers an inherent brightness advantage. Every active electronic part is produced directly by Sylvania. The experience of over 40 million picture tubes is represented in New Dimensional Color.



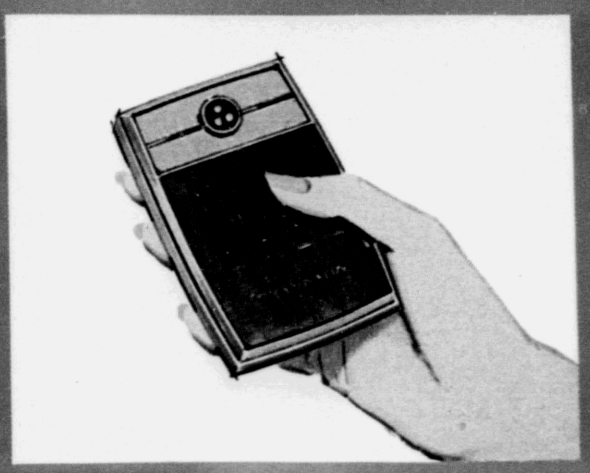
100% SOLID STATE GIBRALTAR™ CHASSIS

The most reliable color television chassis ever designed. All tubes have been eliminated...and so has a lot of wasted heat and power. Two years of performance have proved the first generation Gibraltar™ Chassis to be 350% more reliable than any previous Sylvania chassis. You can expect even more from the all new 100% solid state Gibraltar™. Plug-in transistors simplify service. An exclusive 4-stage IF amplifier automatically adjusts the signal for maximum color. You'll enjoy greater picture sensitivity...better performance. A new solid state high voltage tripler offers long-life performance.



INSTANT PUSH BUTTON TUNING

The most convenient, reliable and modern tuning ever designed for television. Only your finger moves. You can automatically select and tune any one of 11 VHF and UHF channels in any sequence. Instantly...the perfectly tuned picture is there! Switch from channel 2 to 83 at electronic speeds. VHF and UHF stations can be pre-tuned interchangeably. Mechanical parts have been eliminated... replaced with reliable solid state electronic circuits. No more knobs to turn. Manual fine tuning each time a channel is changed is virtually eliminated.



TUNE IT IN FROM WHERE YOU WATCH IT

Sylvania Chairside Color Control allows you to tune your set the right way—from where you watch it. You can switch channels, 2 through 83, from anywhere in the room. EARLY MORNING FISHING BONANZA

Fishermen pulled in striped bass as fast as they could get their lines in the water this morning near Elephant Rock in Tiburon. A sea gull, too, looks for fish through the early morning mist hanging over Angel Island, while fishing boats hover in Raccoon Strait. Several Marin sport fishing operators said they were surprised by the magnitude of the bass run, which they expected to last for another two or three days.

King Places Jordan Under Military Rule

Fear Of Civil War From Hussein's Newest Policies

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — King Hussein imposed full military rule on Jordan today and placed his army under Marshal Habes Al-Majali, considered by the Palestinian guerrillas to be ther implacable enemy. An army-guerrilla showdown — with the danger of civil war — appeared imminent.

The guerrillas united under Al Fatah leader Yasser Arafat, and although he issued a "don't shoot" order, he accused Hussein of playing into the hands of American-backed Zionists and possibly opening the way to an Israeli invasion of Jordan.

The sleepy desert city of Amman was quiet but tense. There was no shooting and the army was not in evidence, but ragtag members of the guerrilla civilian militia — their armed forces — patrolled the streets with rifles slung over their shoulders, sweat staining their T-shirts in the hot sun.

In Cairo, Egyptian foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said Tuesday night the United States scuttled its own Middle East peace initiative by supplying Israel with additional military aircraft.

Riad called on the Big Four powers to cement the shattered New York peace talks headed by U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring and said Egypt would continue to honor the 90-day Suez Canal cease-fire which began Aug. 7.

He told a news conference Egypt also would continue to seek a peaceful solution to the Middle East conflict and said its hopes were pinned on Big Four implementation of the November 1967 Security Council resolution which called for Israel to withdraw from nearly all the territory occupied during the 1967 conflict.

And at the United Nations the Arab nations condemned Israel's arrest of 450 Arabs as "unlawful" Tuesday and said Israel violated Geneva Convention accords pertaining to the treatment of civilians in

Lyon, Thompson Are Elected To Sausalito School Board

Two Sausalito men, Robert R. Lyon and Robert A. Thompson, have been elected to fill two vacant seats on the Sausalito School District board.

Lyon, an insurance executive, and Thompson, an attorney, defeated two Marin City candidates, Royce McLemore, a housewife, and Robert E. Fisher Jr., a student and counselor at the College of Marin.

Final unofficial returns including absentee ballots showed Thompson with 955 votes, Lyon with 917, Fisher, 631 votes, and Mrs. McLemore, 596. Fisher and Mrs. McLemore lost heavily — by a more than 2-1 margin — in all four precincts in Sausalito, but won handily in the only Marin City precinct.

At the polls, Sausalito voters gave 368 votes to Fisher, 791 to Lyon, 310 to Mrs. McLemore and 813 to Thompson. In Marin City the vote was: Fisher, 258; Lyon, 96; Mrs. McLemore, 282, and Thompson, 107.

Thompson, who received the most votes in the election, will complete the unexpired term of former trustee C. Gerald Clear, which runs until 1973. Lyon, who will finish the term of former board member James E. Muldoon, will be up for election again next April.

Clear and Muldoon resigned this summer after the successful recall of trustees David E. Freeheim and Martha Freebairn-Smith. Lyon, the new trustee, is a former chairman of the Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, a group which sponsored the recall.

Lyon said he was "very pleased" with the results of yesterday's vote. "I think the weight of votes indicates people are looking for education of children, as opposed to political and militant philosophies," he said.

Thompson said he was "delighted at the strong expression of voter feeling that the job can be done. "I'm very grateful we had as much support as we did from Marin City," he added.

During the campaign Thompson had urged voters not to "split the ticket" and to vote for both him and Lyon. He indicated on several occasions that he did not feel he could work with

Gravel Dredging At Jenner Killed

By C.P. McCARTHY

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday killed, at least for the near future, plans for a gravel dredging operation at the mouth of the Russian River at Jenner.

The supervisors voted, 4-1, to uphold an appeal of a board of zoning adjustments decision granting a use permit to Northern California Aggregates for the dredging operation.

The sole dissenter yesterday, chairman Robert Theiller, said he favored denying the appeal while adding a 14-page list of conditions to the use permit.

The permit would have been subject to further conditions set by the North Coast Regional Water Resources Control Board, Theiller said.

But Sonoma Supervisor Ignazio A. Vella said that plan was comparable to the Marin County Board of Supervisors action in approving flood control plans for Corte Madera Creek subject to whatever conditions the Army Corps of Engineers might want to impose.

He compared the Marin board's action to Pontius Pilate washing his hands of the whole affair.

"The corps of engineers decided to do exactly what the board let them do," he said, "and then the people cried to the board of supervisors, 'Why did you do this?' "

Vella said the supervisors could attach conditions to the permit, and also make it subject to conditions set by the water resources board, the corps of engineers, and the Department of the Interior, but when people

Residents Protest At Ferry Review

There were charges last night that the Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry service to downtown Sausalito is turning the city into a "tourist trap," and a "Coney Island."

The complaints came as the Sausalito City Council reviewed the ferry operation which began Aug. 15 with its temporary terminal south of the ferryboat Berkeley. (Other Sausalito City Council stories, page 42.)

Council chambers were packed with an overflow crowd of more than 70 persons as residents protested that the ferry has been serving the tourist more than the commuter.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, said both the "mid-day recreation" and the commuter business were necessary to make the operation successful. "We can't operate just for commuters," he said.

Restaurateur Sally Stanford retorted: "I think it's a terrific thing for Sausalito. If you lose the tourists, you'll lose the people who support this town, and you'll be taxed to the hilt."

Councilman Wyman Hicks said the "city is being converted into a tourist trap," and while the ferry is making earnings for the bridge district . . . "It's we who have to pay. We are losing our city."

Councilman Stephen Fraser said when he voted to permit the ferry operation, "I voted solely to have it as a convenience to local residents."

Residents said there is now

DIANA THE DROPOUT

Changed Woman Returns To U.S.

By LUCINDA FRANKS and THOMAS POWERS

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

(Copyright 1970)
(Third of five articles)

The Diana Oughton who returned from Guatemala in the fall of 1965 was not the same young woman who had graduated from Bryn Mawr two years earlier.

Her family was bothered by her seriousness and a new air of melancholy present in everything she did. She seemed to have lost some of her sense of humor and her taste for clowning around.

After living in a single room with a dirt floor and no plumbing or electricity for two years, Diana found it hard to adjust to the luxury of the Dwight, Ill., estate.

Her college German professor, whom she visited upon her return, found her deeply distressed at the poverty she had seen in Guatemala. Others said she had become disillusioned with her country's role in Guatemala and increasingly critical of its policies elsewhere, particularly in Vietnam.

Diana moved into the Bohemian Powelton quarter of Philadelphia when she returned from Guatemala and deliberately lived an ascetic life. Her apartment contained a bed and a table and nothing else. Her cupboards were generally empty except for a stock of caviar, smoked oysters and other gourmet food sent by her mother.

She took a job teaching in a federally-financed adult literacy program but soon became disillusioned with the other teachers. She said they were tired professionals who had little interest in their pupils and were "just trying to pick up an extra 100 bucks a week."

In the spring of 1966, Diana left Philadelphia for Ann Arbor to enroll in the University of Michigan Graduate School of Education to get her master's degree in teaching. She was adamant about being on her own and at times tried to conceal her family's wealth. When asked what her father did, she often said, "Oh, he's a farmer," and quickly changed the subject.

"I don't want you to give me an allowance," she said in a letter in March 1967. "It is important to me to be on my own and to feel I can support myself and have responsibility for my own life . . . I think by age 25, I have the right to live the way I want without feeling guilty that my way of life upsets you."

Bond Vote Falls Short Of Approval

Although 60 per cent of the voters who cast their ballots in yesterday's $210,000 bond election in the Bolinas-Stinson School District approved the bonds, the measure fell short of the needed two-thirds majority. Final unofficial returns showed 256 of the district's 838 eligible voters favoring the bonds and 168 opposing them, according to Supt. Lester M. Horning.

Although the California Supreme Court recently struck down the two-thirds requirement for bond elections, Horning said certification still cannot be obtained for bonds which pass by a simple majority.

He said the state's bond attorneys, who must certify all bonds, are waiting for a U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the state court's decision "and I suppose we will have to wait, too."

Horning termed the vote "a show of confidence" and said he feels it is "unrealistic for a district to be required to get two yes votes to every no vote" to pass bonds.

It was the third time in three years that a bond issue to construct a one-campus school in the district failed to pass.

Horning said the district plans to go ahead with constructon of a new classroom building at Bolinas School (part of the bond construction package) with insurance money for Stinson School, unusable since a May arson fire.

Construction of a multi-purpose center at the school — which all the district's 185 students attend this year — and other remodeling and relocation of portable classrooms will have to wait, Horning said, as will land purchase which the bonds would have paid.

Mill Valley Approves School Bond Rate Hike

Mill Valley School District voters yesterday approved raising the interest rate on $760,000 worth of school construction bonds. The vote was 2,825 in favor and 1,079 opposed.

The 72 per cent yes vote (a two-thirds approval was required) means the district now may sell the bonds at up to 7 per cent interest. The old interest rate, set when the voters approved a $3.5 million bond package in 1967, was 5 per cent, but that rate is too low for the current bond market.

Some 3,904 voters cast ballots yesterday out of 13,086 registered voters, a turnout of 29 per cent.

The bond money will be used to construct the 1,200-student middle school being planned for Mill Valley.

Old Adobe Voters Approve Hiking School Tax Ceiling

Voters in Petaluma's Old Adobe School District yesterday approved an increase in the district's general tax rate ceiling and an increase in the allowable interest on previously approved bond issues.

Approximately 35 per cent of the district's 2,235 eligible voters cast ballots.

District secretary Ruby Miller said the measure to raise the maximum general tax rate from $1.90 to $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation was approved by a 497 to 296 margin.

The second ballot measure, to allow the district to pay 7 per cent instead of 5 per cent interest on $875,000 worth of bonds already approved by voters but still unsold, was passed by a 628 to 168 vote, more than the two-thirds majority needed.

One Killed At Scene Of Panther Flush-Out

The dead man was identified as Kenneth Michael Borden, 21, of New Orleans.

A police spokesman said the second gunfight broke out when a group of Negroes tried to firebomb a grocery store owned by Henry Broussard, who also owned the house the Panthers had been using as headquarters.

Four policemen were assigned to watch the store, the spokesman said, and the battle started as soon as the youths appeared.

Police said early today there was heavy sniper fire in the area during the fight, and they were not sure whether the youth was killed by a police bullet or a sniper.

Officers reported earlier, shortly before midnight, that three Negroes had been "wounded by police fire" and a fourth was "lying in the street. We don't know if this person is dead or alive."

The spokesman said police could not reach the man

Nixon Attacks Terrorism On Nation's Campuses

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI)—President Nixon warned Wednesday that colleges risk losing the support of the American people unless they curb the violence of "destructive activists" who terrorize students and faculty.

In some of his toughest remarks so far on radical dissent on campus, the President told a Kansas State University audience of 15,500 that responsible students and faculty must "stand up and be counted."

"Only they can save higher education in America," Nixon said. "It cannot be saved by government.

In a rare visit by the President to a college campus, he said if the problems students complain about—the war and pollution of the environment—were solved, "the moral and spiritual crisis in the universities would still exist."

Nixon spoke in the Kansas State fieldhouse before flying to Chicago for an overnight visit and a series of meetings with news media executives to explain his foreign policy. His speech was part of the Alfred M. Landon lecture series. Landon, who celebrated his 83rd birthday last week, introduced the President.

Dove Candidates Beat Veterans

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Democratic Reps. Philip J. Philbin of Massachusetts and George Fallon of Maryland, each a veteran of more than two decades in the House, lost to antiwar candidates Tuesday in their primary bids for renomination.

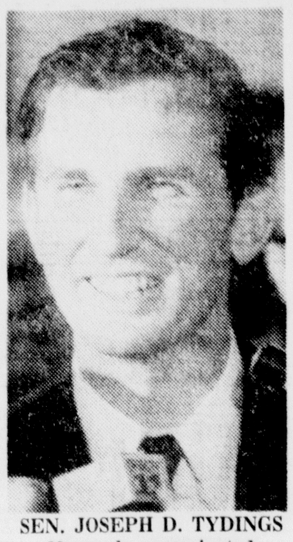
However, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., easily survived challenges of Negro antiwar candidates. Another Democratic incumbent, Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, narrowly won renomination in Maryland, where he was strongly opposed by the foes of his efforts to tighten federal gun laws.

Generally, incumbents and big names predominated as primaries were held in Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Oklahoma and Rhode Island.

In Massachusetts, the Rev. Robert F. Drinan, a Jesuit priest advocating immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, pulled a big upset over Philbin who has been in the House 28 years.

Fallon, a 26-year veteran and chairman of the house Public Works Committee, fell to the antiwar campaign of a Maryland state legislator, Paul Sarbanes.

In addition to Tydings and Jackson, two other incumbent Senators easily passed the primary hurdle — Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., who swamped his opponent, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who had no opposition.



SEN. JOSEPH D. TYDINGS
Narrowly renominated

There was little doubt before election day that Humphrey would take the Democratic nomination, but a good showing by black antiwar candidate Earl Craig Jr. would have seriously hurt any future Humphrey effort to be elected President, an election he lost to President Nixon in 1968.

Craig took about 20 per cent of the vote. Most observers had agreed that Humphrey would have been hurt if Craig had taken 30 per cent or more of the vote.

Craig telephoned congratulations to Humphrey late Tuesday, then said he would "have no further comments to make on the election this fall." But he said his statement "should not be interpreted that Earl Craig is dropping out."

Humphrey's opponent in the November election will be Rep. Clark MacGregor who easily won the Republican primary.

Humphrey promised "an active and constructuve campaign."

In Washington, Jackson took about 75 per cent of the vote to defeat black attorney Carl Maxey, a peace candidate. Jackson's vote total apparently was swelled by a heavy crossover of Republican voters who are allowed to vote in the Democratic primary under Washington law.

Maxey declined to say whether he would support Jackson in the general election. He charged Jackson's vote total was swelled by "a group of scared Washington voters," a reference to Jackson's strong military posture in a state largely dependent on a sagging military supply industry.

Jackson's opponent will be State Sen. Charles Elicker who won the GOP primary.

Tydings' narrow victory in Maryland over George P. Mahoney was attributed to strong opposition from gun groups. Tydings has sponsored gun control legislation, but said during the campaign that the National Rifle Association and others had distorted his position in an effort to defeat him.

Tydings will meet Rep. J. Glenn Beall Jr. in the November election.

Here is a rundown on other state elections:

Massachusetts: Josiah A. Spaulding, who opposed Nixon's war policies, won the right to oppose Kennedy in November. Spaulding won the GOP primary over John J. McCarthy, a backer of Nixon's policies. Boston Mayor Kevin H. White defeated State Senate President Maurice A. Donahue in a tight race for the gubernatorial GOP nomination to face Democratic Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

In Massachusetts' 3rd Congressional District, the Rev. Robert J. Drinan, a Jesuit priest advocating immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, upset hawkish Rep. Philip J. Philbin in the Democratic primary. Drinan now is favored to beat his Republican opponent for the House seat, State Rep. John A. S. McGlennon.

Maryland: Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel won renomination. He will meet C. Stanley Blair, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's former chief of staff. Each had little difficulty winning their contests.

Rhode Island: Attorney General Herbert F. Desimone won the GOP gubernatorial primary to meet Gov. Frank Licht who was unopposed. The Rev. John J. McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest, was unopposed for the GOP Senate nomination to face Pastore.

Oklahoma: David Hall, a former prosecutor, won the Democratic nomination for Governor in a runoff election marked by the lowest voter turnout in the state's history. Hall defeated Bryce Baggett. He will meet Republican Gov. Dewey Bartlett and American Party candidate Reuel Little in the November election.

Minnesota: Wendel Anderson, the Democratic Farmer Labor candidate for governor, was unopposed. Attorney General Douglas Head won the GOP gubernatorial nomination over three opponents.

Reds Tightening Noose On Trapped Cambodian Troops

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Communist troops north of Phnom Penh blew up two more main highway bridges today, tightening their noose on 4,000 Cambodian troops trapped by a surprise counter-offensive. In Saigon, the U. S. Command said 15 more U. S. helicopters had been shot down, 10 in a single battle in the Mekong Delta.

Reinforcements trying to get through to the surrounded eight battalions of Cambodians were halted. The task force at Svay Meas, 49 miles north of Phnom Penh, was blocked to the north by a Communist force which pushed it back early Monday from Tang Kauk.

Since Monday, four bridges have been blown to the south of the force, cutting off supplies and reinforcements.

Villagers fleeing south toward Skoun said Viet Cong were staying off Highway 6, the principal route to the trapped force, which was being patrolled by U. S. planes.

A military officer at Skoun said the force had enough food for a week and "sufficient" ammunition unless the Communists launched a heavy attack. He said the battalions could be supplied indefinitely by parachute drops.

The downing of 10 U. S. helicopters by Communist gunners in the marshlands near the southern tip of South Vietnam was one of the heaviest American helicopter losses in a single action of the Vietnam war, Allied military sources said.

At least two Americans were killed and three wounded, the sources said.

The U. S. Command reported the loss of three helicopters to groundfire elsewhere in South Vietnam and two others over Laos.

The Cambodians were cut off when North Vietnamese and Viet Cong hit behind them as they were stopped outside Tank Kuak on their drive toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 34 miles farther north. The Communists occupied the village of Tapeang Kak, about four miles south of the task force, and began to blow up the bridges.

In Phnom Penh, high command spokesman Maj. Am Rong said "the command is certainly very aware of the danger and every measure has been taken to avoid it (cutting off the troops) happening again." He said "it is not sure" whether the two battalions sent several days ago to help the Cambodian force had arrived at Tang Kauk.

Rong's remark about cutting lines of communication "again" indicated they had been restored, but there was no indication this was so. A UPI correspondent who tried to reach the government unit from Phnom Penh Tuesday reported that fleeing villagers told him not to go any further on the road because there were between 100 and 200 Viet Cong operating around Highway Six behind the task force.

The villagers said the Viet Cong were holding townspeople.

BART Delays

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit District's administration committee has postponed until Oct. 8 a decision on whether to participate in regional transportation planning.

Director Nollo J. Bianco of Richmond, who asked the delay yesterday said he opposed such action.

BART directors previously had promised that the first rail extensions to the system would be inside the district, in northwestern San Francisco, Pittsburg-Antioch and Livermore-Pleasanton.

Regional planning might endanger that arrangement, he said.

More Losses

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Officials of United California Bank disclosed early today that an audit of United California Bank of Basel AG, Basel, Switzerland, has turned up an additional $10 million in losses, bringing the total to about $40 million.

The executive committee of UCB, Los Angeles, board of directors received the report Tuesday night and authorized management to make up to $40 million available to depositors and creditors of its Basel subsidiary.

The losses, at first reported at some $30 million Sept. 7, were largely due to unauthorized commodity trading, mostly in cocoa.

Call From Nixon

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Nixon telephoned his congratulations to Robert DeNisco, the Brink's guard who foiled a hijacking attempt in San Francisco.

The call came while DeNisco, 34, was in Chicago's O'Hare International Airport Tuesday night en route to New York where he will meet with Brink's officials. Brink's has announced it will give the young air courier a $5,000 reward.

New Peking Envoy

MOSCOW (UPI)—Appointment of Valisi A. Tolstikov as ambassador to China was officially confirmed today and diplomatic sources said he would go to Peking "in the immediate future" to assume the post that has been vacant since 1966.

The 53-year-old Tolstikov, who is first secretary of the Leningrad area Communist party organization, has received Chinese approval, according to Chinese sources in Moscow.

Tolstikov was appointed in July to succeed Vladimir I. Stepakov, who was named to the job in April but was prevented by a heart attack from occupying the Peking embassy.

Terrorists Strike

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine terrorists today commemorated the 15th anniversary of the overthrow of former dictator Juan Domingo Peron by bombing the homes of prominent leaders, business establishments, a newspaper and the British Embassy residence.

Police said a total of 16 bombs exploded in various parts of the city. They mentioned no victims and did not calculate the damage.

One bomb exploded in the Finance Ministry across the street from the Casa Rosada government house. Another went off on the third floor of the newspaper La Nacion that is occupied by The Asscciated Press.

To Attend Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Viet Cong Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh said today she will attend Thursday's Vietnam peace talks, the first time in nine months the four negotiating teams will be headed by their leaders.

Sacramento Votes Against Tax Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—For the second time since June, voters in the Sacramento City Unified School District Tuesday rejected a measure to increase the district's tax rate.

Final semi-official returns show 21,184 votes for the proposal and 25,395 against it, with a majority required for approval. It also was the fifth time in the past 14 years that voters have opposed district requests for more money.

The measure would have raised the $5.18 rate by 98 cents per $100 of assessed property value. It would have provided $4.2 million in additional revenue to restore a number of programs eliminated last year.

Boss Not Needed

BONN (UPI) —Forty-six percent of West German workers questioned in a poll said that although they liked their boss, they thought the company would run as smoothly as ever even if "the old man" disappeared for two years, the Chamber of Industry and Trade reports.

TROUBLE AT THE COUNTY LINE

California Highway Patrol Officer John C. Watts looks over the remains of a moving van load which blocked northbound Highway 101 traffic for two hours today. The van, driven by Clayton Phillip Bell, 22, of San Lorenzo for Carlsen's Moving Co. of Oakland, rolled over and caught fire at 3:30 a.m. Bell was uninjured, but both northbound lanes were blocked until 5:30 a.m., and one until 7 a.m. with smoldering debris. The accident happened exactly on the Sonoma-Marin county line.

Rowdies Booted At Magee's Hearing

By MARY LEYDECKER

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ordered the makeshift courtroom at San Quentin cleared of demonstrators who ignored three warnings and arose shouting "power to the people" as Ruchell Magee was carried into the room.

Judge E. Warren McGuire had warned the 50 spectators that he would not tolerate demonstrations such as the one last Tuesday when Magee first appeared for arraignment on murder and assault charges stemming from the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center.

He said he would either order the courtroom cleared or would hold demonstrators in contempt of court and have them jailed.

Twice again he repeated the warning, once when a lone cry of "power to the people" went out as another convict was brought into court and again, just before Magee, who has refused to walk into court, was hauled in by two guards.

About 35 persons, most young and all white except two blacks, were ushered from the courtroom by plain clothesmen and San Quentin guards.

One young woman went limp and was dragged out by officers, and many shouted out in protest, "we want to see what's going on" and "this should be public," but the room was quickly cleared of the militants.

Magee turned and shouted at the group, "Protest in the street — that's where it's supposed to be done at . . . " after a guard who had put his hand over Magee's mouth removed it.

The demonstrators were not jailed but were marched out through the front gate by about 20 armed San Quentin officers and sheriff's deputies, many of them in riot gear. Some of the militants hung around outside the gate for a while but no further incident took place.

Inside the courtroom, once quiet was restored, the approximately 15 spectators remaining, including newspaper reporters and attorneys, heard Magee again shout lengthy protests to Judge McGuire.

At one point the judge told Magee if he didn't stop yelling, he was going to be gagged. Magee finally was quiet long enough to be arraigned.

The 31-year-old convcit, who is serving a life sentence for kidnapping and robbery, said that "I don't want to be yoked with counsel."

Magee, sole surviving convict of the abortive escape attempt in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons died, is charged under a section of the Penal Code which carries a mandatory death penalty.

A private attorney, Henry Ramsey Jr. of Richmond, who had appeared last week and said he might represent Magee, yesterday said that Magee did not want him as his attorney.

Edward Briggs Jr., deputy public defender, asked that his office not be appointed to represent Magee since members of the staff may be called as witnesses at a trial.

Magee, meanwhile, noisily and angrily insisted on reading parts of a demand that his case be transferred to federal court. Judge McGuire denied the demand.

"Mr. Magee is getting railroaded before he gets to trial," the convict claimed about himself, saying that he has served seven years in prison for a crime he did not commit and blaming his plight on attorneys.

He said that if he can't get a lawyer of his own choice, he wants to act as his own attorney.

Judge McGuire granted Magee a two-week continuance to try to obtain a lawyer through "his people." If the convict is not successful, McGuire will then be faced with making a legal decision as to whether Magee is capable of defending himself.

(Recent high court decisions have made it very unlikely that a person with no legal training would be allowed to act as his own attorney in a capital case.)

After having his legal rights explained and an indictment read to him, Magee left the courtroom with a final shout at Judge McGuire, accusing him of "railroading black people for years."

At least one other of the convicts appearing at yesterday's session in the prison courtroom where routine matters involving San Quentin inmates have been heard since the Aug. 7 shoot-out, was not happy over the makeup of the audience.

An attorney for Mark C. Osuna, facing retrial of the penalty phase of his murder case, described the audience as not looking "Establishment-oriented in general."

Rather than have his client tried in a setting that might provoke what he called a "confrontation game," Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles said that Osuna would waive his right to a public trial.

Osuna agreed with this, but Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said that Osuna's case, scheduled for the week of Oct. 19, would be public.

Osuna has been convicted along with Jack R. Gorman of slaying a San Rafael bartender during a 1965 Labor Day holdup. Both were sentenced to death but this part of the trial will be reheard.

greater congestion in the downtown area since there have been more visitors and no decrease in the downtown auto traffic.

Luehring conceded that visitor use of the ferry was heavy during the summer, but he felt that it will now drop off and commuter use will grow.

The service has reduced auto traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge, and the number of visitors arriving in Sausalito by ferry is insignificant compared to the number who arrive there by auto, he said.

The district is operating at the temporary terminal under a six-month permit and indicated in July it would have a north terminal in the Marinship area within about five months from July.

Luehring said last night one of the drawbacks to a Marinship terminal would be a longer running time to San Francisco, 45 minutes as compared to the present 30 minutes from downtown.

Councilman Earl F. Dunphy said the city was "committed for a six-month trial, and I for one am willing to stay for the trial."

Luehring said, "If it isn't helping and if you don't want it, my board will take it out. We're not trying to ram anything down anyone's throat. We're doing everything we can to make it a good thing, not a bad thing."

Councilman Robin Sweeny commented, "I happen to know a lot of satisfied commuters."

The strongest protests came from residents of an apartment at 30 El Portal, adjacent to the temporary terminal, who said the operation has disrupted their peace and privacy.

One woman said persons aboard the ferry "look into my window . . . and it's absolutely horrendous . . . you see people on the boat with binoculars."

William H. McDevitt of 30 El Portal contended: "Rather than reinstitution of a convenient, colorful and nostalgic old service, this operation is simply adding to the rapid conversion of Sausalito from a residential community to a Bay Area 'Coney Island.' "

Police Chief James D. Wright reported he hasn't noticed any decrease in auto traffic entering the city since the ferry started operating, but there has been more pedestrian traffic.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt reported that the bridge district "has given full emphasis to providing maximum service and convenience to noncommuters," and that the feeder service to the boat for commuters "has been sporadic and somewhat unreliable."

Because of the increased number of visitors the downtown has experienced congestion, previously only reached on special occasions such as when the Sausalito Art Festival was downtown.

Councilmen commented about the lack of commuters from the south side of Sausalito using the ferry, and Luehring said efforts would be made to increase patronage from that area.

Gerald J. Skibbins of 30 El Portal drew applause when he said that something had to be done about traffic congestion even if it meant restricting cars from the center of Sausalito.

One commuter backed the ferry boat saying, "I have taken it every day and it seems to be gaining in favor."

Mrs. Sweeny suggested that the city and bridge district staffs compile information about who is ridng the ferry, and then the council would devote a special meeting to the matter.

because of sniper fire. Later, residents of the neighborhood picked up the body and carried it to a police wagon. It was taken to a hospital, then to the morgue.

A resident of the neighborhood said earlier Tuesday the Panthers "just took over and moved in" to the house owned by Broussard.

"It's owned by some people who have a little store down the street," he said. "The people were afraid they'd be burned out if they said anything to anybody."

Police could not confirm whether the four blacks involved in the grocery store shootout were Panthers.

Some of the Panthers arrested earlier Tuesday vowed, "we'll be back tonight," as they were led away.

Twelve men and three women Panthers were arrested Tuesday morning after police exchanged rifle and shotgun fire with them, then flushed them from their sandbag-barricaded headquarters with tear gas.

either Fisher or Mrs. McLemore.

The new trustees, who will join Trustees Delta Christ, Nathaniel Johnson and Jerry L. Whitcomb, will be seated on the board next week, as soon as the official canvass of votes is completed.

Nearly one-third of Sausalito's 4,969 registered voters — approximately 1,550 persons — cast ballots in the election.

JENNER

don't like the dredging operation, "they'll come see us."

The carefully worded resolution passed yesterday cited a directive from the state water resources control board to the north coast regional board requesting it to prohibit waste discharges from the proposed dredging operation until studies of the effect on the aquatic environment could be completed.

Sonoma County Counsel Richard Ramsey estimated the studies would take up to two years to complete.

The supervisors' resolution said continuation of the appeal until the studies were completed would be unreasonable and might, because of procedural requirements, automatically deny the appeal and grant the permit.

The permit denial was made without prejudice to Northern California Aggregates, leaving the door open for the company to file another use permit application at any time.

The handful of persons who witnessed the board's action yesterday contrasted with crowds of up to 500 persons who had attended public hearings on the appeal which began in March.

Conservationists had warned of an ecological disaster if the use permit was granted.

Following action on the appeal yesterday, Petaluma Supervisor George T. DeLong introduced a resolution directing the state to take necessary steps to return the mouth of the Russian River to its natural state.

DeLong said the interference of man has caused the mouth of the river to be periodically closed, causing flooding and interference with fish life and recreational use of the river.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

Lot Requirements

MIDEAST

occupied territories.

A statement of the Arab group said the "recent arbitrary measures" taken by Israel in its roundup of Arabs over the weekend in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip added a "new dimension to Israel's policy of terror."

The statement was delivered to Secretary General Thant by Syrian Ambassador George Tomeh, this month's president of the group. It did not mention any link between the arrest of the Arabs and the recent hijacking of planes to a Jordanian desert airfield by Palestinian guerrillas.

The iron shutters of Amman's business houses, glaring white in the desert sun, were rung down as a general strike called by guerrilla sympathizers closed the stores one by one. By afternoon the strike appeared 98 per cent effective.

The new military government pledged to use an "iron first" to stamp out troublemakers who have threatened Hussein's throne and tried nine times to assassinate him. They appealed for a truce with the Palestinians but each side prepared for war.

Guerrillas, clad in checkered burnooses or khaki pants that looked like U.S. Marine hand-me-downs, manned roadblocks at the edge of the city, their leaders lounging with pistols thrust in their hip pockets. A committee of the Arab League was trying to arrange for talks between the two factions but had no immediate success.

The guerrilla armies were in control of the towns of Zerqa and Irbid, north of Amman and guerrillas said they were on "full alert." The Jordanian army with its tanks and superior weaponry also was alerted but the whereabouts of its units were not known.

Prospects for peace dimmed when the guerrilla movement said it did not recognize the military government and would not negotiate with it. They denounced it as Fascist and said Hussein's true nature had been unmasked. And they were unhappy because anti-guerrilla men were named military governors of the provinces.

Hussein tightened the martial law he first imposed on Jordan during the 1967 War—and which was never lifted. He spoke of the Palestinian conspiracy against his government and the division of his country and added: "We cannot allow this state of affairs to continue."

Hussein first fired civilian Premier Abdel Moneim Rifai and replaced him with Brig. Mohammed Daoud, a Palestinian who nonetheless is not popular with the guerrillas. And he named Al-Majali as military governor of Jordan and commander-in-chief.

The guerrilla militia was led by Brig. Abdel Razzak Yahya, who is general commander of the Palestine Liberation Army. Those forces were united under Aarfat who restored the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine to the full guerrilla movement.

The Front was suspended because it hijacked four airliners and blew up three of them on the Jordanian desert and one in Cairo. It still holds 54 hostages in Amman—and it was clear that they would become pawns between the government and the guerrillas if civil war flared.

The guerrilla forces held a few strongpoints in Amman but their main armies were massed in the northern outskirts and at the towns of Zerq and Irbid north of Amman where bitter fighting has flared for a week. A cease-fire reached Tuesday was never effective.

In fighting in June, the two sides were reported to have lost 1,000 men killed or wounded And in addition to his troubles with the guerrillas Hussein also faced revolt among his young officers who want to wipe out the guerrilla movement.

'Bridge' Victim Finally Identified

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The body of a young woman who plunged from the Golden Gate Bridge was identified by a man friend Tuesday as that of Constance Pann, 25, who had been a volunteer at the San Francisco Suicide Center.

Previously Mrs. Louise Reyes had mistakenly identified the body as her daughter, Sandra Stricker, 21, because of the young woman's physical similarity.

Miss Stricker, who had left home, telephoned the coroner's office, correcting that and saying she was working at a YWCA hotel.

Juan Garcia, a psychiatric counselor who identified Miss Pann, said she previously had attempted suicide and felt "overwhelmed by the alienation which exists in this society."

NIXON

dissidents interrupted the President's remarks with shouted questions and obscenities. Located directly across from the President they unfurled a sign saying "how many more will you kill."

As Nixon listed several recent acts of criminal violence the youths shouted "how about Kent State?" and "how about the ghettos?"

Although their number was small their voice in the fieldhouse enclosure was loud. But the applause of the predominantly friendly crowd drowned out the protesters when the President called for a willingness on the part of dissatisfied youngsters to listen to somebody without trying to shout him down.

Nixon said he was not suggesting students adopt an attitude of dull passive conformity.

"But at the same time," he said, "we must take an uncompromising stand against those who reject the rules of civilized conduct and of respect for others—those who would destroy what is right in our society and whose actions would do nothing to right what is wrong."

He listed four "acts of viciousness" which have occurred in the U. S. within the past five weeks—the courtroom spectator who kidnapped Judge Harold J. Hanley and touched off a gun battle in which four persons, including the judge, were killed, the murder of a police sergeant at his desk, the vandalism of a Nobel Prize winner's research work on cancer, and the patrolman who was killed while responding to a call for help.

Nixon Picks Oct. 11 Pulaski Memorial Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has designated Oct. 11 as Gen. Casimir Pulaski Memorial Day, in honor of the Polish commander who fought with the colonials in the American revolution.

"It is appropriate," Nixon said, "that we commemorate Gen. Pulaski's belief in liberty for which he gave his life in the cause of American independence. In doing so we dedicate ourselves anew to those fundamental ideals of freedom on which this nation was founded and has prospered."

5,000 Will Join Walk For Starving

About 5,000 persons are expected to walk in the 20-mile Marin Walk Against Hunger through several Marin communities Sunday, according to Marin's Walk Committee.

The trek to raise funds for food for needy people will start at Redwood High School in Larkspur at 7 a.m.and will close at the school at 8 p.m.

Walkers must have a sponsor, an individual or business, pledged to pay that walker a certain amount per mile walked.

PROCEEDS SPLIT

Fifteen per cent of the money collected will go to the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, a national organization which promotes walks and had educational and self-help projects in the U.S. and overseas.

Another 42.5 per cent will go to the Marin Economic Opportunity Council's supplementary food program, and 42.5 per cent will go to Meals for Millions, which distributes high-protein food supplement. The proceeds from the walk in Marin will help to equip a multi-purpose food factory in South Korea.

State senatorial candidates, Republican Peter H. Behr and Democrat Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael, are slated to be among the marchers.

Walkers will go through the communities of Larkspur, Greenbrae, Kentfield, Corte Madera, Mill Valley and Tiburon.

CHECKPOINTS

The committee said there will be checkpoints and refreshment stops every few miles along the route, and there will be cars at the stops and along the route to pick up walkers who wish to stop.

Walk cards, needed before a person can join the walk, are available at the Marin Walk Against Hunger headquarters, 882 College Avenue, Kentfield.

The committee said it needs sponsors, people to prepare refreshments at main checkpoints, and money to help pay printing costs and utility bills.

The idea of having walks to raise funds for needy people was developed two years ago by the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, and more than 180 walks have been held since then.

Haight-Ashbury Look On Lincoln Charged

San Rafael planning commissioners last night spent much of their four-hour meeting listening to arguments over gasoline service station proposals, including the city's first self-service station.

The hours were spiced with debate over whether the Fifth, Mission and Lincoln avenues area faces a Haight-Ashbury future.

Real estate broker Marie Rivers warned, "I have seen a dreadful change" in the area, comparing it to the blighted San Francisco neighborhood taken over by hippies. Lewis B. Grissell of Mill Valley agreed, as spokesman for Dr. George S. Fuller of 1116 Lincoln Avenue. He warned that homes in the area are 60 or more years old, and have become hippie communes. "It's difficult to believe the city could be setting up a potential ghetto" there, he said.

The warnings came in support of proposals to change zoning of parcels on Fifth, Mission and Lincoln Avenues to allow a gasoline service station for Mobil Oil Co. and to permit the existing nonconforming Hancock station to become conforming.

Thomas Bardet, Mobil real estate representative from San Mateo, told the commission that his firm wants to raze two 70-year-old houses to substitute a mission-style service station at the northwest corner of Mission and Lincoln. He cited a traffic count of nearly 30,000 cars daily at the intersection, and said the station would replace the one at Fourth and Irwin streets, due to be phased out of operation. He promised that his firm would try to save "the majority" of large old trees at the corner, but City Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner said most of them may be lost in order to widen Mission for a much-needed right-turn lane.

Howard Marcus, who said his brother owns a Lincoln Avenue apartment building opposite the Hancock station, disputed the hippie threat and said there already are three gasoline service stations within one and a half blocks. He urged continuing residential use of the area.

Robert Moore, executive secretary of the Marin Independent Service Stations Association, also objected to the proposed rezonings and stations planned. He claimed that there are 40 such stations already in the downtown San Rafael area.

Moore and other station operators also later objected strongly to Mobil's plans to convert its existing station at 575 Second Street to self-service operation, citing fire hazards and the need of trained station crews to spot possible mechanical hazards in customers' autos.

Hotchner, however, pointed out that he had already ruled that no change was needed in the station permit, to switch to self-service. The matter on last night's agenda was for approval of new signs, replacing the existing advertising at the station. The commission unanimously approved the signs.

The commission set a hearing for Sept. 29 to amend the C-1 zoning to make the existing Hancock station a permitted use, and unanimously asked the city council to rezone parts of the Mission, Fifth and Lincoln area from R-4 to C-2, which would permit the Mobil Station.

Home, School Windows Broken

San Rafael police yesterday reported vandalism to windows in a home and a school classroom.

Adelle Bonnie Spiesberger, 350 Mountain View Avenue, told police a bedroom window was found broken by a pellet gun, and the pellet found in the room, after the family returned from a vacation trip.

Indian Guides To Hold Series

The YMCA Indian Guides will hold a series of "get acquainted" meetings in Marin starting Monday for kindergarten, first and second grade boys and their fathers.

The meetings, all to be held at 7:30 p.m., are scheduled as follows: Monday, Del Mar School, Tiburon; Tuesday, San Clemente School, Corte Madera; Sept. 24, Tamalpais Valley School; Sept. 28, Park School, Mill Valley, and Sept. 29, St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae.

The program is designed to inform those interested in joining about the Indian Guide program.

Decision Is Delayed On Projection-Type Billboard

San Rafael planning commissioners last night blacked out, at least temporarily, plans to flash advertising matter billboard-style on the walls of a building alongside Highway 101.

Mrs. Oonagh Perdue had sought a use permit to flash the "Mitralux" projector messages on a blank wall at 658 Irwin Street during nighttime hours. She said the messages could include boosts for San Rafael civic projects and other community services as well as "innocuous" advertising. But City Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner and his staff objected that there might be little control over the size and message of the projected signs.

"We only have two billboards in San Rafael now," Hotchner pointed out.

Commissioners first voted down, 3-2, a motion to deny the use permit outright, then unanimously approved a motion to postpone the decision indefinitely pending further staff work with Mrs. Perdue on proposed controls for the permit.

Marin College To Eye Projects

The Marin Community College District board will consider preliminary plans tomorrow at 8 p.m. for the $168,000 remodeling projects at Olney Hall and the business and chemistry buildings.

The work, slated for 1971-72, will include reconverting class rooms, building laboratory space, and improving heating facilities among other things.

Meeting at Olney Hall, the board will also discuss the proposed campus at Novato, receive a status report on Phase 3-A of the Corte Madera Creek project and continue consideration of a new computer system for the college.

Recovering From Surprise 'Trip'

ROME, Ga. (UPI)—Three employes of radio station WIYN were recovering today from unsuspected LSD trips—the gift of a listener who wished to express his "appreciation for the programming."

The LSD came in 10 bottles of soft drinks, some of which were consumed Tuesday by newsman Bill Underwood, 22; secretary Nancy Nichols, 20, and program director Windy Miller, 31.

All three were hospitalized in good condition. By late Tuesday night, Underwood and Miller were reported sleeping and Miss Nichols was still "happy."

Bench Warrant, Bail Ficker Given 6-1 Odds

A bench warrant with bail set at $6,250 was issued Monday in Marin Superior Court for Floyd Kermit Ware, 19, of San Francisco, when he failed to appear for arraignment on a charge of burglarizing a Kent Woodlands home on July 21.

Ware is also awaiting trial on two earlier burglary charges.

Tam Fire District Awards Contract

A $25,310 contract for remodeling fire station 2 in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District was awarded to a San Francisco firm Monday night by the district board, according to commissioner Byron O. Boulware.

The contract, which includes construction of a dormitory for firemen and an additional truck stall, went to general contractor Carl F. Hartman, Boulware said.

TRUCK STORAGE — Refused to renew a permit for Balzan milk trucks to be parked temporarily alongside a gasoline service station at Second Street and Lincoln Avenue, after planning staff members said applicant S.E. Balzan had violated conditions of original permit.

ARCHITECTURAL APPROVALS — Approved addition of a paint spray booth by Robert C. Kentfield Trustees Draft Transfer Policy

The Kentfield School District board has approved drafting of a new policy aimed at limiting interdistrict attendance requests with districts that demand a tuition payment for enrollment of students from other districts.

According to Supt. Anthony G. Bacich, the board's decision Monday will not effect districts which continue to maintain the mutual no tuition agreement.

The action was prompted by recent changes in policy by the Reed and Mill Valley school district which now demand tuition from districts transferring students under the agreement.

"Our board has instituted a policy similar to theirs (Reed and Mill Valley)," Bacich said, "excpeing where mutual interests exist.

The Kentfield School District Board Also:

ASSESSED VALUATION — Heard a report that the official assessed valuation established by the county for the district rose 6.7 per cent this year to about $41 million. Last year's assessed valuation was about $39 million.

OUTDOOR EDUCATION — Referred to the district superintendent for further study, the district's proposed enrollment of fifth and sixth grade students into the outdoor education program located in the Santa Cruz Mountains. The week long program costing $36 per child, the financing to be studied, provides wildlife and conservation education.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Approved four interdistrict attendance requests for students to attend school in the San Rafael and Larkspur school districts.

ATTENDANCE — Heard a report from Bacich that the district enrollment totals 1369 students, down about 31 from the predicted figure.

LOAN — Approved requesting a county loan totalling $700,000 for operation and payrolls until the district's tax revenues become available in December. The loan will then be paid back.

Retired Teachers Take In 32 Members

Thirty-two new members were welcomed into the Retired Teachers' Association of Marin County at its first fall meeting last week at the Shadows in Nicasio. This brings the membership to 234, reported president Dorothy Olsen of Novato.

Hugh Paterson, legislative chairman, reported on his visits to the state legislature in Sacramento in behalf of teacher retirement legislation.

Mini Beats Midi In Auto Safety

NEW YORK (UPI) —A girl wearing a mid-thigh high miniskirt is likely to be a safer driver than one wearing a mid-calf length midi-skirt, according to Graham Gardner, a safety engineer for British Leyland Motors in the U.S.

The mini allows more freedom of leg movement making it possible for a woman to reach the brake pedal in minimum time in an emergency, he explained.

Midi skirts which unbutton to above the knee are probably as safe as minis, says Gardner.

Transfers Of Two Pending County Test

Undisclosed charges against "district personnel" during a closed session of the Marin County Board of Education Monday night were followed by approval of inter district attendance appeals for two Sausalito students.

Transfer was conditioned on their successful qualification for an accelerated learning program, Deputy Supt. Lyle O. Wright reported yesterday.

He said the charges were made by T. Howell Breece of 141 Woodward Avenue, Sausalito, who had appealed denial by the Sausalito School District board of his transfer request in which he claimed the Sausalito district had low academic standards. He had earlier sought to enroll his two sons in the Mill Valley district.

Breece's sons, Timothy, 11, and Theodore, 13, are slated to attend Martin Luther King School but Breece maintains opportunities for enriched educational programs at the school are few, Wright said.

Upon retiring from closed session, the board said it would approve the transfer of the students to the nearest school offering the accelerated classes if the students pass a county administered test, Wright concluded.

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) —During the 1969-70 winter it cost the Oregon State Highway Division $7.4 million to remove snow and sand icy roads.

Amendment Leads To Veto Of Fishing Bill

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — On the chance that it might interfere with the rights of fishermen, and at the request of its author, Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed Senate Bill 945.

The part of the bill that raised doubts in the minds of the author, Sen Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ventura, and the governor, was a last-minute amendment added by Assemblyman Gene Chappie, R-Cool, chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee.

The amendment would have allowed nonprofit organizations which have dammed and stocked privately owned streams to keep the fishing to themselves.

Chappie said that his amendment was the the purpose of protecting those who had developed previously fishless streams, and that he did not believe it would have any effect on prior fishing rights in other streams.

He added that in view of the doubts raised, the thing to do was "put the bill to sleep" for 1970.

"Senator Lagomarsino has informed me that the amendments added in the closing hours of the Legislature went far beyond his original intent," the governor said.

"As written, the bill might have provided some interference with the right of access to public fishing areas, a situation which Sen. Lagomarsino definitely did not intend in his original drafting of the bill."

Ex-Convict Draws Bench Warrant, Bail

A bench warrant with bail set at $2,500 was issued Monday in Marin Superior Court for Robert Wayne Kitzmiller, 34-year-old ex-convict, when he failed to appear in court for arraignment on four charges stemming from a fracas with a San Rafael woman in July.

Kutzmiller is accused of possessing a shotgun, possessing such a weapon as an ex-convict, brandishing it in a threatening manner and battery against the woman.

Sewage System For Tundra Camp

NEW YORK (UPI) —Problems of waste water disposal reach to the North Slope of Alaska, where exlpoitation of the rich oilfields is under way. In an area where temperatures may dip to minus 65, and alternate thawing and freezing of the tundra have made conventional waster water treatment ineffective, work camps must provide their men with showers, toilets and laundry facilities for their basic needs.

Working with state and federal regulatory agencies, Met-Pro Water Treatment Corp. of Lansdale, Pa. has designed, built and shipped two skid-mounted waste water treatment systems, each with a daily capacity of 24,000 gallons.

These physical-chemical systems utilize chemical coagulation, clarification and filtering to produce safe effluent.

Controller Sees Possible Hike In Taxes

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A tax increase is in the cards for Californians if the state's financial condition remains the same, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

The state's fiscal officer told a press conference Monday the ending surplus this year was $150 million less than in the last fiscal year, meaning that at the current rate of expenditures, there will soon be no surplus at all.

Flournoy cited the reasons for the decline as the poor financial condition and rising costs of welfare. He said welfare accounted for 16 per cent of the state's expenditures.

Noting the recent supreme court ruling regarding welfare increases, Flournoy indicated that if the increase were extended to California a tax increase may be necessary even sooner than anticipated.

In a specially prepared report on the current financial condition of California, Flournoy showed that there was a current surplus of $385 million, compared to more than $500 million during the 1968-69 fiscal year.

Flournoy said that passage of the much-debated governor's tax reform program would have made no difference in the current fiscal outlook.

Park Service To Seek Ideas For Point Reyes Plan

Public comment on what should be included in a new master plan for Point Reyes National Seashore will be solicited by the National Park Service in a "pre-planning" meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday in Room 311 of the Marin Civic Center.

Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the service's western region, said the master plan will provide the overall direction for the management and development of the seashore.

The purpose of the public meeting, he said, will be to solicit commetns from the public before the master plan team even begins its work. Later, when a draft plan is available, another public session will be held to get public reaction, he said.

The study team consists of John L. Sansing, superintendent of the seashore; Douglass Nadeau, team captain; Bruce Black, park planner, and Ronald Treabess, interpretive planner, all of the western regional service center in San Francisco.

Expert To Decide On Kennel, Barking Dogs

The operator of the Boyd Veterinary Kennels in Mill Valley and a neighbor, who charged he is kept awake by barking dogs, snapped at each other before the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday afternoon.

Supervisors decided to call in the Marin County Humane Society for an investigation of the legal status of the kennel and suggestions on how the noise from the barking dogs can be reduced.

The kennel, at 209 Morningsun Avenue, is owned by Dr. Henry P. Boyd, and has been operating there since 1923.

Robert F. Barney, who moved into his new home at 207 Morningsun Avenue in July, complained that barking and yelping from the 30 dogs keep him awake most of the night.

Dr. Boyd replied he has been getting telephone calls "from this profane man" several times a night. "It's the phone calls from this man that wakes them (the dogs) up. The constant harrassment from this man in unbearable."

Barney demanded to know what Dr. Boyd meant by "profane man," but chairman John F. McInnis cut off further sniping and referred the whole problem to the Humane Society.

Barney submitted a petition signed by 18 neighbors asking for relief from the barking dogs. At one point, he even played a taped recording of the barking and yelping to back up his point.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

EMERGENCY AMBULANCE — Approved a new set of specifications on which to call for bids for emergency ambulance service and rejected the idea of a negotiated contract. Bay Cities Ambulance Co. now has a contract with the county, with a county guarantee of $14.95 on dry runs (where no patient is picked up) or where the bills are uncollectable.

SOIL TESTS — Approved a $2,000 outlay for Harding, Miller, Lawson and Associates of San Rafael to conduct soil tests at Marin Juvenile Hall in Lucas Valley where ground preparation has started for a 20-unit girls' dormitory.

ZONING CHANGES — Approved amendments in the county zoning code to allow day care centers for six or more children in one-family residential areas with a use permit, and to allow veterinary hospitals in commercial districts instead of only in industrial districts.

KATHARINE BRANSON — Dropped a scheduled hearing on a request by Katharine Branson School to establish a boys' school in Kentfield. School trustees withdrew the application because of strong opposition from residents.

FLEA MARKET — Postponed until Sept. 29 a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of four acres of property just north of H. Koch and Son luggage plant in Corte Madera, where a flea market operates each weekend. Mayor Edward W. Colthurst said both sides in the controversy want the two weeks' continuance.

FREE MARCH — Informed Colleen Fitzhenry of Kentfield that the county has no objection to a 20-mile march which students want to conduct this coming Sunday from Redwood High School, using public streets along Greenbrae, Kentfield, Larkspur, Corte Madera, Mill Valley, and Tiburon Peninsula. Proceeds from the march will be used to provide food for the needy.

MINIFILM FEE — Decided that the county's $2 fee for chest minifilms performed by the county health department should apply to all uniformly. Marin County Employees Association asked for a waiver of the fee, and the director of public social services asked that the fee be waived for foster home families.

Supervisors Back Wornum Drydock Idea

Supervisor Michael Wornum yesterday came up with a new idea on how the huge drydocks can be removed from Richardson Bay: Let the Army engineers do it.

Marin County Board of Supervisors endorsed Wornum's idea with a unanimous vote.

Wornum said he talked to a colonel in the Army Corps of Engineers and learned that there is a provision by which the federal government can remove drift, debris and derelict vessels from harbors and waterways.

Wornum conceded this may take some time. "Even if it takes a year, it would be great if they can remove it."

The county has been trying for three years to remove the four wooden drydocks mired in county waters off Sausalito. Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court last Friday ordered the drydocks demolished or removed, but the cost is expected to be considerable.

The docks were brought to Sausalito by the late Delmar D. Wise and later purchased by the present owner, J. Christopher Roberts of Mill Valley. Roberts wanted to convert the structures into a cultural center.

Traffic Accidents Are 'Very Cruel'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) —Traffic accidents in Johannesburg are becoming just too much for some people and "E.N." of Residensia, a local suburb, wrote off indignantly to the African daily newspaper, The World, about the situation.

"Sir" he wrote, "Here in the (Trans) Vaal, people are being knocked down by buses almost every other day.

"This is very cruel . . ."

NEW MEMBER FOR YOUTH COMMISSION

Howard Hodes, a student at San Rafael High School, was named yesterday to the Marin County Youth Commission by unanimous vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Hodes, who lives at 24 Locksley Lane, San Rafael, will succeed Cathi Prebil, who resigned to attend college.

County supervisors also called for applications by youths from the fourth supervisorial district because Madelyn Angress of Marshall resigned to attend college.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar said interested youth should contact him. His fourth district covers the southern part of San Rafael, most of Larkspur and Corte Madera, San Geronimo Valley and West Marin.

Plea On Opening Doctor's Office Will Be Studied

A request from a Sausalito physician who wants to open an office in Marin City will be considered by the Marin County Housing Authority today at 7:30 p.m. in the Homestead Terrace project, 110 Linden Lane, Mill Valley.

According to Wallce K. Shepherd, acting director of the authority, Dr. William Rothman has asked to lease a one-bedroom unit in the housing project. If the authority acts favorably on his request, Shepherd said it will be forwarded to the housing assistance office in San Francisco for final approval.

There is now no physician with offices in Marin City.

Commissioners will also hear a progress report on recruitment of an executive director at the meeting.

Present Flood Control Channel Route Backed

The Corte Madera Creek flood control channel through Ross will have to follow the present creek alignment as proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers because other proposals, like a bypass, are unfeasible, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

In a motion by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors unanimously adopted a resolution supporting the corps of engineers concrete-lined channel from the Ross Post Office to Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at Winship Avenue near the San Anselmo city limits.

Arrigoni said he had met with officials from San Anselmo, Ross, and the county to review alternative flood control measures presented by engineer Milton Hudis of Santa Rosa, but all were too costly or physically unfeasible.

The flood control phase approved yesterday is the Army Corps of Engineers phase 3-B which calls for a 33-foot wide concrete channel 13 feet deep from the Ross Post Office to Winship Avenue bridge. Supervisors asked the Army Engineers to make every effort to preserve the creek's esthetics.

Arrigoni said this phase does not affect San Anselmo and the Hub City still has latitude in deciding what will go in within its boundaries.

Condition Good After Wreck

A 29-year-old San Rafael teacher was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with severe cuts and broken ribs after his cycle collided with a car at Los Ranchitos and North San Pedro roads in Los Ranchitos at 8 a.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said Charles Schultz, of 14 Pacheco Street, was riding his bicycle south on Los Ranchitos Road when a car driven by Peter G. Johnson, 44, of 51 Circle Road, San Rafael made a left turn in front of him.

The impact threw Schultz, a fifth grade teacher at Oliver R. Hartzell school, over the hood of the car and onto the pavement, officers said.

Guilty Plea In Molesting Case

Ronald Paul Rowell, 23, of Novato, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of molesting several small girls in Novato.

He was told to appear in superior court Monday for setting of a sentencing date on the felony charge.

The offenses took place between December 1969 and March 1970.

To Higher Court On Drug Charges

Richard Arlen Sparrow, 32, of San Quentin Village, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on four felony charges of possessing heroin and methamphetaimine and trying to bring them into the prison.

He is to be arraigned Monday.

Sparrow was arrested last month on a warrant which had been issued following an incident at the prison gate Feb. 14. Guards said he threw a hypodermic kit into the gate office.

Bond Issue Wins

OAKLAND (UPI) — Voters in the New Haven Unified School District yesterday passed a $5.1 million construction bond issue for a new junior high school. The bond issue received a 51.5 per cent majority.

Petaluma Teen In Cycle Wreck

A 17-year-old Petaluma boy was reported in satisfactory condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with injuries suffered when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car yesterday.

Ditomaso was northbound on Gossage Avenue, north of Magnolia Avenue in Petaluma, at 3 p.m. when a vehicle driven by Elizabeth Stewart, 22, of 1107 Gossage Avenue, who was traveling south on Gossage, turned left into Ditomaso's path and the two collided, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Porsche Stolen

A green Prosche 911S, license number ZIH 510, was stolen Labor Day from in front of his home, owner Dale R. Oates of 396 Pine Hill Road has reported to Mill Valley police.

More Relief For Rich Seen In Demo Tax Plan

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, last night said that millionaire Henry Salvatore would have gotten more property tax relief from a Democratic tax revision plan than from the unseccessful plan he authored.

Bagley, speaking at the annual meeting of the Marin County Dental Society at the Meadow Club in Fairfax, also dredged up a hitherto unknown Los Angeles resident whose property taxes would have quadrupled under the Democratic tax plan.

The Republican assemblyman twitted his fellow legislator, Jess Unruh, Democratic nominee for governor, for leading newsmen last week to Salvatore's Bel Aire estate. Unruh's idea was to stress that the Republican tax plan would have benefitted the wealthy. Salvatore is a close friend of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"Jess Unruh's new friend, Henry Salvatore," Bagley said, would have had his taxes cut by some $10,000 under the Democrats' plan, without the balancing provision in the Bagley plan to require him to make up a portion of the reduction by increased state taxes.

"Even more astounding," Bagley said, "the Democratic program would have vastly increased taxes on the very lowest valued homes because the initiative repealed the existing $750 exemption homeowner's exemption.

"For example, Mr. Credie E. Smith of 1507 Kemper Street, Los Angeles, would have had his property taxes quadrupled. Mr. Smith's property taxes on his $3,360 full value home would have skyrocketed from $11.13 to $40.32.

"That is indeed shocking, but I do not intend to disturb the peace and quiet of Mr. Smith's adobe by acosting him at his front door," Bagley said.

"Passing a tax reform package," he concluded, "is like pulling teeth — the phonies scream the loudest."

Fairfax Panel Approves Transfers

The Fairfax School District board last night granted one second grader permission to transfer to the Mill Valley School District, then accepted one from the San Anselmo School District.

Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Pollack of 29 Arroyo Road asked for the transfer of their son, David, because they wanted an open-ended, less structured education than Fairfax offers, according to Gwyneth McGee, the board's executive secretary.

She said Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. King of 51 Scenic Avenue, San Anselmo, wanted their son, Robert Welch, to attend Central School because his baby sitter lives nearby, she said.

The Fairfax School District board also:

MOBILE WALL — Heard a report that a mobile classroom divider at White Hill School will be completed by mid-October.

FIELD — Were told the city would provide men and equipment for installing a sprinkler system and preparing the fields at White Hill School for seeding.

INTRADISTRICT — Referred to staff a request for transfer from Central to Deer Park School of Cynthia Winfred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Winfred of 314 Cypress Drive.

STUDENT TEACHING — Signed an agreement with San Francisco State College for 36 units of practice teaching — enough for eight to 12 sturents — spread over the school year.

BACK TO SCHOOL — Set "Back to School" night for Manor and Deer Park schools on Oct. 13, for White Hill School on Oct. 15 and for Central School on Oct. 29.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Sept. 29 at 7:45 p.m. at the district office.

Los Angeles Rates As Largest U.S. County

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Census Bureau reports Los Angeles County, with a population of 6,970,733, is the nation's largest county.

Cook County, Chicago, was second with 5,430,075; Wayne County, Detroit, third with 2,641,805; and Kings County, Brooklyn, fourth with 2,562,245.

Planners Approve 109-Unit Development For Alto Bowl

With a minimum of discussion, the Mill Valley Planning Commission has approved Cal-Fong Investment Corp.'s plans for a 109-unit housing development in Alto Bowl.

Zoning administrator Howard W. McGill said the plans, approved by the commission at its Monday meeting, now must be approved by the city council.

The drawings show 104 garden cottages and five one-family residences on 27.5 acres for a density of 3.96 units per acre. The area presently is zoned for three units per acre.

The new plan would leave 17 acres of the parcel, most of it a broad hillside, in permanent open space. The proposal differs slightly from Cal-Fong's earlier plan, which was the subject of 18 months of hearings before city bodies.

That plan called for 120 units on the 27.5 acres, a density of 4.3 units per acre. The commission approved the proposal, but the city council on July 6 turned it down after a parade of residents complained that the development would pose drainage and traffic problems for Alto Bowl.

Councilmen said they thought the requested density hike, from three to 4.3 units per acre, a difference of 44 per cent, was too high a price to pay for the open space. The current proposal would involve a 32 per cent increase in density.

McGill said a few residents spoke against the project at Monday's meeting, but there was "no great outcry." The real battle is expected to come when the city council considers the plans Monday.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also:

SUBDIVISION — Approved a minor subdivision on property owned by Mrs. Roy Ibach at 23 Mesa Drive.

PERMIT — Continued to its Sept. 28 meeting consideration of a use permit to allow Otto H. Schreier to build two apartments within a commercial zone at 469 Miller Avenue.

Campus Bombed In Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)—An explosive tossed onto the porch roof of a University of Colorado building before dawn today caused minor damage as it blew a hole in the roof.

The explosion damaged Mackey Auditorium, a 61-year-old stone building housing offices and classrooms of the Colleges of Music and Journalism.

Nobody was in the building when the blast occurred at 2:18 a.m. Damage, confined to a 12-by-18 hole in the roof, was estimated at between $500 and $1,000.

Pinkerton Picked For Housing Post

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Former Fairfield Mayor Donald H. Pinkerton, unsuccessful Republican candidate for state Senate in the Fourth District, has been named director of the state Department of Housing and Community Development.

Pinkerton, 38, ran for the senate office in the June primary in the three-county district of Marin, Napa and Solano. He came in third, losing the nomination to Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley.

His new post, subject to Senate confirmation, pays $25,000 a year.

Pinkerton succeeds former Santa Rosa Mayor Charles Le-Manager, who resigned. Pinkerton was appointed as assistant director of the department immediately after the June primary election.

New Pet Laws Worry Marin Humane Society

New state laws are expected to add to the headaches of the Marin County Humane Society, executive director Mel L. Morse warned yesterday in his report to the 63rd annual meeting of the society board.

He cited one law which requires that all injured animals brought to the humane center be turned over to veterinarians for decision on treatment or disposal, pointing out that nighttime calls for veterinary service have been costing the society $15 each. Another worry is a pending law which requires at least a deposit on spaying any cat the public obtains through the society. Veterinary charges for the operation are running $45 to $90 each, he warned.

"These costs are very tremendous . . . we are really uptight about the charges, and there is no charity rate for veterinary services," Morse said.

Humane society president Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., in his annual message, told the society that he is concerned over public resentment against the society's pound and animal control operations. Many pet owners fail to realize that it is their own responsibility to prevent unwanted puppies and kittens from becoming problems, he said.

The society unanimously elected five directors to new three-year terms: George Blackwell, Harold S. Elberg, Jack Greene, James Grossi, Mrs. Carl Riznik and Mrs. Virginia Keating.

An engraved plaque was presented to the Independent Journal, expressing the society's appreciation for assistance to humane efforts. Morse noted that thousands of owners have recovered their lost pets after reading the daily listing of found animals the I-J has published for the society for decades.

Ponte Square Blaze Death Toll At 13

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Fire officials, aided by a demolition crew, dug through the ruins of the 60-year-old Ponte Square Apartment Hotel Tuesday searching for victims of the city's worst structural fire.

Two bodies were found late evening, bringing the dead toll to 13. There were at least five residents of the four-story hotel still unaccounted for after Sunday's blaze.

Engineering Span Pact To Be Eyed

A proposed $355,000 contract to engineer repairs and improvements to the Golden Gate Bridge will be considered by the bridge district's building and operating committee at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in toll plaza offices.

Ammann and Whitney, the New York engineering firm that traditionally captures contracts with the district, made the proposal at the invitation of the district after the firm recommended $10.5 million in work over the next decade.

The recommendations were made after a two-year inspection done by the firm for $490,000.

The work includes new suspender ropes, development of new methods to stop corrosion of the bond between the roadway slab and the supporting steel members, and repair of the lateral bracing in the San Francisco approach.

Also on the agenda are a proposal to open the western sidewalk to bicycles from 4:30 p.m. to sunset on Fridays and on days before holidays, progress reports on lighting the towers and roadway, and a proposal for installing wind socks on the bridge.

Also tomorrow, the special committes on suicide prevention will meet at 2 p.m. to seek methods to counter a soaring suicide rate. Twenty-five suicides have been confirmed from the bridge so far this year, compared with a total of 14 throughout 1969.

Deputy Denial To Be Radio Topic

Marin County supervisors' refusal to allow Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos five more deputies to enable two-man nighttime patrols, will be the topic of tomorrow's radio KTIM "Sounding Board" program at 9 a.m.

Sheriff Mountanos, Supervisor Michael Wornum — one of three supervisors opposed to the extra hirings — and San Anselmo Mayor James Reed plus Greenbrae resident Mrs. Ronald W. Tennler will make up the panel moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer.

Listeners' questions submitted in advance will be answered during the broadcast, which will be recorded for rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

McCarthy Favors Nod On Proposition 18

Proposition 18 on the November general election ballot has been endorsed by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

The proposition, a constitutional amendment proposed by the Legislature, would allow counties to divert 25 per cent of their gas tax revenue toward transit with voter approval.

McCarthy, in his monthly "Capitol Report," said that "a rapid transit line can reportedly carry three times as many people as an eight-lane highway without the resulting air pollution. Rapid transits' efficient use of valuable space is also an important advantage."

He added that while "our state highways must continue to be improved, I am convinced alternate methods of transportation are critical in this age of urbanization."

McCarthy also endorsed Proposition 1, a $250 million bond measure to upgrade sewage treatment plants.

Scene Set For Life-Style Changes

a time when opposition to the Vietnam War was growing, when many young people began to feel despondent about the failure of mass peaceful demonstrations to change American policy. At home, there was a feeling that Bob Dylan's prophecy of "A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall" was coming true.

After she arrived at the University of Michigan in 1966, Diana joined the Children's Community School, a project based on the Summerhill method of education and founded by a group of students the year before. It was there that Diana met Bill Ayers, the son of the chairman of Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago and one of the Weathermen later indicted on bomb conspiracy charges. Ayers probably exercised the single most powerful influence over Diana until her death.

The school, a kindergarten in the basement of the American Friends Committee building, was based on the premise that something had gone wrong with America's schools. Its goals were to create an integrated student body where black and white children would be treated alike.

Diana was loved by the children and, as she had in Guatemala, plunged herself totally into the effort to make the school a sucess.

At the Children's Community School the students spent more time on outings than in the classroom. They visited supermarkets to learn the value of money and when one child asked what a dead person looked like, they all went off to visit a morgue. They had Sunday picnics and a huge party at Christmas, 1967, where the children gave each other presents. Bill gave Diana a long Indian dress and she gave him a pair of leather pants.

Bill and Diana grew closer and eventually began to live together in an attic room near the university. Like most of the men Diana had been attracted to, Bill was charming, manipulative, and a bit cruel. Diana was always at his side and when she went home to Dwight, she talked about him frequently.

In March 1967, Diana's sister, Carol, got her a job offer to work for the crusading, liberal Washngton journalist, L. F. Stone, who was looking for an editorial assistant fluent in Spanish. Diana considered it seriously for several months, but finally decided to stay in Ann Arbor with Bill. The relationship deepened and a year later, she and Bill tried to have a child but failed.

The Children's Community School had begun to attract considerable attention by the end of 1967, and had expanded to include first and second grade levels. Ayers, who had become somewhat of a figure in Ann Arbor, ran for the town's school board in April 1968, on a joint ticket with a Negro woman, Joan Adams, the mother of one of the children in the school. Both were defeated.

NEW LOOK EMERGES — As a member of the Jesse James Gang at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Diana Oughton took part in a number of minor demonstrations and protests in the fall of 1968. In keeping with her new life style, she appeared more and more in hippie-type clothing — cutting her hair short and wearing a headband and gold-rimmed glasses. (UPI Telephoto)

Despite its early acclaim, the school began running into severe problems in the spring of 1968. The American Friends Committee complained that the kids were running wild, marking up the walls, and damaging property in their basement.

In June, the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) board in Ann Arbor turned down a request for funds by the school, which had previously been self-supporting. It was a double blow for Bill and Diana because members of the black community in Ann Arbor, including some with children at the school, were among those who argued most heatedly against the grant.

When the school ran into still other problems because of state zoning regulations, Bill and Diana, too disappointed to go on, looked elsewhere for involvement and became more active in the Ann Arbor chapter of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

Ayers had been a member of the SDS Radical Education Project for several years at a time when SDS was still a loosely-organized group of students who believed in experimental schools and community projects as vehicles for change.

In June 1968, they attended an SDS convention in East Lansing where a sharp split was emerging between the Progressive Labor Party (PL) and the cultural revolutionaries who naturally attracted Bill and Diana. PL was a dour, highly disciplined but distinctly old-fashioned Marxist-Leninist party which frowned on marijuana, sexual freedom, long hair and anything else which would offend the American working classes.

After the convention, Diana and Bill spent part of the summer in Chicago working in the SDS national office where they had intense political discussions with Mike Klonsky, an SDS national officer, and Bernardine Dohrn, a later leader of the Weathermen. Diana and Bill became convinced that direct action rather than education and peaceful reform were the way to change society.

Diana was deeply affected by the demonstrations at the Democratic Party Convention that August and what she and the SDS and eventually the Walker Commission felt was a "police riot." At the peak of the violence, she called her sister, Carol, in Chicago for $150 to help bail Tom Hayden, one of the founders of SDS in 1962, out of jail. A day or two later she called again and said she and Bill were leaving the city because "it's getting too rough."

It was also during that summer that Bill and Diana turned full-scale toward the cultural revolution. They developed a taste for "acid" rock at ear-shattering volume. They cut off their hair and began to wear hippy headbands and wire-rimmed glasses. They took LSD, sometimes with another couple. On one occasion one of the group ran out into the street naked but was coaxed back inside before the police came.

They returned to Ann Arbor that fall in an activist mood. At the first meeting of the Ann Arbor SDS on Sept. 24, 1968, a sharp division in the group was apparent. Diana and Bill along with some 40 other radicals banded together against the moderates and formed a faction which they called "The Jesse James Gang."

The gang disrupted SDS meetings and made vicious personal attacks on its opponents. The meetings frequently degenerated into brawls.

Ayers, Diana at his side, spoke against the failure of education to change people and described the gang as "the arms of liberation inside the monster."

"We are tired of tiptoeing up to society and asking for reform. We're ready to kick it in the balls," he told one opponent.

The behind the-scenes leader of the Jesse James Gang was a mysterious, 31-year-old man named Jim Mellen who appeared out of nowhere in Ann Arbor that fall. No one knew where he had gone to school or why he had come to the University of Michigan. Although he was the major intellectual force behind the gang, Mellon carefully avoided any position of formal authority. A rumor began circulating among his critics that Mellon was an agent provocateur sent by the Central Intelligence Agency to destroy the SDS and the radical movement in Michigan.

Ten months later, after helping to write the Weatherman manifesto and playing a part in the June 1969, SDS convention which destroyed the organization, Mellen faded from the An Arbor radical scene as mysteriously as he had arrived.

Within a period of a few weeks the Jesse James Gang triumphed within the SDS chapter at Ann Arbor. Early in October 1968, the moderates decided they had had enough and walked out to form their own group. Through psychological warfare and vague threats of violence, the gang had captured the single most important SDS chapter in Michigan, which automatically gave them a powerful voice in the national organization.

The gang carried out few actions, but when they did the entire University of Michigan campus generally knew about them. On one occasion they held a demonstration outside a campus building while the university's president, Robben Fleming, was giving a speech inside. Armed with a portable public address system, records and loaves of bread they attracted a crowd. Diana spoke during the demonstration while other gang members handed out slices of bread, shouting, "Here's the bread. Get the baloney inside."

Ayers rise to a position of strength within the gang was because of his ability to dominate groups through a combination of charm and the volume of his voice. Handsome and brash, he was a notorious lady's man who did not hide his promiscuity from Diana.

Diana told friends that although she was hurt by Bill's infidelity, it made her redouble her efforts to be a true revolutionary.

In November 1968, Diana became a regional organizer for the SDS in Michigan, not fully aware that the appointment was an attempt by national SDS to head off criticism by the just-born women's liberation movement that SDS was "male chauvinist." Diana's status as a token woman brought her into conflict with other women radicals, but she eventually earned acceptance as a genuine liberationist.

Early in 1969 she organized a "Cuba month" on campus, a series of films and seminars on the Cuban revolution. Gradually she became known less as Bill Ayers' sidekick than as a radical "sister" in her own right.

Diana's upbringing made her an asset to the movement. Naturally gracious and tactful, she was used as a negotiator in disputes with other left groups, and with the university administration.

As Diana deepened in her political commitment her relationship to her father, which had always been close began to break down.

During December 1968, Bill and Diana both began to emerge as leaders in the national SDS at a conference held in Ann Arbor. At about the same time, on Dec. 9, 1968, she wrote in one of her last letters home:

"It gets harder and I get more reluctant to justify myself over and over again to you . . . I feel as if I've gone through a process of conscious choice and that I've thought about it a lot and people I admire agree with me, educationally important, recognized and respected people . . ."

In October 1968, Diana and Kathy Boudin, believed to have been one of the two girls who ran from the house after the bomb explosion which killed Diana, went to dinner at the Chicago apartment of an old college friend of Diana's, Karin Rosenberg.

The pair was astonished at the "bourgeois middle-class" way in which Karin and her husband, Merrill, lived. "The only people I know who live like this are friends of my parents," said Kathy.

During dinner Diana got into a long, heated argument about politics with Merrill, a liberal who said he agreed with some of SDS's goals but not with its methods.

DIANA'S GREAT INFLUENCE — Bill Ayers, with microphone in hand, has been described as Diana Oughton's greatest influence during her change into a revolutionary. As one of the leaders of the Jesse James Gang, he was responsible in driving the moderates out of the Ann Arbor, Mich., Society of a Democratic Society chapter. The picture was taken in November 1968 as Ayers addressed a rally across the street from the police station in protest of alleged mistreatment of a University of Michigan student. (UPI Telephoto)

Rec Group Endorses Saving Mound

The Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission has endorsed an effort by the Miwok Indians Preservation Center to have an Indian mound at Miller Creek School declared a national monument and historical site, according to recreation director William A. Gordon.

The Miwok committee was formed to save the Indian mound being excavated by a San Francisco State archaeology student from destruction by vandals. Federal action would accomplish that end, Gordon said.

The park and recreation commission on Monday also approved the fall list of activities and decided the swimming pool will be open to the public from 4:30 to 6 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday through November, Gordon said.

Events approved were a luau for adults featuring a polynesian dance group from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Oct. 17 and a similar event for teen-agers on Oct. 23 from 7:30 to 9 p.m., both events at the recreation center; and a trip to a University of California football game by chartered bus Sept. 26, Gordon said.

New Weed Laws Start In Ohio

COLUMBUS (UPI)—A law making possession of marijuana a misdemeanor instead of a felony on the first offense went into effect today.

The change, enacted by the Ohio legislature in June, reduces maximum penalties for first-time marijuana offenders to a $1,000 fine or a jail sentence of one year, compared with the former maximum penalties of $15,000 fine and 15 years in prison.

In other changes in the state's new omnibus drug law, marijuana is reclassified as a hallucinogen. Penalties for drug pushers are stiffened, and educational programs on drug abuse are to be instituted in Ohio schools.

Prison Sentence In Police Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Michael Webster, 20, who was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the slaying of a policeman, was sentenced Tuesday to from one to 15 years in prison.

Judge Walter F. Calcagno in Superior Court also ruled Webster would not be eligible for a probation hearing for six months.

Webster and Vincent Fredericks, 30, were convicted in the killing of patrolman Eric Zelms, 22, who was shot New Year's Eve while investigating a burglary in San Francisco's Tenderloin.

Fredericks, convicted of the same crime, is to be sentenced Friday.

Alameda Approves Two-Man Patrols

OAKLAND (UPI)—Two-man night patrol car units for the sheriff's department have been authorized for Alameda County's unincorporated southern section.

The county Board of Supervisors on Tuesday also approved a two-bailiff system for Superior Court's six criminal departments.

Hiring the necessary 22 deputies will cost $243,000 from the remainder of fiscal 1970-71.

Supervisors also approved an alarm system from the criminal courts to the sheriff's office as a guard against outbreaks or demonstrations.

Guards Permitted Loaded Guns

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill permitting security guards and private investigators to carry loaded guns was signed Tuesday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Assemblyman Don Mulford, R-Piedmont, the bill's author, previously said state law permits operators of private security services to carry loaded guns in public but doesn't specifically cover their employees.

tA a committee hearing on the measure, a spokesman for the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards testified there are about 15,000 such armed guards in California who are technically breaking the law.

MARIN'S NEWEST

A Portuguese citizen who has never set foot in the land of his ancestors, but spent five years under house arrest in his native Japan as a possible American spy, is now an American citizen.

Guilherme Alberto Da Silva, 66, of Mill Valley was naturalized in U.S. District Court in San Francisco last month.

Born in Yokohama, Japan, his father was a Portuguese clerk employed by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation. Da Silva lived in Japan and Korea for 60 years before moving to 35-B Lomita Drive in 1964.

Da Silva lived with his family in Yokohama until 1923 when an earthquake destroyed all their possessions and he moved to Kobi, Japan.

An accountant, he worked for Pond Products Refining Co. of New York in Kobi until 1973 and in Pyongyang, Korea, until the Japanese closed the area in 1940.

Intending to emigrate to Brazil, Da Silva said he returned to Japan instead and took another accounting job. However, he was arrested the day fighting erupted. "I didn't even know the was was on when I was accosted by the gendarmes as a spy."

Kept in solitary confinement for two months, he said he was sent to the Japanese city of Gora under house arrest after refusing to admit he was a spy.

Freedom didn't come until Aug. 15, 1945, when American troops had taken over Japan. While working as official guide for General Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, Da Silva said, he became bored and in 1946 returned to Korea as a film distributor.

Missing his wife and children, who were living in Yokohama, he resigned in 1948 and went to work for United States Lines in Yokohama as an accountant until his retirement in 1964.

Da Silva, who attended a college in Japan run by American priests, sent his five children to American universities and they all settled in Northern California.

Mill Valley was a logical place to reitre to, he said, because his daughter and a son also live there. His three other sons live in Petaluma, Palos Verdes and Saratoga.

His wife, Marie Josephine, became a citizen more rapidly than he did although they filed at the same time.

Not until after his wife became a citizen in May did he learn that his naturalization papers were lost — poor treatment for a man who lived five years under guard as a suspected American spy.

Other Marin and Southern Sonoma residents naturalized last month are:

Christopher In Reagan Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— George Christopher, former San Francisco mayor, accepted appointment to Gov. Ronald Reagan's advisory committee Tuesday and joined the reelection campaign of his onetime political rival.

Christopher, who will be the commitee's vice chairman, told a news conference he opposed the tactics of Jess Unruh, the Democratic Party gubernatorial candidate.

Unruh confronted Reagan supporter Henry Salvatori at Salvatori's Beverly Hills home and Christopher declared, "It was personally repugnant to me."

75 Per Cent Fresh Water In Icecaps

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) —Less than one-tenth of one per cent of the earth's water is available for human needs and about 75 per cent of all fresh water is frozen in the polar icecaps of the Arctic and Antarctic, according to a water company executive.

Americans use more than 400 billion gallons of tap water daily which is 57 per cent of all that is available, says John G. Scott, president of the Mountain Valley Water Co. In about a quarter of a century, however, the nation may need 900 billion gallons daily, more than today's total supply.

Lagunitas School District trustees have been informed that the school's Miller-Unruh reading program funds had been cut by 25 per cent — or $2,500 — as part of the statewide pinch in such remedial reading funds.

Dist. Supt. Joseph Amato said he received a letter Monday, from the state Department of Education advising that all districts were being cut by one fourth because the department's $24 million special reading program request had been granted only $16 million in the state budget.

No action was taken by the district board Monday night.

Amato said the district employs the minimum allowed of one special reading teacher, and the cut "puts us in a bind."

The board approved Amato's recommendation to eliminate shortened "rainy day" sessions which had caused confusion with the district bus drivers and students' parents. Amato reported first-day attendance for the new year was 481 pupils.

Trustees decided not to appeal the Marin Superior Court order that teacher Richard Plant be rehired to the eighth grade classroom post from which he once resigned and then reconsidered. Amato said Plant has participated in all normal teacher activities since school started.

Mrs. Frances George was hired half-time as a counselor at $4,050 per year and College of Marin use of Lagunitas School classrooms for adult art classes was approved.

The nation's first state game refuge was established in 1869 at Lake Merritt, now located near the center of Oakland, Calif.

'Fun And Games' History Covered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Visitors to a new exhibition called "Fun and Games" at Fifth Avenue's Hallmark Gallery can join the fun by playing games on outsize versions of chess, checkers, backgammon, ticktacktoe and solitaire.

For kids, there are marbles, jacks, tiddlywinks, hopscotch, dominoes, beanbag toss and other amusements.

The exhibit covers the history of games and pastimes. Also on view are American Indian playing cards made of rawhide, the first Monopoly set and a priceless antique French chess game with figures of solid gold and silver.

PARADISE DRIVE CORTE MADERA

Tasty, Nutritious Lentil Dish

Lentils are listed in the recommended "Daily Food Guide" as alternates in the meat group, with their contribution to the diet of protein, minerals and iron needed for growth and repair of body tissues — muscle, organs, blood, skin, hair. Because of these qualities, they have become a popular and basic food requirement for growing children and for adults the world over.

HONEYED BAKED LENTILS
(For 12 hearty servings, each a rounded half cup)

Pre-cooked Lentils

1 pound (2 and ⅓ cups) lentils, washed
1 small bay leaf
5 cups water
2 teaspoons salt

Combine in a Dutch oven or in top-of-the-range heat-proof cooking ware. Bring water to boiling point. Cover tightly. Simmer 30 minutes. Do not drain.

For Baked Lentils

1 teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon powdered ginger
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ cup chopped onions
1 cup water
6 slices of bacon
½ cup honey

Mix together the mustard, ginger and soy sauce. Add onions and water. Stir into precooked lentils. Cut bacon in 1-inch pieces. Stir most of the bacon into lentils, with remainder sprinkled over top if pot has narrow-mouth. If a casserole is used, sprinkle most of the bacon over the top. Pour honey over all. Cover tightly. Bake for 1 hour in 350-degree moderate oven. Uncover last few minutes to brown the bacon. Bacon may be partially cooked if desired.

To serve

This is good eating served with brown bread, cole slaw, fresh fruit and cookies. Unusual and great for buffet service is to set out chilled bowls of crisp lettuce and green onions, a basket or plate of sliced hot brown bread and the piping-hot baked lentils. Fill your honey jar with bread and butter pickles. Have nearby an assortment of soft nippy cheeses and summer sausage, sliced or not. A snack-rack with the cheeses, meats and a knife hanging from the rack over the attached cutting board encourages a do-it-yourself project like topping the arranged lettuce leaf, brown bread, Honeyed Lentils on very hot plates, with thin slices of the cheese and meat to give a pizza-like top. The green onions and the chilled bread-and-butter pickles are good accompaniments.

Variations

1. With Chutney: use ¼ cup finely chopped chutney instead of the soy sauce and ginger. Use bacon and honey as directed in first recipe.

2. Barbecued Lentils: to precooked lentils, stir in a mixture of ½ cup catsup, ¼ cup molasses, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons minced onion. Use bacon as in Honeyed Baked Lentils but omit the honey.

Made Yesterday: these baked lentil dishes may be put together the day before and refrigerated. To cook, allow about 15 minutes more because of chilled utensil and ingredients.

IF YOU ARE not acquainted with Lentils, one of the dry vegetable family, a pot or casserole of Honeyed Baked Lentils will assure a lasting friendship. One way to enjoy this economical, nutritious main course dish is to serve the lentils atop slices of hot brown bread with a frill of crisp lettuce, a garnish of bread and butter pickles and green onions.

Making Lunch Box Meals Can Be An Interesting Challenge

School has started, and again it is time to think about nutritionally balanced and appetite-stimulating lunches.

The school lunch should be planned to supply one third of the daily nutritional requirements, according to Dairy Council of California nutritionists. The lunch should also include variety, interesting flavor and colorful foods. Well wrapped foods will keep all of their freshness and flavor.

The family member who makes the lunch can accept the challenge of making the meal time away from home a new adventure each day by following these rules for lunch meal making.

Add surprise treats such as dried fruits, nuts, carrot and celery sticks, radishes, cherry tomatoes, pickles, ripe or green olives, cheese strips or cubes, or when time allows, cut cut shapes from cheese with cookie cutters.

To plan your sandwich making remember these facts about sliced breads — enriched white or wheat. One pound loaves of bread average 16 slices; one and one quarter pound loaves average 19 slices and one and a half pound loaves average 24 slices.

When buying bread, read the label carefully to be sure it is enriched to provide your family with additional nutrients. This means extra food value for your money.

Add variety to lunch bags by planning ahead to vary the kind of sandwich filling from day to day.

Desserts that freeze, pack and carry well in the lunch bag are simple unfrosted sweets such as spice, chocolate, applesauce and pound cake. Prune, date or nut breads carry well, and cup cakes, double crust pies and turnovers are always welcome. Drop, filled or refrigerator cookies can be a pleasing treat. Desserts not suitable for the lunch bag are cream pies, sticky-frosted cakes, custards and meringue cookies.

Put frozen berries in a tightly covered container. By the time they are eaten, they will be defrosted but cool and flavor-fresh.

Stuff pitted prunes with cubes of mild cheese, marshmallows or nuts.

There are a variety of wrapping materials to use when making lunches. Use the one that suits your budget. Pick from plastic bags and wrap, aluminum foil, waxed bags and paper and moisture-vapor proof papers for freezing sandwiches.

To correctly wrap a sandwich, place the sandwich in the center of the paper. Bring opposite ends together and fold over and over until flat on the sandwich. Tuck under open ends.

Ways To Vary The Ever Popular And Nutritious Peanut Butter Sandwich

One of the first sandwiches a child learns to ask for or make himself is a peanut butter sandwich. Adults never cease to be amazed by the fact that children will consume stacks of peanut butter sandwiches day in and day out and love every minute of it. But mothers, take heart in this phenomenon because peanut butter is an excellent source of protein and provides children with energy as well.

Homemakers in the 1890s had a bit of a chore on their hands though, when they had to prepare the peanut butter themselves. First the peanuts were put into a roaster. The roaster was placed on the top of the old wood or coal burning stoves and then the drum was turned constantly during the roasting process to avoid scorching the nuts. After roasting, the peanuts had to be skinned and then churned into butter.

For variety in the children's sandwiches, try some of these recipes that incorporate bacon and apples. Or, now that apples are plentiful, try making a sandwich with whole apples, and peanut butter and cream cheese as the spread.

CHEESE 'N APPLE PANWICHES
(Makes 4 servings)

⅓ cup smooth peanut butter
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 slices rye or white bread
Thinly sliced apple
Lemon juice
2 slices processed American cheese, cut in strips

Combine peanut butter and mayonnaise. Spread on bread slices. Dip apple slices in lemon juice. Drain. Alternate apple and cheese on peanut butter. Broil 3 inches from source of heat for 2 minutes, or until cheese is melted and lightly browned.

Here are more delectable dishes which the entire family will enjoy:

PEANUT BUTTER FRUIT SANDWICHES
(Makes 8 servings)

1 cup smooth peanut butter
¼ cup soft cream cheese
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅓ cup orange juice
4 medium apples
4 medium pears

Blend all ingredients together except fruit. Slice fruit in half; spread peanut butter filling on each; hold 2 halves together with wooden skewers. Remaining mixture may be piped around fruit; using pastry tube. Chill before serving.

PEANUT BUTTER BACON PANWICHES
(Makes 4 sandwiches)

8 slices sandwich bread, crusts trimmed
½ cup smooth peanut butter
6 crisp bacon slices, crumbled
Butter for grilling

Spread 4 slices bread with peanut butter; top with crumbled bacon and remaining bread slices. Grill in butter on both sides, in covered skillet until bread is golden brown.

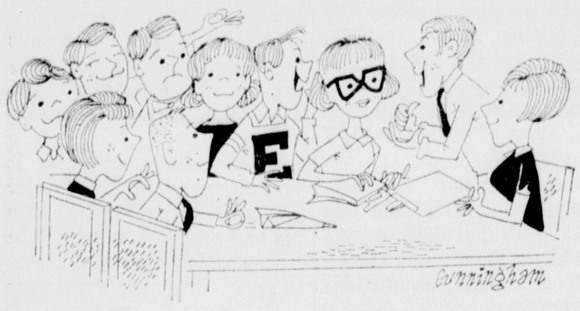
RECORD BILLIONS

Education Costs Rise While Enrollment May Be Declining

By GAY PAULEY

(UPI) — The cost of education USA will soar to new record billions for the 1970-71, school year, while enrollment at some stages will level off or even decline.

The U.S. Office of Education estimated at $73.6 billion the total outlay for the 1970-71 school year for elementary, secondary and higher education for both public and nonpublic schools. The total compares with an estimated $69.5 billion for the 1969-70 school year.



The largest group of students answering the September 1970 school bell are the kindergarten through the eighth grade of regular public school, some 32.24 million of them. USOE said the figure was about the same as last year's.

THE NEXT largest is the ninth through 12th grade public schools, with 13.33 million, up from last year's 12.93 million.

Enrollment in regular public colleges is expected to be up slightly for 1970-71, with 5.6 million enrollees. Last year's was 5.4 million.

USOE breaks down other enrollments this way:

Private schools, grades kindergarten through eighth grade, 4.17 million, compared with last year's 4.27 million.

Private schools grades nine through 12, this year, 1.36 million, the same as last year.

Private colleges, 2 million for the coming year, up from last year's 1.9 million.

The number of teachers in regular elementary public schools is estimated at 1.115 million for the coming year, compared with last year's 1.108 million.

SOME 146,030 teachers will staff nonpublic elementary schools this year, 934,000 the public secondary, and 80,000 the nonpublic secondary.

At the higher education level, this year's estimate is 394,000 teachers in public colleges and 199,000 in nonpublic.

The teacher shortage that has plagued the education system the past several years now is ended, except in some areas reports the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

To help the states meet shortages at certain grade levels and in special fields, HEW has awarded more than $15 million in grants under the Education Professions Development act.

Shortages are largely in the vocational-technical and early childhood education fields, said Don Davies, of HEW, and in education for the mentally and physically handicapped.

MEANWHILE, THE National Education Association, representing the bulk of the nation's teachers, is decrying the taxpayers' reluctance to spend more and more on education. During calendar year 1969, it said, voters "said thumbs down" in school bond issues totalling $2.3 billion, while approving "only" $1.8 billion.

NEA says the nation's educational system is "starving."

"Many schools are in crisis, evidence by decay, neglect and continuing deterioration," says NEA. One of the problems is the Indochina war, it continues.

"With skyrocketing defense costs straining the federal budget to the limit, there isn't enough money left over for education and other social needs."

"Unless there is a reordering of priorities at the federal level of government," warns NEA, "the situation will become increasingly chaotic. Teacher strikes and school closings will multiply . . ."

NEA cites some statistics to cite its complaints of imbalance of spending. The defense budget for the current year will be $82 billion, up from $48.6 billion in 1963. The U.S. will spend $4.4 billion on education, with the rest coming from state and local sources.

LAST YEAR, the per capita cost of defense was $399, while only $26 per capita of the federal tax bill went for education.

"The $82 billion for defense is just about equal to all of the money spent throughout the nation to build new homes, apartments, factories, warehouses, shopping centers, motels, schools, bridges and highways," it says.

NEA figures that the bill for the antiballistic missile system — $12 billion — could pay for almost one-third of the basic cost of public education.

The cost of one atomic submarine, at $158 million, could buy a nutritious lunch every day for 1,416,111 school children for one year, it continues. And the cost of producing the F-111 which, notes Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., "after years of testing continues to lose its wings," was greater than last year's entire budget of the Office of Education, $4 billion.

Knitted Wools In The Male Wardrobe

NEW YORK (UPI) —It had to come—this boom in men's knitwear, because men (more than women) have always put comfort in top priority.

The collections this year reveal the expanded perspective of knitted wools in the male wardrobe with styles ranging from suits in sweater knits, handsomely tailored double knits, jumpsuits, coats, blazers, slacks, to the new "shrinks," body shirts and deep brushed mohair "whisker" sports sweaters.

By the turn of the century, knits will dominate men's fashions and may well be the only fabric that survives.

The knitted wool tailored suit has finally come to full practical realization. Designers have taken advantage of wool's resilient richness to create tailored suits with superb comfort and distinction. These suits move away from formality with a no-sleeve jacket, called the "Free Suit" or the "Shirt Suit," and the sweater-suit takes still another step toward casual ease with its sweater-knit texture. One of these new easygoing suits combines ribbed wool pants with a jacket in spaced ribs by Himalaya. Double-knit wools are giving a new fashion punch to the separate pants category, appearing in an explosion of lively patterns, including art deco, stripings and imaginative scrolls.

In sweaters, the body-fit is the new signal, manifested in shrunken-looking styles that appear like miniatures in the hand, but the accordion-stretch of the flexible wool ribs give them a free-motion, body conforming fit. These waist-length "Shrink-Fits" may be tank-top style, long-sleeved, with deep U-necks, often with fishtail ribs that hug the waist.

Sleeves are narrowed, with small armholes, sometimes with deep ribbing from waist to elbow emphasizing the snugness. Style by Alps comes in a tweedy orange and yellow waffle knit, sleeveless tank-top, and by Robert Bruce in a Fair Isle jacquard. The trend toward the lean fit is a strong one that also appears in Western sweater shirts, cartoon pullovers, and original tie-dyes like the links-stitch wool by Pendleton.

Belts are part and parcel of sweater-wearing, as knitted self-belts or as individualistic accessories, worn single, double or triple to emphasize the short, close-fitting pullovers. The self-belts bring the Norfolk jacket into prominence, and define the line of the longer pullovers and vests. One of the most popular in strong ribs carries the Puritan label.

Whiskery wool sweaters are in, complementing the trend to more face and head foliage. In deep brushed mohair-and-wool or all-wool, these have a new furry texture of great richness that gives a flow of dimension to patterns such as argyles, stripes, and blanket plaids. Belted vest style by Lord Jeff deserves special merit because the mohair is brushed to a texture as soft as mink.

The poncho has evolved into a full-fledged trend. Its fringe benefits have been adapted in fishtail pullovers, and tank tops, bordered with wool fringe varying from a foot long to just a couple of inches. The matching sports sweater scarf is very much on the scene, long and leaner, with fringe accentuating its length. Spirited designs include jacquard Indian head isolated on the front of a pullover, an all-over design of the peace symbol, Navajo blanket patterns, and colorful patchwork. Color follows through on the young inclination with a lively range of purples, pinks, copper, blue and green.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists of three major food companies disclosed plans to nutritionalyy fortify foods ranging from milk to potato chips.

They gave credit to consumer and government pressure for overcoming indifference to the idea by their sales departments.

Appearing at the International Congress of Food Service and Technology, Dr. G. Robert DiMarco, chairman of the Department of Food Science at Rutgers University, said there had been "a phenomenal awakening (food) industry awareness about nutrition." He and food industry research executives discussed the subject at a news conference.

Dr. Hartley Howard, technical director of Borden Inc., New York, said his company is test-marketing milk fortified with iron and developing fortified potato and corn chips.

Dr. Howard Bauman, vice president of science and technology for Pillsbury Co., Minneapolis, said his firm now fortifies flour in cake mixes. So did Varnum D. Ludington, vice president and director of the center for applied nutrition of General Foods Corp., White Plains, N.Y.

Ludington said General Foods also had added Vitamin C to its soft drink mix, and also is fortifying instant potatoes.

The scientists said their marketing departments used to shrug off nutritional suggestions. But they agreed that consumer groups and the government had awakened a nationwide interest in nutrition.

Palo Alto Computer Talks To Kids And Drills Them In Math

PALO ALTO, (UPI) — A new generation of elementary school students is taking computers in stride.

At Willow School in East Palo Alto, six- and seven-year-old youngsters are so enthusiastic about computers used for teaching mathematics that the biggest problem is getting them to leave when the period ends.

"As soon as classes are dismissed at the end of the day, the kids come back to use the computer," Ronald Weaver, principal at Willow said.

The Ravenswood City School District, in which "CAI" — computer assisted instruction — has been used for more than five years, has had more experience in the field than any other school system.

"At first," says Bill Rybensky, director of the program, "some of the younger students were concerned about the 'lady in the box', but we explained what was really happening."

A new low-price CSI system has been installed at Willow School this year. It is a computer education set-up developed by Hewlett-Packard Co. It costs less than $150,000, a price within range of many school districts.

"Results are what count in this business," says Rybensky. Tests are now being conducted to see whether the computer can really teach children.

Willow School has 32 teletype terminals in its computer lab. Students from the first six grades use the computer for mathematics drill and practice about 10 minutes a day, with each pupil progressing at his own rate.

A typical lesson begins like this:

Computer: "What is your ID number and first name?"

Pupil: "12345 Jimmy."

Computer: "Is your last name Schmidt?"

Pupil: "Yes."

Computer : "Hello, Jimmy. We hope you enjoy today's problems. Here we go."

What follows is a fascinating 10-minute exchange between Jimmy and the computer, which stands in a room adjacent to the lab where the teletypes are located.

At the completion of the lesson the computer might say: "Lesson over. You answered 11 out of 16 questions correctly. Goodby, Jimmy. Please tear off the paper at the dotted line."

Check Crisper

When buying a refrigerator check the capacity of the crisper. It's usually stated in quarts. Also determine if the crisper is deep and long enough to hold the vegetables you purchase most often. Some crispers have a humidity seal to hold moisture which does the best job in assuring freshness of vegetables.

HELEN HELP US!

Driving Habits Of Parking Lot Attendents Irks Pedestrian

DEAR HELEN:

I think something should be done about the driving habits of parking lot and public garage attendants.

I work in a mid-town Manhattan building which houses a garage. I must pass the entrance going to and from lunch. Yesterday I luckily stopped just in time when I saw a car whizzing out of the garage. On the way back from lunch this same attendant barely missed me, and when he saw my grimace, he motioned me on with "What's the matter, lady?"

I asked a man who looked like the dispatcher why these people couldn't be more careful and at least beep their horns.

"The customers want cars fast. It's the nature of the business," was his inane reply.

"Never mind the customers," said I. "Think about the pedestrians. You don't want bodies all over the place, do you?"

I'm sure other big city residents have the same experience over and over again.

Outside of getting run down so we can sue, what can we do? — ELEANOR

DEAR ELEANOR:

In my city (Sacramento) a letter of complaint to the garage owner would give attendants pause — and you the right of way. But in Fun City where it's every driver for himself and the devil take the pedestrian (or anything else in his path), well, I'd still write that letter, but I'd also proceed with extreme caution. Good luck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

How do you tactfully and gracefully break up a party when the hour gets late. — YAWNING

DEAR YAWNING:

Adults usually start getting the message when you turn lights off here and there. To close down a teen party, try turning the lights on. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This guy I know is hooked on this "Let's Touch" therapy. He goes to extremes. Now he's insisting that you're only "sincere" when you look eyeball to eyeball with the person you're talking to, and he bellies up to me and breathes in my face while patting me on the arm and elsewhere.

He spouts about searching for the soul through the eyes, and tells me I look away and back off because I've got something to hide. — WHO'S RIGHT?

DEAR WHO:

He sounds a little strange to me. Maybe you should hide something from him — like yourself. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

About the baby sitter who said five out of ten of her male employers were flirts: We solve this problem by insisting that the wife bring our daughter home from her babysitting jobs.

It's really safer in several ways, as the woman usually isn't drunk when she comes home from a party, but the man is often not safe behind the wheel, liquorwise or pass-wise. — MRS. J. B.

Neglected Dandruff Leads To Infection

Although dandruff is considered more of an unsightly nuisance than a disease by many persons, when neglected, it can lead to a scaling scalp infection, inflammation of the eyelids or an ear infection.

According to an article for pharmacists treatment for dandruff can be as simple as washing hair and scalp. However, an effective dandruff shampoo should be substituted for a plain one.

"A problem with many is that they do not maintain treatment," the article notes. Habitual use of the shampoo is necessary to control the condition.

A dermatologist may prescribe special therapy for stubborn cases. But, for the usual case, "a pleasant shampoo containing the proven-effective sulfur and other medications will give the continuous control needed."

A number of effective dandruff shampoos which contain sulfur can be used as a "regular" shampoo after the condition clears.

Half of the people who enter a drug store have dandruff, according to the article.

A Mixer Secret

The blades of an electric mixer won't clog, when mixing cold shortening, if you heat them in hot water just before using.

Dispel Odor

Next time you fry onions, pour a cup of vinegar into the pan after cooking. Let it simmer for a few minutes. Then wash pan, the usual way. The pan will be odorless and fresh again.

Water Quality Conference Panel Concerned With Skin, Hair Care

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Some of the panel topics at the recent Water Quality Conference here get into some common problems having little to do with drinking water but much to do with daily living.

One was the effect of water quality on personal care of the skin and hair. Most experts agree that for best results in personal cleanliness, it is important to use water that is naturally soft or made soft by a conditioner.

The most common sign of hard water is the ring around the tub left after bathing. The ring is caused by a residue of minerals such as salt, iron, and magnesium, which form insoluble curds that are not easily washed away.

When this type of residue is left on the skin, it may cause irritations such as redness, itching and dryness. That is one reason why soft water is best for bathing and shampooing.

One of the panelists, Dr. Jay G. Barnett, explained further. He said soft water also leaves the skin feeling softer while hard water may leave it feeling somewhat sticky. He said bacteria also forms in the residue left by hard water.

A dermatologist with the Orentreich Medical Group in New York, Dr. Barnett had these other bits of advice on the best ways to bathe and shampoo:

Don't bathe too often. "Too frequent bathing, especially in the winter-time, can cause the skin to become dry, red, and irritated."

Rinse away all traces of soap so it cannot penetrate and injure the skin in the ways mentioned above.

Do not scrub with strong soap "which often causes excessive degreasing of the skin and subsequent dryness, chapping, and itching . . . don't use medicated soaps unless advised to do so by your physician."

Water is better than face creams. "Water washing your face a few times daily is very often better than cream cleansing." (It's also considerably cheaper).

Shampooing does not cause people to lose hair, although it may appear to. "Hair can be washed daily without harm" The more oily the scalp, the more frequently you should shampoo it.

Dr. Barnett emphasized the value of soft water in shampooing as well as bathing.

"With soft water," he said, "hair washed with soap is cleaner, more manageable, softer, more lustrous and better-looking than hair washed with detergent."

"With hard water, hair washed with soap forms curds which cling to the scalp and hair strands, dull the hair's natural luster . . . and increase the number of bacteria present."

With hard water, detergents will overcome the curd problem, but they will not be as satisfactory in other ways as soap and soft water.

In other words, according to the experts, the quality of water can have more effect on skin and hair condition than the type of soap or detergent used.

Drying Fire

Never add liquid starter to a fire that has died down and needs reviving. A dangerous flare-up may occur. Deaths of backyard chefs have occurred from misuse of this combustible liquid.

Mrs. James Good, central Marin League president, says "Today, when rising taxes and prices seem to be matched by rising welfare costs, we suspect that people are more than ever concerned about standards and administration of welfare programs. These unit meetings are a direct outgrowth of one of the League's primary purposes — to help inform interested citizens."

Membership in the League is open to all women citizens who have reached the age of 18, and all league informational meetings are open to the public.

THE NOVATO Hostess Club is sponsoring a pancake breakfast from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday at Long's Drugs store in Novato.

Maxicoats Are Cleaners Problem

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) —Drycleaners last fall viewed maxicoats with apprehension. It wasn't such a huge headache for them after all.

The cleaners feared gutter splashes would present hard-to-remove stains, including some containing salt residue from ice removal preparations scattered on streets. A check of the biggest maxi problems, by the National Institute of Drycleaning here, showed that maxi coats with worn hems were the biggest problem for the cleaners.

Paint Touch Ups

After painting a room, fill an empty fingernail polish bottle with some of the paint. The little brush is handy to paint over chips and scratches when they occur later.

ABANDONED — Broken glass, torn screens and the relics of life that is lost and forgotten are the subjects for photographer Stanley Bowman's Byron Hot Springs series currently displayed at Dominican College's San Marco Gallery.

ART REVIEW

Desolation Keynote To Photo Essays

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Out of debris, abandonment and decay have come many exquisite photographic essays. So, that Stanley Bowman delivers the same with his photographs of Byron Hot Springs certainly doesn't set him apart. What does elevate Bowman's work, on display through Oct. 9 at Dominican College's San Marco Gallery, is a compelling quality that is as solely his as it is devastating.

The photographer's last series shown in Marin dealt with the painful human loneliness that seems to linger around all bus depots. And while unpeopled, his new series has that same air of desolation.

SENSE OF EMPTINESS

These new prints ache with emptiness and the cracking, rusting, rotting vestiges of abandonment. In buildings that once were filled with living, doors stand ajar and Bowman's camera looks from room to room through a tunnel of loneliness.

At times, Bowman's small black and white photographs encompass broad areas such as a stairwell where high unseen windows are mirrored in a roof-leaked puddle on the floor. Or they may focus closely on the disintegration of a thing itself. You almost feel you could peel the paint eroding from a battered, knobless door or touch the crusted dirt on plates which cast sharp circles on a stained wood floor.

COMPOSITION

Because of composition and contrast an empty light bulb socket, old basins or a single arch of pipe become important as they reach against the darkness. Bowman does everything right as far as design, texture and interest are concerned. But while always strongly structured, his photographs rely on contrasts of gray and black rather than stark whites. And the dim, quiet light heightens their dust covered sense of the forgotten.

Still, the things that set Bowman apart most completely are his insight and his ability to reach out and into others with the meaning he finds within his subjects. It's a case of real interaction with work which seems to compel it.

Return Of Rail Strikers Halts Charges Of Contempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge Howard F. Corcoran today dropped proceedings under which officials of four rail unions could have been cited for contempt in allowing a brief strike of about 40,000 men against three major railroads Tuesday.

At the same time, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy hinted strongly that President Nixon would use all his legal authority, including imposition of a 60-day cooling off period, to prevent or halt any national rail strike.

At the request of attorneys for the railroads, Judge Corcoran vacated an order he issued Tuesday ordering the unions show cause why they should not be ruled in contempt, and possibly fined, for violation of a temporary restraining order against selective strikes that he issued late Monday night.

Francis M. Shea, atotrney for the carriers, told the judge at the brief hearing in U. S. District Court that the show-cause proceedings were no longer necessary since the strikers had returned to work.

Service was returning to normal on the Southern Pacific and the combined Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio lines, which were struck Tuesday.

Corcoran's order forbidding so-called whipsaw strikes against only certain carriers is in force until midnight next Wednesday. The judge has set a hearing for the afternoon of the previous day.

If Corcoran rules in favor of the railroads at that hearing, the unions will be permanently enjoined from striking selectively but will have the option of walking out all 71 carriers — every major one in the country.

Should the judge decide the unions can whipsaw, they are likely to do so and the railroads probably would retaliate with lockouts.

As for President Nixon's role in the labor dispute, Kennedy said in reply to a question during an interview today (CBS Morning News):

"I am sure that on all sides (a strike) would not be desirable. I am sure that the President will take the actions that are desirable to keep the trains moving."

UAW Digs In; Long Auto Strike Forecast

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers members dug in for a long strike against giant General Motors Corp. today after negotiators said no serious talks will be held at least until next Tuesday.

G.M. said the strike against plants in the United States and Canada was costing the economy $162 million a day. Some suppliers already had begun to lay off employes and five of 27 G.M. plants exempted from the strike also began layoffs.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock planned to join picketing at three GM plants in Detroit early today, then leave for Chicago. Woodcock and Irving Bluestone, codirector of the union's G.M. negotiations, planned cross-country meetings with local UAW officials before returning Sunday to prepare for Tuesday's bargaining.

Chief G.M. negotiator Earl Bramblett said the daily cost of the walkout, which began at Monday midnight, was $12 million in wages, $90 million in sales, $40 million in payments to suppliers, $20 million in taxes and a daily production loss of 26,000 cars.

On the picket lines, the loss was more personal.

At hard-hit Flint, Mich., home of Buick and several Chevrolet plants, members of local 598 just were beginning to recover from a 136-day production standards walkout that ended Feb. 9.

Presidential adviser Robert Finch, in Detroit for an election campaign appearance, said the Nixon administration would not intervene unless asked. "We have been invited out by both sides," he said.

Despite the shutdown, G.M.'s divisions went ahead with introduction of 1971 models.

It was the third national strike called against G.M., the world's largest manufacturing firm. The longest previous national strike was 119 days. Production continued normally at most Chrysler Corp., and Ford Motor Co. plants, although contracts expired there Monday midnight.

Youths Elect Temporary Officers

George Kewin of Mill Valley, a freshman at University of California, was named temporary chairman of the Marin Youth Commission last night at the Civic Center.

He will succeed Mark W. Tracy of Novato, who will be leaving the county to attend college.

Other temporary officers elected last night were vice chairman Paul Cohen of Mill Valley, succeeding Karry Fitch Jr. of San Rafael; and secretary Carol McClure of Ross, succeeding Ann Elliott of Ross, who resigned in July to attend college.

Tracy, chairing his last meeting last night, said the new officers are designated temporary until all vacancies on the youth commission are filled and the full commission agrees on the new officers.

Tracy announced that the youth commission has not yet received an application for financial aid from a group of Novato teen-agers who want to set up rap sessions with the San Quentin SQUIRES. He said a representative from the Novato teen group is expected to attend the next meeting of the youth commission, set for 8 p.m. Sept. 29 at the Civic Center.

Nine-County Transit Plan Bill Signed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill creating a nine-county Metropolitan Transportation Commission in the Bay Area, including Marin, has been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure, by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, will create a commission with binding authority over local transportation plans, including those drawn by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

It will be financed by transfer of $530,000 in federal and state planning grants now going to the Association of Bay Area Governments. The association opposed the measure.

A similar Foran measure last year passed his own transportation committee, but got no further.

The 19-member commission will have one representative each from Marin and Sonoma counties, each to be selected by the boards of supervisors. It will review all applications for state and federal grants, and "forward only those applications that are compatible" with the regional transportation plan it is to draw by 1974.

The commission will be formed in late November after the new measure becomes effective.

Tam Services District To Curtail Sewage

Directors of the Tamalpais Community Services District, asked to curtail the amount of waste the district deposits in the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District's system, have agreed to do what they can.

According to director Glenn Lambacher, the board this week voted to begin plans to improve its collection system to curb inflow and infiltration of storm and ground water into the lines.

Lambacher said the move is necessary because the Sausalito district, which handled 122 million gallons of Tamalpais Valley sewage last year, is nearing capacity.

After much discussion Lambacher said the directors agreed to work with Sausalito "in staving off the date when we reach capacity. Lambacher said the services district will attempt to comply with the Sausalito district's request that it keep gallonage pumped into the Sausalito system to 1969-70 levels.

He said Sausalito had originally asked that the services district refuse to issue any further permits for sewer service, but said the sanitary district had agreed to wait and see how the improved collection system works.

He said the district will continue to issue permits for new service as long as we keep below last year's gallonage.

Directors also voted to review — in one year — the improvements and their effect and to see — at that time — whether a master plan for southern Marin sewage disposal has been effectively adopted by the agencies concerned.

"Then, if it is deemed necessary, the board will enact a ban on further new connections to our collection system," he said.

Convertible Stolen

A 1967 Mustang convertible was stolen near the residence of its owner yesterday in Petaluma, police reported today.

The black and white car, owned by Elizabeth Fountain of 609 Petaluma Boulevard North, bore California license plates WLS814, police said.

Man Booked In Three Burglaries

A 22-year-old San Rafael man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday by Mill Valley police on suspicion of burglarizing three Mill Valley residences.

Held to appear in Marin Municipal Court today was Alexander Jose Semons, of 220 Canal Street.

Police said they arrested Semons Monday for violation of parole and rebooked him yesterday on three burglary counts. He is suspected of burglarizing the homes of Linda K. Walsh, 12 Molino Avenue, Alan Mintz, 57 Millside Lane, and Elizabeth Martin, 74 Millside Lane.

San Anselmo Asking School Grant Again

The San Anselmo School District board, set back recently by state's rejection of its application of funds to operate an accellerated learning program, last night directed the district superintendent to ask again for the grant.

Supt. William Kenneth Lowry said today the application requesting about $8,000 has been rejected by the state because it was not submitted 30 days prior to the beginning of the new school year.

Lowry said the funds were to have provided testing and programs for between 60 and 80 students with intelligence quotients of 130 or better.

Lowry said the board took no further action on the program, pending a reply from the state on the district's second request.

The San Anselmo School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Approved hiring Jean Shilling to coordinate at six-week vision testing program at $2.75 per hour, Ann Foldrian as a second grade teacher at Yolansdale School at $9,387 per year, William Trumbo as a temporary teacher at Hidden Valley School at $27.50 per day and Eva McKay as a library aid at Red Hill School at $457 per month.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SERVICES — Tabled discussion on a proposal made by psychologist William Emerson for testing and aid to educationally handicapped students. The district has budgeted $4,000 for such a program and is seeking program proposals.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Approved three requests for interdistrict attendance between Larkspur and San Rafael school districts, providing the district is not billed for tuition.

MEETINGS — Approved the rotation of the first meeting of each month between schools, while the secnod meeting of each month will remain at Red Hill School.

MENTALLY RETARDED — Approved an agreement with the county board of education to provide special classes for the district's educationally mentally retarded students.

Body Washes Up At Seadrift

The body of an unidentified man, which washed ashore in Stinson Beach twice in the last week but drifted out again before it could be recovered was found at noon yesterday by sheriff's deputies on a sandspit at Seadrift.

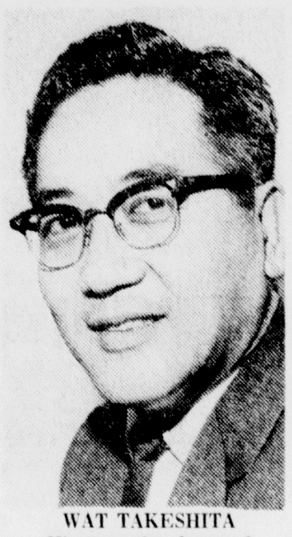
Coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said he believed it was the body of a 22-year-old man reported missing from Walnut Creek. He withheld identification pending a check of dental charts.

Craig said the man apparently had been dead about a week. Cause of death appeared to be drowning, he said, and there was no mark of violence on the body. It was taken to Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

To Enter Plea In Credit Card Forgery

Warren Hardin Allen, 26, of Oakland, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of credit card forgery stemming from his alleged attempt to purchase clothing with a stolen credit card Sept. 7 in a Sausalito shop.

He is to return to court next Tuesday to enter a plea to the charge.



WAT TAKESHITA
His reporting honored

Health Panel Will Honor I-J Reporter

Wat Takeshita, Independent-Journal Civic Center reporter, will be honored by the California Association for Mental Health on Sept. 25 for his contribution to public awareness of mental health problems.

Takeshita has been selected as one of several persons from various parts of California to be honored at a luncheon of the association's annual convention at El Mirador Hotel in Palm Springs. Don Wilson, radio announcer and television personality, will be master of ceremonies.

In nominating Takeshita for the award, the Marin County chapter of the association cited him for "his role in opening up the columns of his newspaper to coverage of mental health events in this county on a scale and of such quality as never before."

It cited particularly his stories on a series of secret meetings by the Marin County Board of Supervisors relative to dismissal of the Marin Community Mental Health Service director, attempted dismissal of the Mental Health Center director, and reorganization of the service.

"His story Sept. 23, 1969, was the first comprehensive review in the newspaper of factors involved in an intramural disagreement in community services," said the nomination. "Throughout the following months Mr. Takeshita has reported developments in this complicated and as-yet unresolved situation within the community mental health services in a style that represents the highest standards of journalism — thorough research, objectivity, and accuracy."

Golf Course Bridge Report

The North Marin County Water District board last night heard a report that replacement of the Indian Valley Golf Course Bridge was expected to begin Oct. 2 and be completed by Oct. 9.

The bridge is being replaced with a Culvert by contractor D. D. Altermatt.

The board also held a closed session to discuss impending legal action in the Independent-Journal's suit to compel the board to release the names positions and salaries of all district employees.

Nine Nabbed In Cocaine, Pot Raid

An alleged offer yesterday to sell $6,200 worth of cocaine to a narcotics agent led last night to the arrest of nine persons at houses in Forest Knolls and Tamalpais Valley.

Those arrested and the charges are:

Charles Noell Hess, 22, of Forest Knolls, offering to sell cocaine and possessing marijuana; Frederick Martin Engelhardt, 29, of Forest Knolls, possession of marijuana; Robert Barton Pemberton Jr., 21, of Palo Alto, and Ronald Joseph Wishart, of 27 Helen Lane, Mill Valley, both, possession of cocaine for sale; Therese Guillory, 21, Janet Ruth Simensen, 18, and Susan Irene Macaulay, 21, all of 645 Northern Avenue, all charged with possession of marijuana for sale and possession of cocaine; Elwin Douglas Myers, 37, of Glen Ellen, and Randolph Scott Caswell, 23, of Long Beach, both, possessing marijauan for sale.

Agents gave this account of the arrests:

About 5 p.m. yesterday the agent who allegedly had arranged the sale of cocaine with Hess went to the latter's Forest Knolls home.

Hess reportedly told the agent that Pemberton would go get the drugs and when he left, officers followed Pemberton to a house at 645 Northern Avenue, Tamalpais Valley, where Pemberton later emerged accompanied by Wishart.

These two men were stopped and arrested in their car in Fairfax, and agents said they found eight ounces of cocaine carried by Pemberton and a small amount in Wishart's possession.

Agents then went to Forest Knolls and arrested Hess and Engelhardt, who lives there also. Officers said that the Forest Knolls house belongs to Robert Franklin Black, former Marinite now in prison in Crete for hashish smuggling.

(Black, Hess and Engelhardt were arrested together in a $350,000 drug raid in Tamalpais Valley in 1969.)

Later in the evening other agents raided the Tamalpais Valley house and arrested the three women as well as Myers and Caswell after obtaining a search warrant. They said they found more than five ounces of cocaine, five pounds of "good quality" Moroccan hashish and a small amount of LSD as well as marijuana in several places.

One vial of cocaine was hidden in a plastic bag containing grapes, agents said. They also seized $1,460 in cash.

Those arrested were held in Marin County Jail in lieu of bail ranging from $2,500 to $10,000.

They were to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Anonymous Tip Recoups Auto

An anonymous phone caller yesterday led San Anselmo police to a stolen 1965 Porsche being prepared for stripping in a garage at 44 Elm Avenue.

Police said the vehicle, owned by Richard J. Massey of 112 Spencer Avenue, Sausalito, was reproted stolen Monday in Sausalito.

Officers said they questioned the garage owner, Bonnie Merz, 23, shortly after receiving the call at 7:05 p.m. and are continuing the investigation.

Services Committee Elects Head

Janey Rice of Mill Valley was elected last night to head the family and children's services advisory committee as chairman for the next 12 months.

She succeeds Jocelyn Bell of Fairfax, the past chairman. New vice chairman is Lynne Bishop of Larkspur, succeeding Eldon Hasstedt of Novato.

The committee members met last night at the Hall of Justice and decided to focus attention this year on increasing the supply of low income housing, evaluating the effectiveness of welfare and social services, and getting facts concerning welfare to the public.

Members decided that the day care program to help working mothers will also continue as one of the top priority items.

The Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee will continue to meet on the third Tuesday of each month. Next meeting is set for 8 p.m. Oct. 20 in room 254 of the Hall

Architect Panel Gives Height Exception

Architects drawings for the reconstruction of Pat and Joe's Restaurant, 71 Throckmorton Avenue, were approved last night by the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee.

Zoning administrator Howard W. McGill said the committee members felt that the design of the building justified granting an exception to the 35-foot height limitation. The crest of the roof will be 44 feet high.

The committee also approved of the concept of granting air rights to the restaurant to build apartments over a public sidewalk. The city council must decide whether to lease or sell the rights.

Also approved were minor changes in landscaping at a Burger Chef Restaurant at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue and the repainting and installation of a new sign at a service station at 340 Miller Avenue.

Bomb Ends Turtle Rock Controversy

MARKLEEVILLE (UPI) — Alpine County's eye-catching turtle rock has been decapitated.

Shaped like a turtle complete with a head, the rock recently became a bone of contention and the state agreed to a request by the Alpine County Historical Society to move it to Turtle Rock Park.

But an explosive blast cut short the controversy Sunday night. Someone placed a bomb under the head and set it off, blasting the head to bits and pieces.

Contractor James Coburn of Sonora received an $8,400 contract to move the rock from the right of way of California 89 several hundred yards to the park entrance.

Arraigned In Pot, Driving Charges

LeRoy Raymond Willey, 39, of San Anselmo, has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana and drunken driving.

Officers said he had a plastic bag of suspected pot in his pocket when stopped Saturday on Highway 101 for erratic driving.

Willey is also awaiting trial on a charge of credit card forgery.

He is to return to court next Tuesday to enter pleas to the new charges.

Two-Man Sheriff Patrols —And Tough Pay Demands

We have heard little but criticism of the Marin County Board of Supervisors for turning down Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos's request for additional officers to provide two-man patrols on the night shift.

The contention is that peace officers traveling at night place themselves in hazard of their lives, and that the hazard is increased disproportiontaely when an officer must patrol alone.

There is no quarreling with this. Its truth is obvious. Nor does it provide sufficient answer to say that the officer has a radio in his car on which he may call for assistance. He may not even be in the car when he needs assistance. He must leave his radio to investigate; he may never get back to it.

HOWEVER, THERE IS MORE to the supervisors' decision than this. The three-man majority of the board did not turn down the sheriff's request for more men because it wanted to put his officers in jeoprady.

It is possible that the sheriff's personnel assignments could be rearranged to provide two-man patrols at night without the additional officers. We are not suggesting this would be easy. But it might be possible. Certainly an attempt should be made, and we feel sure will be. Adding men is the simple way, but it may not be the only way.

SOME HAVE SUGGESTED another possibility which, while it would not be as satisfactory as having two regular officers in each car, might be helpful. This is volunteer citizen patrol.

This involves using citizens who volunteer their service without charge, for one or two nights a week. They ride with the officers, although they are not themselves officers. This has been tried in some places, reportedly with fairly good results. Citizens who are concerned about law and order might be willing to volunteer in sufficient numbers. Such assistance would give the deputy a "backup man" who, though not trained and armed, might be of considerable assistance. It is a possibility worth investigating.

THE SUPERVISORS' resistance to the request for more officers cannot, of course, be divorced entirely from another matter: the demand by the sheriff's deputies for a 12½ per cent pay increase.

The officers have done themselves no service in the eyes of either the public or the supervisors by their suggestion that they might walk off the job if the demand is not met.

The distribution of raises to county employees this year was something of a fiasco. We concur with the peace officers and firemen in the belief that they were ill-treated in comparison with some others.

However, the fiasco must be blamed in part to a law which public employees themselves, through their organizations, helped put on the books. We are not convinced that the collective bargaining procedure used by industry and labor unions is the best method for public employees. The teachers tried it first, with the Winton Act, and their consequent loss in public esteem probably has been far greater than any increase in salary beyond what they would have received by the informal committee discussions that prevailed before the act was passed.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Issue In Welfare Disagreement Boils Down To Who Is Boss

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Ever since the days of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, which started the concept of government as the caretaker of the people, there has been a dispute between state and federal governments on matters of "conformity."

Conformity is the process of complying with the orders of the federal government bureauracy which now happens to be the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. In the old days, it was the Social Security Board which called the turns. But despite the change in name, the principles remain the same. The orders come down from headquarters, and the states generally wind up taking the orders, whether they like them or not.

The supreme penalty for failure to comply with the HEW orders in the loss of federal funds to finance the various programs which are centralized in Washington, D.C. And no state likes to be cut off at the pockets, which it can be despite the fact that the taxpayers of the states involved pay not only the bills for the programs involved, but also support the vast army of bureaucrats that calls the turn on "conformity."

THE LATEST dispute over "conformity" is between the Reagan administration and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The argument has gone so far that California will appeal the ruling of a federal court judge which held that this state is out of conformity with federal welfare requirements.

Lucian Vandegrift, secretary of the state human relations agency, said the federal government and court refused to allow the state to exhaust its administrative remedies before issuing its ruling.

Vandegrift pointed out that this state leads the nation in the amount of social services provided by the taxpayers for welfare recipients. And the state already is a leader in average payment to families with needy children, and to the blind, old age assistance, and aid to the disabled.

"Only a vast bureaucracy," Vandegrift said, "intent on perpetuating itself and its own interests, without regard to the legitimate interests of the taxpayers, could allow itself to somehow accept the notion that a state so generous to the truly needy could be out of conformity."

He pointed out that the whole issue boils down to a matter of technical and procedural differences, which have very little if any relationship to the real issue.

THE REAL ISSUE appears to be what government agency is going to run the welfare operation — the state, or the federal government? So far, the federal government calls the shots, for the simple reason it can cut off the money if its bureaucratic wishes are not observed.

On the other hand, the state must do what it is told to do, no matter what the cost to the taxpayer.

Consequently, the immovable object meets the irresistible force and as usual, the public suffers.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A new whale, deposited at the Coney Island Aquarium, was so hoity-toity she wouldn't even give the time of day to older occupants of the tank. "How come she puts on such airs?" wondered Tillie Whale. "Status," explained Eudora Whale. "Her ancestors swam over under the Mayflower."

The hour was getting late at a business luncheon hosted by a prestigious Wall Street banking house, and the toastmaster rose to introduce the last speaker. "I know you're all anxious to get back to your offices," he begun, "but our last speaker will address you on a subject close to your hearts — SEX. Furthermore, I've asked him to be as brief as possible."

The speaker thereupon arose, beamed at his audience, announced, "Gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure" — and sat down.

Helicopter Service Hopes For Upturn

All of us here at SFO want to thank you for your good coverage of our plight and the excellent editorial that accompanied it.

This is our first step in trying to bring the message to Marin County and we are all certain that it is going to be extremely effective. It is hard to say now how much this will effect seat sales, but I, for one, will be willing to bet that by this time next week they will be up by a considerable percentage.

DAVID NELSON
Oakland.

SFO Loss Blamed To Shortcomings

The plight of SFO is unfortunate, and as a regular traveler from Marin I regret the prospect of losing its service here. In all truth, however, the problems which SFO has encountered are the result of its own shortcomings in service. Here are some of the difficulties I have in trying to use their service:

1. Ticketing. SFO cannot ticket other airlines, and travelers leaving on short notice must make a separate trip to pick up tickets if they are to qualify for the interstate prices.

2. Reservations. SFO has a poor record of over-selling rush hour flights . . .

3. Rush hour problems. SFO has no provision for extra service during rush hours on Monday and Friday, when most of us need them . . .

4. Personnel. Passengers are angered to watch bullying and wheedling have effect on who gets taken and who left behind on oversold and standby flights . . .

5. Information. The interstate discounts are not properly advertised, nor are the schedules. SFO advertising has not been of help.

6. Baggage. SFO's record has been so poor that some major airlines refuse to check bags through on them . . .

I need the helicopter service. I would use it regularly if it were just more convenient and reliable than my car. But when I return to San Francisco on a Friday night, tired and impatient to get home, I'm in no mood to scramble through a hectic and tense ordeal with SFO, possibly get stranded 40 miles from home, trying to complete the last leg of the trip to Marin.

Another Rider Seconds Complaint

I certainly second Mrs. (Janet) Nogara's complaint (Sept. 3) in regard to "tennis shoes, shiny blue pants and flailing arms."

I also ride several hours a day on the water company property and have had these characters sneak up behind my horse without a sound of warning. Each time I have asked them to whistle or make some sound of warning so as not to frighten horses and get someone killed. So far I have not had Mrs. Nogara's luck of an answer, all I have gotten has been a surly look and flailing arms disappearing around the bend in the road.

Turns Other Cheek —It Gets Slapped

Somewhere in the Great Book which is read by a select few, I recall reading the passage said by an ole timer that goes kind of like this, "When things hit you, turn the other cheek."

Approximately six weeks ago someone stole the two front wheels from our modern day horse which was parked in the bright afternoon sun in San Rafael's parking lot. According to present tribal law, proper action in form of reports, etc., was taken. My heart was sad — truly sad — that some peoples must resort to this type of doings to get their desires.

Thanking God that we have the questionable priviledge of having two cars, I turned my other cheek and parked our TR by the College of Marin between the happy wisdom-getting hours of nine and sunny noon. Upon returning to the car, I noted that the top covering had been removed and the metal ribs which give the top body had been neatly and tidily laid to rest in the proper position. No doubt, the covering is now clothing the taker's naked ribbed car.

Again proper tribal action has been taken.

Now I must go back to reading the Great book. Must find the answer of what I can do to stop contributing to the delinquency of my fellow natives — guess I could stop driving a car.

There's A Silver Lining To Nerve Gas Episode

(Reprinted from (Washington Evening Star)

There are those who argue that, if one looks hard enough, some good can be found in everyone and everything. Now there is important new evidence to indicate that the incurable optimists may be right.

It would have been impossible, just a short time back, for anyone to come up with a really good thing to say about the dumping of those nerve gas rockets in the Atlantic. The oceanic disposal was, perhaps, the only feasible way of getting rid of the loathsome product of man's inventive genius. But being the least objectionable of a number of appalling possibilities does not meet the qualifications for inclusion in the Polyanna Department.

The first argental glimmer showed when, even before the lethal coffins were given the deep six, Secretary Laird let it be known that never again would any part of the nation's ample supply of nerve gas be buried at sea. Then Congress got into the act, and the sterling really came shining through.

At last count, no less than 10 bills have been introduced, all aimed at curbing the age-old practice of using the ocean as the dumping ground for civilization's malignant garbage. One bill would require the council on Environmental Quality to approve the disposal of any military trash in the sea. Another would require the council to take a new and critical look at the present national policy concerning the dumping of anything at all into the oceans.

So the silver lining is there, after all. Maybe, as a result of the nerve gas flap, the United States will finally call a halt to its carefree poisoning of the oceans. It's even possible that the awakening has come in time to achieve that elusive goal, the preservation of human life on this planet.

Scranton Commission Will Call On President To Heed Youth

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The Scranton Commission on Campus Unrest is ready to urge President Nixon to act boldly on far-reaching proposals to avert mounting danger on the campus.

There is good reason to believe that the commission's conclusions will include:

1 — A hard-line approach to meet youth unrest will not work. It makes a bad situation worse.

2 — Such an approach alienates and radicalizes large numbers of nonviolent students who are thereby steadily drawn into the orbit of violence.

3 — Something near to chaos on campus is in sight unless student views are more responsively and sympathetically heard —and, when justified, heeded.

4 — It is imperative that President Nixon bridge the constantly widening chasm between himself and American youth — now so vast they can hardly see or hear each other across it.

5 — IF THE PRESIDENT is to arrest and reverse the gathering peril of disruption on major campuses, three things are needed:

(a) — Speed the pace of withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam and make it clear that this is irreversible.

(b) — Convince the country that he is decisively and fully committed to crucial domestic reforms to aid the poor, the blacks, the cities and the environment, and put enough advocacy into these causes to show that his heart as well as his mind is in them.

(c) — Begin to make his own ideas and ideals for a better America more visible and more persuasive.

THIS IS WHERE the evidence before the commission plainly points to one central, overriding judgment — act now or pay the price later. There is a deep conviction that unless Mr. Nixon puts the full prestige of the presidency to work, a national calamity is in the making.

The commission is astonishingly united. Few believed such unity could be attained in view of the diversity in age, politics and background among its members. Few would have expected that youthful Harvard activist Joseph Rhodes Jr. and retired Air Force Gen. Benjamin Davis or New Haven Police Chief James Ahern would find themselves in substantial agreement on the gravity of the campus crisis and what most needs to be done.

THE COMMISSION is simply doing its job.

The President gave the commission this mission: Get the facts about campus unrest and advise him what to do about it.

If President Nixon had not wanted straight facts and candid advice he would not have appointed the members he did — from his trusted friend and first choice for secretary of state, former Gove. William Scranton of Pensylvania, to the skeptical, outspoken young Joseph Rhodes, whom Vice President Agnew wanted removed.

RICHARD NIXON will get the facts and advice shortly.

They will not give him entirely comfortable reading. The report will urge him to some things he hoped he would not have to do.

Mr. Nixon hoped he could postpone major increases in domestic spending, but the commission will almost certainly say that delay is dangerous.

President Nixon hoped he could further racial justice and help the poor and the blacks without talking too much about it. But the commission will inevitably say that he must begin to speak out more openly and ardently if he is to convince the restless and the aggrieved that they can have hope in him.

President Nixon hoped he could proceed quietly and cautiously in order not to offend his natural constituency — Middle America. But the evidence before the commission shows that Richard Nixon must persuade Middle America to allow him to do more.

This is why the Scranton Commission report will seek to win the mind of Richard Nixon as the best means of winning the mind of Middle America to do what is needed.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Fate Of War Prisoners Pressed Upon President

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and his top advisers must soon come to grips with the question of what happens to Americans, held as prisoners of war, as the Vietnamization program goes forward.

The question is being asked privately by POW families. By its nature, it is a question which cannot be muted for an indefinite period and will ultimately require a full and forthright answer.

The issue is simple enough: President Nixon, in Vietnamizing the war in Southeast Asia, is gradually drawing down U.S. combat forces. What are the hopes for more than 1,500 Americans now prisoners or "missing" if the war winds down without a negotiated settlement?

Some U.S. prisoners have already been held by the Vietcong and North Vietnamese for several years.

IF THE TALKS continue to be fruitless in Paris (where the POW issue has now been forcefully raised) and troop withdrawals continue, does there come a time when Vietnamization halts pending a settlement of the prisoner issue?

The POW families continue to escalate their drive to dramatize the plight of the prisoners.

The National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia is focusing on Nov. 11. The idea is to make Veterans' Day something of a war prisoners' day in public ceremonies this year.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Sybil Stockdale, wife of a captured Navy captain, the league has also been spearheading the campaign for a joint session of the House and Senate on the prisoner-of-war issue. Most of the House and Senate leadership have approved the idea of such a session.

The league has been trying to have such a joint session scheduled in early October to coincide with its first national convention which has been scheduled here in Washington.

THE CAMPAIGN for support by the POW families has probably been more effective than is generally realized. That is particularly true with respect to congressional sentiment.

The pages of the Congressional Record bear testimony to the fact that "hawks" and "doves" alike think something must be done to secure better treatment — and, eventually, release — for the American POWs. Many of the speeches delivered in the House and Senate are short and attract no attention on a day-by-day basis. The cumulative effect is considerable, however.

In one such recent speech — less than 200 words — Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., flayed the Communist regime in North Vietnam for refusing to abide by the requirements of the Geneva convention. He called the plight of the POWs "one of the great unanswered problems of the year."

That is certainly how it is shaping up for President Nixon, who will come under increasing pressure to explain how release of the prisoners can be obtained from the intransigent North Vietnamese as U.S. forces in Vietnam and Southeast Asia become progressively weaker.

Larkspur Can Control Creek Shores Without Moratorium

The future of Corte Madera Creek's marshland between Highway 101 and the Bon Air Bridge in Larkspur may not be quite so bleak as the city council's rejection of the building moratorium might make it appear.

In fact it is not bleak at all. The marsh has about the same chance of preservation under existing city ordinances as it would under any moratorium imposed by the city.

Why then the public outcry led by the planning commission against development along the creek if the commission already has the power to control it?

"PROPONENTS of the action saw the moratorium as the best approach," is the only answer special city attorney Albert Bianchi could give Monday. "With the ordinances they already have the commission can develop a policy for preservation of the creek," he added.

This has been Bianchi's position since he was commissioned in early August to oversee the legal aspects of the development debate between builders and conservationists.

In a letter dated Aug. 7, he told the planning commission it was already authorized to impose "reasonable and appropriate conditions upon the granting of applications for architectural supervision and for variance." He later expanded this to include subdivision approval and use permits.

BIANCHI LISTED examples from the municipal code which provide that a structure must "have an appearance that will lend itself to the harmonious development of the city; enhance the desirability of residence, investment, occupation and recreation in the city; make optimum use of the land; be compatible with the area in which it is located and not be detrimental to the health, safety, peace, morals, comfort, convenience, prosperity and general welfare of the surrounding neighborhood."

And in yet another letter dated Sept. 2, Bianchi stated: Without adopting any ordinance other than those already in existence, the city could impose uniform limitations which would require dedication of public access and/or the maintaining of certain areas in their present state as a condition to the granting of subdivision approval, architectural supervision, applications for variances, etc.

"If this were to be done," he continued, "it should be on the basis of specific findings that such action is necessary to protect and preserve the welfare, health, comfort or convenience of the citizens of the city or upon some similar findings."

BIANCHI ADDED on Monday that he felt the city's refusal to approve the hiring of an expert to define the marsh land limits in order to designate building setbacks posed no problem. This could be handled by the city's staff and if needed, the county's.

Only when rebuffed by the city council on its request for the emergency building ban ordinance did the planning commission fall back on the alternative offered by Bianchi.

It had claimed that the moratorium was needed to give time for analysis of the marshland, but under existing ordinances, with possibly minor revision, it has had years for such a study.

So having gone full circle, it can be hoped ths commission is a little wiser, and will begin to exercise the powers it has been granted through the municipal code.

And as Bianchi has also pointed out, the ultimate decision of the public's right to open creeksides rests in the courts, no matter what course the city follows.

Tunney To Speak At Marin Rally

Rep. John V. Tunney of Riverside, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, will address a rally by conservation groups at 10 a.m. on Saturday at Goat Rock Beach, Jenner.

Tunney's campaign staff billed his address as "a major address" that will deal with the need for new legislation to protect the coastline.

The rally is being sponsored by the Sierra Club and the Jenner Coalition.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Changes By The Hundred In State Education Code

By Bryce W. Anderson

California school districts may now start teaching reading in kindergarten, and use state funds to do so.

This is the result of one of a host of changes in laws affecting the state's schools which were passed by the 1970 session of the legislature.

Assembly Bill 411, by Assemblymen John F. Dunlap, D-Vallejo; Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, and John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, extends the Miller-Unruh Basic Reading Act of 1965 to kindergarten; but it provides that school districts starting reading instruction in kindergarten will not be entitled to additional Miller-Unruh Act funds for doing so. It went into law with the governor's signature as an amendment to Section 5571 of the bulky Education Code.

NO FEWER than 186 Assembly bills and 84 Senate bills changing or adding to the Education Code passed the legislature this year.

They range from bills advancing state funds to individual hard-pressed school districts and setting up another $22.5 million state school building aid fund to measures changing "junior college" to "community college" and permitting schools to send students on visits to Washington, D.C.

Nine of them make changes liberalizing the state teacher retirement law. Most of these were introduced by Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, who is himself a retired Navy chaplain.

AB 724, by Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-Bakersfield, specifies that the county superintendent of schools must call an immediate election to fill any school board vacancy, and that the date of the vacancy is that specified in the board member's letter of resignation.

However, the county superintendent won't conduct the special election he calls. Senate Bill 1253, by Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tuston (who was not around when the bill finally passed, having moved on to the United States Congress), gives the conduct of school elections back to county clerks —where it was until switched to county school superintendents a few years ago. It turned out that the school people were not particularly well versed in conducting elections.

More lawsuits against school districts likely will result from AB 1945 by Assemblymen James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, and William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights. This measure, signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan, provides that school employee organizations have standing to sue in any action on behalf of one or more members. It may have resulted from a 1969 case in Alameda County in which the court held the American Federation of Teachers was without standing in the action.

A CHANGE that will become apparent to everybody who follows school affairs — and bring sighs of relief from school board members and administrators — is made by SB 51, by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose. It moves the date for publication of the next year's school budget back to where it used to be — the last week in July, with public hearing following during the first week in August.

There is a story behind this. Two years ago, a pair of bills in the legislature — which were supposed to move together — called for the legislature itself to set the amount of state aid to school districts in May, and for the districts to publish budgets and hold hearings in June. But the first measure died — the legislators not being about to hurry themselves — while the second passed. This resulted in somehighly unrealistic school budgets, since the districts had to complete them before they knew what state money they would get.

HARDLY ANYONE except the state printer ever will be aware of some of the laws enacted. Such a one is AB 291, by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-Huntington Park. It repeals the "California Academies Act," a dead letter from the last century which provided for establishment and operation of state academies.

By the time school authorities find out what's in all of them, though, the legislature will be in session again, making more changes.

Practical tips on how to get more for your money

Presented as a public service by private enterprise — this newspaper and your business-supported Better Business Bureau.

How smart are you in your job as "family purchasing agent"?

One survey found that most high school graduates can do a very competent job of shopping in a supermarket — can buy almost as efficiently as a professional home economist. Another study discovered that most women know exactly what to do when disappointed in a purchase: they complain either to the store, the manufacturer or the Better Business Bureau.

So it's quite possible that you already are the wise, informed shopper our headline talks about. But maybe some of these suggestions will help you be still more knowledgeable and alert.

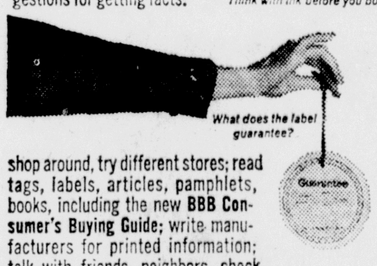
Ask Right Questions

Before you buy anything except routine necessities, first ask: "Should I buy it? Can I afford it? If I buy this, will it deprive me or any of my family of something else we need more?"

Second, "What are my requirements? What specifications — exactly what size, capacity or whatever — do I really need?"

Third, "What does similar merchandise sell for elsewhere? What facts should I know about this item, and how can I get them?" (Suggestions for getting facts:

Think with ink before you buy



What does the label guarantee?

shop around, try different stores; read tags, labels, articles, pamphlets, books, including the new BBB Consumer's Buying Guide; write manufacturers for printed information; talk with friends, neighbors, check their buying experiences; call your Better Business Bureau.)

Rules for Buying

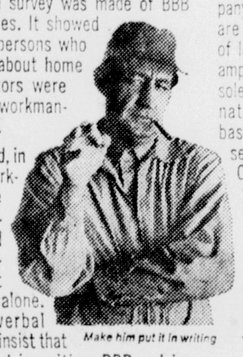
Finally, to get your money's worth, keep in mind these rules for intelligent buying: 1. Buy only from reliable businessmen. If you don't know the firm, see what the experience of others has been. 2. Don't shop for price alone. Quality can be just as important. 3. Read ads carefully. Be cautious when you see such claims as "unbelievable savings!"

4. Learn to recognize an honest salesman: he knows his merchandise, gives a full explanation, does not evade questions. 5. Never sign a blank contract. Always read before you sign. 6. Get all promises in writing. 7. If in doubt about a company or business practice, call your BBB.

Now, consider how these rules work out in practice:

Making Home Improvements

To help people select and work with home improvement firms, recently a survey was made of BBB experiences in 79 cities. It showed that most frequently persons who complain to Bureaus about home improvement contractors were distressed over poor workmanship or unfinished work.



Make him put it in writing

These problems resulted, in part, from itinerant workers and high pressure selling, but also because many people did not seek out a reliable contractor or just decided on price alone. Many accepted verbal promises, did not insist that promises be put in writing. BBBs advise: Know the contractor's reputation. Make sure all work to be done is written into the contract, and read — and understand it — before you sign.

TV and Radio Repair

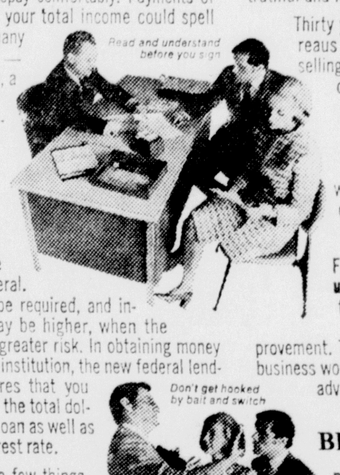
Manufacturers are working constantly to produce trouble-free radio and TV sets. Still, electronic devices can have occasional operating problems, most of them readily solved by competent servicemen. However, your BBB suggests you know the reputation of a serviceman before you call on him.

Although most radio-TV service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of complaints. When a concern advertises home service at an extremely low price, it may be "bait" to get your set into the shop, where higher charges are added. Reputable firms provide qualified personnel and equipment, a guarantee on work and materials, a work order showing prices of each part.

Deal only with radio-TV repair firms you know to be reliable. When in doubt, contact your BBB.

Facts About Borrowing

To be safe and sensible when you borrow money, borrow only for worthwhile purposes, and only as much as you can repay comfortably. Payments of more than 15% of your total income could spell trouble. There are many ways to borrow — from your insurance, a bank, a savings and loan, a finance company, etc. And there are various types of loans — for example, a loan based solely on your signature vs a loan based on tangible security or collateral.



Read and understand before you sign

Co-makers may be required, and interest rates may be higher, when the lender takes a greater risk. In obtaining money from a lending institution, the new federal lending law requires that you be informed of the total dollar cost of the loan as well as the annual interest rate.

These are just a few things smart consumers must know about buying specific kinds of goods and services. You also must know enough to reject such unscrupulous practices as "bait and switch".

No reputable company would stoop to such a practice, but some firms will run an ad offering a product at an extremely low price merely as a come-on. That's the "bait". When customers come in, the salesman tells them the advertised product is inadequate or "sold out" — and tries to sell them something more expensive, and often, over-priced. That's the "switch".

If a product is advertised well below the usual price, be cautious. Check the advertiser's reputation with your BBB. If you come in and the salesman tries to switch you, tell him you're just not interested!

Truth in Advertising

Fortunately, most business is honest; and over the years, advertising and selling have become more truthful and informative.

Thirty years ago, most people called the Bureaus to complain — about advertising or selling misrepresentation. Today it's just the opposite. Most people call the Bureaus not to complain but simply to inquire. Of the more than 4½ million calls to the BBBs last year, 9 out of 10 were inquiries — people who simply wanted to check on the reputation of a company or find out about some business practice.

Frequently, today's problems result from unintentional mistakes. In 80-90% of the cases, Bureaus report voluntary solutions. Even so, there's room for improvement. That's why communications media and business work constantly with the Bureaus to make advertising and selling honest and helpful.

Don't get hooked by bait and switch

BBB 6-Point Program

But that's only part of the BBB activity. To serve and protect you, the consumer, American business spends millions of dollars every year to maintain 147 BBB offices across the country. These Bureaus operate a 6-Point Program in your behalf:

1. BBBs answer your consumer inquiries. 2. BBBs act on your consumer complaints. 3. BBBs handle customer relations problems. 4. BBBs work with advertising and media to lift advertising standards. 5. BBBs offer you consumer information. 6. BBBs make facts about business-customer relations available to government.

Available from your BBB (Better Business Bureau)

How well does this business-supported program serve you personally? To a considerable extent, that's up to you. The more you use it, the more you benefit. Before buying anything, if you have doubts about a company, questions about a business practice, or simply want more information, accept this invitation and call your Better Business Bureau.

Low Bidder Claims Error, Wanting Out

The low bidder in Mill Valley's middle school project wants to withdraw its bid because of a $100,000 error, the Mill Valley School District board has been told.

Supt. James A. Collins reported that the Charles Branagh Co. of Oakland submitted a $2,518,600 bid Friday for construction of the 1,200-student facility, but a spokesman later said that the bid was $100,000 lower than intended.

Collins said he met Saturday with two members of the school district board, Assist. County Counsel Richard V. Godino and a Branagh representative to discuss the error.

"The board made no decision Monday night on whether to release the company from its bid," Collins said. A special meeting was set for next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Park School to consider the middle school question.

If Branagh is not held to the bid, the contract for the school at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue probably will be awarded to Dickman Construction Co. of Mountain View for $2,592,00. District engineers had estimated the school would cost $2.6 million.

The Mill Valley School District board also:

HANDICAPPED — Agreed to cooperate with the Child Center of San Anselmo on developing a program to evaluate the district's educationally handicapped program.

STUDENT TEACHERS — Approved a student teacher agreement with San Francisco State College.

TRANSFERS — Approved the transfer of two Richmond students to the district because their father studies at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary and their mother works there.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Joyce Blesi, who wants to stay in Hawaii, and Marie Teather, who wants to retire.

TEACHERS — Hired teachers Susan Oliver for Edna Maguire School at $8,800 a year, Christine Herrmann for Edna Maguire at $8,058, and Ruth Ragle for Old Mill School at $4,029.

CLOSED SESSION — Met in closed session to instruct its negotiating team on salary discussions with the Mill Valley Teachers Association. Collins said the team would hold another closed session with the board Monday for further instruction.

Bid Refused On Stinson Beach Land

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District refused to award the bid on the sale of the nine-tenths-acre Stinson Beach school property Monday night because neither of two bidders reached the district's acceptable minimum price of $12,000.

According to Supt. Lester M. Horning, the two bids received were for $8,100 and $7,500. He said the board plans to call for bids on the site a second time at a date to be determined.

The Bolinas-Stinson School District Board Also:

LAND PURCHASE — Approved an option to purchase approximately two acres of property adjacent to Bolinas School from Mrs. Ellen Bourne for $22,500. The land will be used for additional playing fields and new construction.

STUDENT TEACHERS — Approved a contract with San Francisco State College for a student teacher for the district this year.

MUSIC TEACHER — Agreed to hire Elizabeth Okamura of Bolinas to teach piano and voice for 12 weeks at a salary of $288.

OUTDOOR EDUCATION — Voted to pay $962 to allow 50 youngsters from the district to attend the outdoor education program in San Mateo County for a week beginning Nov. 2.

JIM GILMARTIN

He's Irv Chapman, Alias Mr. Shoes

Golf Digest Magazine, the national pasture pool bible, has sent a giveaway contest entry form to shoe merchant Irving Chapman at his place of business.

Addressed to: "Mr. Chapmans Shoes, 1236 Fourth Street, San Rafael, CA, 94901," it's the same old "personalized" sales pitch for new subscribers.

Chapman's letter goes like this: "Your lucky number, Mr. Shoes, is LE3101. You may have already won a chance for you and another member of the Shoes family to escape San Rafael for the British Isles . . ."

Continuing, the lengthy letter gushes enticingly, "Imagine, Mr. Shoes, leaving 1236 Fourth Street, San Rafael behind to spend 15 glorious days . . . " etc.

Later on, the very personal letter explains: "Please keep in mind, Mr. Shoes, all prizes will be won in this giveaway."

Then The Sales Pitch

The letter also goes to great lengths to tell Mr. Shoes how a subscription to Golf Digest could lower his handicap "by 2, 3, 5 even 10 strokes!" To prove it, the letter listed these names and potential scores: "Billy Casper, 68; Sam Snead, 69; Deane Beman, 68; Chapmans Shoes, 67."

Mr. Shoes . . . er, Mr. Chapman . . . thinks the Golf Digest computer is a bit confused, but he got a kick out of it anyway, bless his sole.

AND WHILE we'r on this golf kick, it delights me to tell you the story of Mr. Peter Pantages of Corte Madera.

Mr. Pantages, accompanied by two friends, attended a meeting at the San Rafael Elks Club recently and purchased three chances in a drawing for a set of Wilson K28 golf clubs and leather bag.

Mr. Pantages generously gave each of his friends a ticket so it was a really a case of poetic justice when the ticket he kept for himself won the prize, val ued at an estimated $400.

And he can use the fancy sticks. An ardent golfer, Pantages also is publicity chairman for the Mill Valley Men's Golf Club.

Jackson Pays The Price

HONOR JACKSON, the ex-Tamite doing big things for U. of Pacific's football team, caught 7 passes for 120 yards and a touchdown in that 24-18 victory over U. of Texas at El Paso last Saturday, but paid a price for the stardom: A dislocated thumb.

JOHN DOLINSEK, the Novatan who for a long time this summer led the Southern League in hitting while starring for the Columbus, Ga. Astros, has slumped under .300 for the first time this year. Latest word out of the S.L. puts his average at .296. Jawn's 10 triples lead the league in that category.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Terra Linda Has The Upper Hand

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Marin County Athletic League football season, 1970 style, may not be much of a race. The team at the top, Terra Linda, is likely to remain there for a fourth straight year. A state power, the Trojans seem better than last year when they won theMCAL crown.

Last Saturday night the blue and gold debuted with a 31-7 slaughter of Palo Alto. Don Lucas' charges have everything — size, speed, depth and experience .They also possess an intangible but highly important asset known as momentum.

If the Trojans should falter, however, no fewer than three teams will be waiting to claim the MCAL crown, and the league could turn into a free-for-all.

A clearer picture will begin to develop this weekend when all the rest of the league teams begin their pre-league practice schedules.

Only two clubs are considered no-contenders, and ironically, they tied each other for second place last season. Redwood, which lost 18 players from 1969 including four all-leaguers, will be the weakest it's been in years. For new head coach Phil Roark the coming season means a fresh start for the team that dominated the MCAL in the early sixties.

San Marin surprised a lot of people by posting a 6-2 record in 1969, the team's first year of varsity competition. But, like Redwood, the Mustangs lost four all-leaguers, and this year the picture looks bleak. Only 28 boys came out for the team, and it will take all of coach Bob Martin's know-how to make the Novato school's record respestable this season.

Three teams in the MCAL — San Rafael, Drake, and Tamalpais — are evenly matched, and any of them could give Terra Linda trouble.

San Rafael is, by consensus of league coaches, the best of the three. The Bulldogs have speed, numbers (16 lettermen), and a couple of offensve stars in quarterback Dirk Gansloser and flanker Scott Duncan. The team's passing attack, with Gansloser throwing to veteran receivers Duke Bessee and Doug Puskar, should be among the most effective in the league. Coach Bob Muster can look forward to a highly successful season.

Drake is another club highly regarded by opposing coaches. But where San Rafael depends on speed, the Pirates' strong suit will be size. Their line, the biggest in the league, will average over 200 pounds from tackle to tackle.

That line should give quarterback Rick Mason all the time in the world to throw.

Perry Stretches Shutout Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gaylord Perry refuses for even one second to talk about his chances of winning the 1970 National League Cy Young award but he has to be thinking about them now that he has 21 victories with three more starts remaining.

The hard-working righthander who celebrated his 32nd birthday, stopped the Atlanta Braves on four hits Tuesday night for his third consecutive shutout as the San Francisco Giants chalked up an easy 8-0 victory.

EASY

The nine scoreless innings gave Perry a string of 29 and he made it look ridiculously easy as he ran through the Atlanta lineup in 104 pitches and in 2 hours and 9 minutes. With 298 -2-3 innings in the can already Perry figures to beat his N L leading 325 innings worked in 1969.

"Please don't ask me anything about winning awards," Perry said. "I'm just happy to be pitching and winning. I don't want to think about anything except my next start."

In winning his 21st game Perry tied Bob Gibson of the Cardinals for most victories in the N.L. and a couple of more victories should put him in the running for Cy Young Honors.

EXTRA DAY

Perry was given an extra days' rest since winning his 20th game and both he and manager Charlie Fox agreed it made a difference in his performance against Atlanta.

"An extra day off at this time of the season makes a lot of difference," said Perry. "I really needed the time off and I was happy to get it but I didn't ask for it."

Perry gave up a double and single to Rico Carty and two singles to Mike Lum. He didn't walk a man and struck out only two, which is low for him.

"I don't care about strikeouts," Perry said. "It's outs," Perry said. "It's better to get them to hit my pitch and get them out that way. It saves a lot of wear and tear and if you win what's the difference."

Alan Gallagher hit his fourth big league homer in the fourth for a 4-0 lead and the Giants put the game out of reach with four more runs off reliever Bob Priddy in the eighth.

INTREPID WINS

America's Cup Double Protest

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)—A hearing by the New York Yacht Club's racing committee today will either verify the opening America's Cup victory by Intrepid or disqualify the 1970 defender and award the race to the challenging Gretel II of Australia.

Bob Bavier, helmsman of the winning 1964 Constellation and moderator at a post-race press conference Tuesday, said in his opinion the race would not be resailed.

OPINION

"My guess is that the race will be awarded to the skipper whose protest is upheld," Bavier explained. "In that case, the race will not be resailed."

Both skippers, Jim Hardy of Gretel II, and Bill Ficker of Intrepid, hoisted early protest flags and the red banners flew for the duration of the race won by the United States' defender in five minutes, 52 seconds.

The committee can disallow both protests, or find one of the skippers right.

Hardy asked for a lay-day to clear sea water from his winches and Ficker expected to spend today washing Intrepid's sails and making some minor steering adjustments prior to Thursday's second race.

CLOSE

The actual race was close for the first two legs, with Intrepid grabbing a two-second lead at the start, boosting the margin to 1.03 at the first mark and 1:08 at the second leg.

Two unfortunate occurrances killed Australia's chances for making the race close at the finish. The Aussies lost time following the first turn when Gretel II's spinnaker became fouled as the sail wrapped itself around the headstay and could not unfurl. The blue and white spinnaker looked like an hourglass running out of time.

SHORT LOSS

The disciplined Aussie Crew, however, managed to hoist a matching sail and lost only five seconds along the four-mile stretch. Gretel II then lost a crewman as Paul Salmon was hit by a wave on the rain-slicked deck and fell overboard. Hardy made two passes at picking up his water-logged crew member and lost approximately two and one-half minutes. Sir Frank Packer's second entry into America's Cup racing reached the third marker behind the speeding Intrepid.

Never having lost a race in its original form, the redesigned Intrepid did not falter on the fourth leg as Ficker, the 42-year-old Newport Beach, California architect, increased the margin to 4:11 and added more than two minutes on the fifth leg downwind to make the final turn 6:15.

NOT BOTHERED

Gretel II closed again in its windward specialty and reduced the final margin to 5:52.

Ficker, unlike an Intrepid Syndicate spokesman who complained that the U.S. Coast Guard failed to police spectator boats properly, said he wasn't bothered by the fleet of onlookers.

A Powerful Year For Campaneris

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bert Campaneris is approaching the conclusion of his strangest season in the major leagues.

Oakland's slender but muscular shortstop, never known prior to 1969 as a power hitter, enabled the A's to split a doubleheader with Milwaukee Tuesday night by slugging a pair of home runs. Oakland won the nightcap 6-5 after dropping the opener 1-0.

20 HOMERS

Campaneris now has 20 homers, leaving him tied in that department with burly Sal Bando and one behind powerful Reggie Jackson. He has 58 runs batted in to place fourth among the A's in that category.

The home run and RBI totals are Campy's highest in his seven-year major league career, yet his batting average has not taken a corresponding dip. In fact, his current mark of .279 is better than his previous career high. He also leads the American League in stolen bases.

Campaneris homered with a man on and two out in the ninth to pull Oakland from a 5-4 deficit to a nightcap victory. He had given the A's their first run of the game with a bases empty blast in the third inning.

BEST GAME

Skip Lockwood, formerly a member of the A's farm system, hurled the best game of his major league career in the opener to blank Oakland on only two hits. Dave May drove in the winning run in the fifth inning against A's starter John Odom, who fired a five-hitter but suffered his seventh defeat compared to eight wins.

The A's remain eight games behind first place Minnesota in the American League West. They close their series against the Brewers with a single game tonight. Diego Segui (10-10) of Oakland pitches against former teammate Lew Krausse (13-16).

Oakland begins a six-game

Getting Wound Up With Sports Watches

Well, I see where some guy got rich making Spiro Agnew watches. Now they're making Ronnie Reagan watches and Richard Nixon watches. You're nobody till somebody winds you.

I expect some entrepreneur to move into the world of sports with his wrist watches soon, and here is what we may expect:

THE PETE ROSE watch — put it on and it runs so fast, every hour is only 30 minutes long and it never needs winding.

THE WILLIE SHOEMAKER watch — put it on and it gains on the JOHNNY LONGDEN watch.

THE WALTER ALSTON watch — put it on and it explains the infield fly rule.

THE BOBBY BONDS watch — put it on and it always strikes three.

THE FLOYD PATTERSON watch — put it on and it keeps falling down every 10 seconds.

THE SONNY LISTON watch — stick it in a corner and it'll quit.

THE JIMMY JONES watch — doesn't do anything for the first 57 minutes, then catches up and goes past itself in the last three.

THE MAURY WILLS watch — put it on and it steals other watches.

THE DON SUTTON watch — the dial is actually a gopher.

THE JOE NAMATH watch — can only be seen in the dark.

THE RICHIE ALLEN watch — the big hand is a martini glass, the little hand is a champagne bottle, and it hiccups on the hour.

THE JIM BOUTON watch — squeals round the clock.

THE FRANK HOWARD watch — the big hand is a glove, the little hand is a ball falling out of it.

THE JOHN BRODIE watch — runs backward, loses steadily.

THE GEORGE ALLEN watch — has 70 minutes to the hour.

THE WOODY HAYES BIG TEN FOOTBALL COACH watch — knows what time it is but won't tell you, and has removed the hands in case you spy.

THE DEACON JONES watch — a 2-for-1 bargain, comes with the quarterback of your choice wrapped in his arms.

THE MERLIN OLSEN watch — an alarm clock, set it and it gives you a clout along the helmet at the time you want to be awakened.

Then, there's the LLOYD BRIDGES watch which works only under water, the WILT CHAMBERLAIN watch which dunks the hour, and the POLISH OBSERVATORY watch which gives the right time but the wrong century, and the LEO DUROCHER watch which is rated "R".

McCloughan Survives Raider Cut

OAKLAND (UPI) — Former all-leaguer Kent McCloughan, hard pressed to regain his place in the heavily populated secondary of the Oakland Raiders, has survived the final roster cut prior to the club's regular season opener.

McCloughan was assured of a role in Oakland's 1970 plans Tuesday when defensive backs Jackie Allen and Howie Williams were among four players waived by the Raiders.

TAXI SQUAD

Allen, a second year pro from Baylor, was picked up by the Buffalo Bills along with rookie tackle Art Laster of Maryland State. Williams, a nine-year veteran from Howard University, remained eligible for the taxi squad along with second year tight end Lloyd Edwards of San Diego State.

The slender, exceptionally swift McCloughan perfected the bump-and-run style of pass defense in his rookie year of 1965. As he advanced to all-league acclaim in 1966 and 1967, his defensive style became a trademark of the entire Raider defensive backfield.

INJURY

Sidelined by a knee injury all of 1969 and much of 1968, McCloughan was under pressure to win his job back from left corner Nemiah Wilson. Ironically, Wilson had the best year of his career in 1969 after coming to Oakland and adopting McCoughan's technique.

Coach John Madden has chosen to leave his stingy Soul Patrol secondary intact by keeping Wilson in the starting lineup.

Dope Scandal Hits Weight Lifting Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)— Five of the first six finishers in the first two events of the world weight lifting championships here, all from Iron Curtan countries, were disqualified Tuesday after tests revealed the athletes had taken amphetamines.

The weightlifters, two each from Poland and Hungary and one from Russia, were disqualified after urine tests made on the top three finishers in flyweight and bantamweight competition revealed "not just a dab of drugs but a great deal, and there were no borderline cases," said a tournament spokesman.

JUST ONE

The only top preformer through the first two days of competition to pass the test was bantamweight champion Mohammed Nassiri of Iran. Flyweight winner Sandor Holczreiter of Hungary was one of those disqualified.

The urine tests on Monday night's top finishers, which included Poles Mecislav Nowak who won the featherweight title and teammate Jan Wojnowski who finished second, were expected to be made public today.

Two Poles and a Hungarian were the top three finishers in the lightweight competition Tuesday night and were given urine tests immediately after the event.

WINNERS

Zbigniev Kaczmarek of Poland won the event and Waldemar Baszanowski, a teammate and defending champion, was second. Janos Vagocs of Hungary was third.

The announcement brought angry rebuttals from the foreign delegations. In statements made through a translator, Arkady Lenz of Russia charged there was the possibility of a "frameup."

"It was with deep regret that we learned about the farce staged before the 1970 world championships," said Lenz. "One wonders about the so-called fairness when the five disqualified people were all from behind the Iron Curtain."

Januz Przedpelski of Poland said his country's delegation would withdraw unless the decision is changed. Lenz said his group would "reserve the right to withdraw."

DISPUTED

Lenz, Przedpelski and Dezso Toth of Hungary disputed the test analyses with claims the tubes of urine were not sealed and were taken to a hospital laboratory by only one person.

"It looks like a frameup," Lenz said. Soviet athletes have a "long tradition of pure sportsmanship," he added.

The Hungarian team physician, who was not identified, said his country's athletes "didn't use this. It couldn't happen. This (dope) is forbidden in Hungary. We will do everything we can do to have the decision reversed."

International weightlifting president Clarence Johnson of Detroit said, "naturally we will

Eagles Release Ex-49er Mira

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

PHILADELPHIA — Quarterback George Mira, for five years a frustrated reserve with the San Francisco 49ers, has been released by the Philadelphia Eagles.

Mira was placed on irrevocable waivers Tuesday.

He had been traded to the Eagles in 1969 for offensive lineman Randy Beisler and a future draft choice. Both Beisler and the drafted player, John Isenbarger, still are on the San Francisco roster.

In other football news:

STANFORD — Reserved seat tickets for next month's Stanford-USC football game already have been sold out. The game Oct. 10 is expected to be a pivotal factor in determining the 1970 champion of the Pacific-8 Conference.

The 18-year-old senior was suffering from heat prostration when he was rushed from practice at Lindale High School to Tyler Medical Center.

Boxing

NEW YORK — Referee Davey Feld was carried kicking and struggling out of Madison Square Garden by 10 uniformed policemen just before last night's bout between Floyd Patterson and Charley Green, won by Patterson.

Feld had been assigned to referee the bout, but trainers for both fighters objected to having him officiate. Tony Perez was named as a substitute, and when Feld tried to climb into the ring he had to be ejected.

Coach Bob Franceschini insists this will be a building year for Drake, but other MCAL coaches think otherwise.

The most mysterious team in the league will be Tamalpais. If Indian coach Mike Davlin had 18 lettermen like he was supposed to, the Mill Valley team would rate a solid choice for second place. Only 11 veterans and 27 players altogether showed up, however, and Davlin is faced with a question mark where an exclamation point had been.

Yet what they lack in quantity, the Indians make up for in quality. Clifford Hall, Bill Washington and Mark Costello are as good a set of backs as the league has to offer, and tackle Bill Rudolph should be an all-leaguer.

Besides depth, the biggest obstacle for Tam will be trying to find a first class quarterback. Three veterans are fighting for the job, but none has exhibited star qualities. If they can solve that problem and stay free of injuries, the Indians could be near the top.

The last team to be considered, the Novato Hornets, rate with San Rafael as one of the best passing clubs in the league. All-league candidate quarterback Marty Morowski will be throwing behind an all-veteran interior line to another possible all-leaguer, end Dave Judnick.

The Hornets figure to be a high scoring club that will give everybody trouble, but most of the league coaches do not rate them in the top four.

It appears, then, that San Rafael, Drake and Tam have the best shots at Terra Linda. But the Trojans may be unbeatable this year. They have a strong, balanced offense, and a rock-hard defense. And their depth is amazing. They have first rate talent at every position, something no other club can claim. If last Saturday was an example of things to come, the Trojan dynasty will be secure in 1970.

All MCAL teams will see preseason action this weekend, all except Terra Linda for the first time this season.

On Friday, San Marin will journey to Alameda for a game against Encinal at 3:30 p.m., Drake will be at Petaluma High at 8, and San Rafael will host Washington of San Francisco at 8.

Games scheduled for Saturday include Montgomery of Santa Rosa at Novato at 1 p.m., Redwood against Sacred Heart at Washington High School in San Francisco at 2, Tamalpais at Salesian in Richmond at 8, and Riordan of San Francisco vs. Terra Linda at San Rafael at 8.

Taylor Is 49er Starter

San Francisco waived three players Tuesday, including starting right corner Johnny Woitt, to make Taylor a first stringer beginning with Sunday's regular season opener against the Washington Redskins.

THREE CUTS

Woitt, a third year pro from Mississippi State, was cut from the active roster along with second year wide receiver Leo Johnson and rookie linebacker Carter Campbell.

Taylor, a rookie from Boston University drafted No. 2 on the first round, has been second string behind Woitt throughout the preseason. But coach Dick Nolan hopes speed and instinct will help Taylor neutralize his own inexperience.

Woitt came to San Francisco as a free agent in 1968. He fought hard to make the active roster but did not start a game until Kermit Alexander was injured for a couple of contests in 1969.

TRADED

Alexander was traded to Los Angeles prior to the 1970 season, leaving the job to Woitt and Taylor.

Johnson was drafted on the sixth round from Tennessee State in 1968. However, he did not make the active list until 1969, when he served almost entirely on the special teams.

Campbell, a quick but slender prospect from Weber State, was drafted on the eighth round.

Woitt, Johnson and Campbell all are eligible for the San Francisco taxi squad.

Doves Triumph

The Doves defeated the Bar, 7-4, Cain's Tires edged Suburban Auto, 4-3, and Fairfax Shell got by Foust Chevron, 7-6 last night in San Rafael adult softball league games at Albert Park.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Pirates' Victory Puts 'Em On Top

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates feel they won the most important game they have played so far in the three-cornered National League East race.

"I was a little apprehensive before the game," admitted Manager Danny Murtaugh after the Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-3, Tuesday night. "We lost a real tough one in Chicago Sunday and you never know how a team will react."

'CRITICAL'

Bill Mazeroski and Willie Stargell also admitted Tuesday night's game was "critical" because of Sunday's 3-2 ninth-inning loss to the Cubs.

"We could have gone either way but we went for the best," said Mazeroski.

Stargell sent the Pirates off in front with a three-run homer in the first inning and Mazeroski and Rich Hebner also homered in Pittsburgh's 12-hit attack. Luke Walker struggled with his control for five innings during which time he walked seven batters but the Pirates had a 5-2 lead by that time and Dave Giusti pitched the last two innings for the save.

The victory enabled the Pirates to complete the day one full game ahead of the Cubs and Mets with a .534 percentage. The Cubs have a .527 percentage after beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 while the Mets dropped to .527 after losing a night game to the Montreal Expos, 5-4 in 11 innings.

The Houston Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds, 9-2, the San Francisco Giants downed the Atlanta Braves, 8-0, and the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Diego Padres 5-4 in other NL games.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 6 Washington 5, California over Minnesota, 5-4 after a 7-5 loss, New York over Boston 8-6 and 3-2, Cleveland 3-1, Detroit 3, and Oakland over Milwaukee 6-5 after a 14-1 defeat. Chicago at Kansas City was rained out.

SANTO HOMERS

Billy Williams drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Ron Santo hit his 25th home for the Cubs, who dealt Steve Carlton his 19th loss. Ken Holtzman allowed nine hits and all three St. Louis runs in the eight innings with Phil Regan pitching the ninth.

John Bateman's bases-filled single off Ron Herbel climaxed a two-run 10th-inning rally which gave the Expos the victory over the Mets. It was a bitter loss for the Mets, who tied the score 3-3 on Dave Marshall's homer with two out in the ninth and took a 4-3 lead on Tommie Agee's homer in the 10th. Jerry Koosman will be pitched the tying run home in the Expos' 10th.

BOATING

Coast Guard Lists Safety Equipment

By STAN DAVIES

There are so many agencies talking about boating safety that there is frequently confusion in the minds of many boating people as to what safety equipment is required by law and what equipment is merely a good idea. Well, I'm sure that most people know that the law demands that every boat carry one approved life preserver, buoyant vest, ring buoy or buoyant cushion for each person on board. But undoubtedly many think their obligation ends there.

TO HAVE a clear understanding of exactly what your boat should carry in the way of safety equipment as required by law, obtain a copy of the official U.S. Coast Guard Recreational Boating Guide (CG-340). The booklet costs 45 cents and can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

There is a tremendous confusion in the minds of many boat operators concerning the required safety equipment as these questions I've been asked indicate:

Q. Buoyant cushions are a lot cheaper than life jackets. Are they as good?

A. They're just as good to sit on. However, as lifesaving devices, I think they have a very limited use. A lot of people share this belief. Ths cushions will not keep your head out of water if you should pass out from exposure — a common eventuality in boating accidents in our cold northern waters. Under these circumstances there is no substitute for the very best life preserver.

Q. I brought home three jackets from Europe (Britain). Are they acceptable here?
here?

A. No. The word approved in the Act means that life jackets acceptable on American boats have to be approved by the U.S. Coast Guard. Otherwise they don't count.

Q. Must we have a life jacket for our six months old baby?

A. The law says each "person" aboard; it doesn't mention age; and Webster says a person is an "individual human being." And that includes your baby. However, there are various sizes of life jackets and buoyant vests and the smallest may not be a good fit for your baby without some extra tying tapes. Fit is very important for safety.

Q. I just bought a 26 foot inboard boat. It has no bell but I'm told it should have one. Why?

A. The bell is a fog signal. If your are anchored you must ring it for five seconds every minute.

Q. I am going on a wilderness trip in my collapsible boat. Should I take along flares?

A. They are not required by law but taking them along is a terrific idea, especially daytime orange smoke flares. If you do get into trouble they can be seen for miles and will bring help quickly.

Q. What kind of a life jacket is best for canoing?

A. None is required by law and learning how to handle a canoe is pretty good safety device in itself. It won't sink. Apart from that, a good life jacket would be a comfortable one that could be worn for long periods.

Q. I consider a bailer essential on a boat. What's a good kind?

A. I think the best of course is a pump. But a very effective bailer can be made from a big tin can, or from a one gallon plastic bottle —the type that has a handle. Cut the bottom out of the bottle, leave the cap on and use the handle in a scooping fashion.

Nice Guy Patterson Is Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—The doctor was waiting to examine the gash still oozing blood over Floyd Patterson's left eye. But first the two-time heavyweigh' champion had to convince his mother that the cut was just a nick.

"It's nothing," he said consoling her. "I never cut in my fights, and this is just a cut I got in training a couple of weeks ago, and it got reopened out there."

BOOED

For a few moments, however, as the crowd of nearly 11,000 at Madison Square Garden hooted and booed, it looked like the cut might end Patterson's comeback try against Charlie "Devil" Green after a two-year layoff. Dr. Harry Kleiman stepped into the ring and looked at the cut after it was opened in the fifth round, but then he let the fight continue.

With blood streaming dow his cheek, Patterson final ended the bout himself b knocking out Green with only 6 seconds remaining in the 10 round.

DOWN TWICE

In the first round, there wa Patterson on the canvas twice wrestled and bulled down by his opponent instead of being dropped by punches. And while he tried to pull himself up by using a rope from the ring, the 28-year-old Green stood on his toes and punched Patterson in the back of the neck while the angry crowd went wild.

Patterson, a gentleman until the final knockout punch, merely held out his gloves, sort of an apology for falling down.

And not even the cut could stir the 35-year-old fighter's ire. "He (Green) opened it with a punch," Patterson said, "but it got aggravated by an accidental b "

"It was a butt that opened it, too," Patterson's trainer, Ernie Fowler, said softly in the back of the dressing room. "It was so bad that the doctor could have stopped it right there."

SPRAWLING

In the eighth round, Patterson had figured out Green's barroom bouncer technique and cracked over a flurry of punches that sent the 2-1 underdog sprawling through the ropes onto the ring apron. Instead of stalking to a neutral corner to await the count, Patterson helped Green to his feet, probably convincing Tony Perez, rushed in at the last moment as a substitute referee when there were objections to the original official, to call it a slip.

Finally, in the last round, Patterson whipped over a short left to Green's heart. Green went down in a heap and barely missed getting up before the count of ten. It was Patterson's 47th victory and 36th kayo against seven losses and a draw in 18 years while Green's mark dropped to 13-7.

Evan Perry's Great Sons

By JACK HANLEY

Evan Perry raised obth of his sons, Jim and Gaylord, to be pitchers. That he did a good job is evident in their records, particularly this season when the Perry brothers both won 20 games.

That's never happened before in baseball history. Neither the Coveleski brothers, Harry and Stan, nor the Dean brothers, Dizzy and Daffy, won 20 in the same season.

Evan Perry found time to pitch semi-pro ball between crops of tobacco, corn and peanuts on his Williamston, N.C., farm. He also found time to teach his sons how to pitch. The Perry brothers were the pitching staff one year of the Williamston High School team and Williamston won the state title.

AT AGE 19 in 1956, Jim signed with the Cleveland Indians for a modest bonus. At age 19 in 1958, Gaylord signed with the Giants for $90,000.

By 1960 Jim was an established star with the Indians. Indeed, he led the American League that year with 18 wins. Jim's quick success prompted a story that Cleveland got the pitching Perry and his younger brother got the bonus money.

Gaylord was called up from Tacoma by the Giants in midseason 1962 after opsitng a 10-7 record with a 2.48 ERA in the Pacific Coast League. He appeared in 13 games for the Giants during their 1962 pennant year. His 3-1 record looked good but his 5.23 ERA was, to say the least, disappointing. In 1963 his 1-6 record and 4.03 ERA both were disappointing.

GAYLORD INITIATED spring consultations with Jim. They saw a lot of each other in the spring because both Giants and Indians trained in Arizona and played a score of exhibition games.

The spring meetings between the brothers ended after 1963. The Indians traded Jim to the Twins who trained in Florida.

IN 1964 Gaylord first showed promise of becoming a big winner. His control, always good, became pinpoint sharp. He walked only 43 in206 innings He allowed only two earned runs in one 45 inning stretch. He pitched 10 shutout innings against the Mets and got the win in the 23 inning thriller of May 31, 1964. Still, his 12-11 record was that of a .509 pitcher.

In 1965 he wasn't even a .500 pitcher. His control was still sharp but now he was grooving the ball. In one seven game stretch he was whacked for 10 homers. He wound up 1955 a most disappointing 8-12.

IN THE spring of 1966 Gaylord, upon the insistence of Giant pitching coach Larry Jansen, discarded his three-quarter delivery and became an over-the-top pitcher. Jansen also taught Perry a slider and on his own Perry developed a super-sinker which the umps effectively stopped this season as a grease ball.

When Gaylord became a 20-game winner in 1966 for the first time, he was asked ir he still called his brother for advice.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Diversity Aiding Company's Outlook

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you comment on National Gypsum? Do you think earnings will cover the dividend this year? R.C.

A. The 15 per cent increase in housing starts in July was the third consecutive monthly gain in this figure, an encouraging development for any building-related company. The seasonally adjusted July rate of 1.59 million units was reached well ahead of predictions by Michael Sumichrast of the National Association of Home Builders, who projected that a 1.6 million unit-rate would be achieved by year end. National Gypsum, plagued by reduced sales, competive price discounting and higher costs, reported earnings for the first half at 35 cents a share, down from 63 cents in 1969. Aided by increased gypsum gypsum prices in the East, earnings for the full year should reach $1.10, particularly if housing starts continue strong. Although dividend coverage would be narrow, supported by National Gypsum's strong financial position, directors are expected to retain the $1.05 annual payment rate. President Colon Brown expects sales, including results of newly acquired mobile home manufacturer, DHM, will reach $415-$425 million this year. The long-range recovery potential in these shares is much improved as a result of a better outlook for the industry and diversification into the rapidly expanding mobile home field.

Q. I invested in Emery Industries at 22 for growth. It has declined over 50 per cent. Should I sell or hold? B.V.

A. A leading producer of fatty acids and organic chemicals, Emery Industries' impressive growth record was interrupted in 1969. While sales and earnings had increased consistently since 1961, higher raw materials costs and reduced consumer demand lowered profits last year and in the first quarter of fiscal 1970. Although earnings may continue to slide for at least another quarter, long-range potential is encouraging. Company has nearly completed a $35 million expansion program designed to increase capacity, particularly of products with higher profit margins. Start-up expenses may penalize profits initially, however, the enlargement will place Emery in a good position for the upturn in consumer spending expected later this year. Hold shares.

Market Takes Winning Tack Late In Date

With about an hour to go, the Dow Jones Industrial Average showed a gain of 2.74 at 753.29.

Of the 1,495 issues crossing the tape, advances topped declines, 718 to 478.

A four-hour turnover of 8,770,000 shares compared with 7,410,000 shares traded at a similar period a year ago.

Analysts said much of the initial setback was a spillover from yesterday's session when the market was largely influenced by the strike at General Motors.

Other analysts said concern over the impact of the General Motors strike on the economy and Middle East unrest "formed background for a downward technical correction" on Tuesday following recent sharp advances. But they observed the correction "may now be in the final stages", and that the list may be poised for a new rise.

Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's said the "basic propellant for the market has been the expansionary policy of the monetary authorities."

Smerling said "plenty of money" is on the sidelines and on any corrective retreat some of it "finds its way into the market."

William Nelson of Moody's Investment Service said he is "cautiously optimistic" about the market's near term prospects, primarily because of easier credit conditions. He said he believed lower interest rates would lead to a turnaround in the economy — "no boom, just a slow recovery."

Electronics and oils showed scattered strength, the two groups which led the recent upswing. Most other major stock groups traded narrowly.

Among the most active issues were Telex Corp., Pitney-Bowes, Computer Sciences, Occidental Petroleum and Natomas.

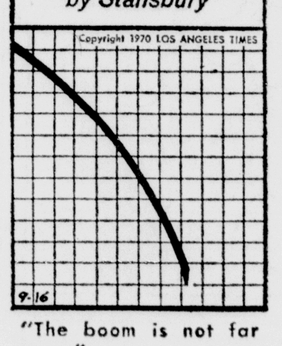
Spokesmen for Natomas and Computer Sciences said they knew of no specific reasons to account for the activity in the stocks.

Prices gained in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Russ Togs Closing Plants To Cut Costs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russ Togs Inc. has closed two manufacturing facilities in Florida and Pennsylvania and plans to close down its Andrew Geller Shoe Salon in New York.

Eli Rousso, president, told a meeting of security analysts Monday the closings are part of a cost-cutting drive. He said the apparel maker "for the time being (is) not seeking acquisitions."



"The boom is not far away."

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Alter Ego Cuts And Styles Both Men's And Women's Hair

A new hair cutting and styling shop for both men and women has opened at 175 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, across from the Country Club Bowl.

Owner young Keith Perry of San Anselmo calls his shop Alter Ego and keeps it open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. through the week and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

He was previously with the Gay Nineties International Barber Salon at Northgate for two years and has acquired a string of several first place prizes in California and Northern California competitive cutting and styling events.

This is his first venture in his own business.

THERE IS A NEW OWNER for Rosemary's Hair Styling at 413 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Mrs. Rosemary Bigel is moving from Marin and has sold to Mrs. Joy Blackmore Sparrow of Mill Valley. She previously worked at Rosemary's as a hair stylist, but for two years has been living in Idaho.

She will keep the same name of the business, the same hours. She has with her Mrs. Maite Alaman of Corte Madera.

A NEW SCHOOL Montessori de Terra Linda, has opened in the Education Building of the Christ Presbyterian Church at 620 Del Ganado Road, Terra Linda. Activities will be guided by Miss Judith Flynn, who received her credential from the London Montessori Training Center.

June H. Lord, administrator for Montessori de Terra Linda, is beginning her third year as administrator for the Ross Academy montessori School in Ross. Mrs. Angela Gonsman of San Anselmo, recently arrived from England where she was trained in the Montessori organization, is new directress at the Ross Academy.

NEW at 115 Third Street, San Rafael is G and S Fiberglass Repair and Refinishing.

This business, owned by Marvin Gelder and Jerry Simpson who spend most of their time out on jobs, is headquartered at Channel Boat Sales. This uses the same telephone number, but is separately operated.

JACK VIDANO of Kentfield has been appointed a vice president of Abrams Realty. His first assignment is as manager of the newly opened branch office at 910 Grant Avenue, Novato. Before joining Abrams he had his own company in San Francisco. He has been a broker for eight years.

I.F. (SCOTTIE) HARDIE of San Rafael will observe his 25th anniversary with Bank of America on Friday. He has been senior credit review officer at Santa Rosa regional headquarters since last year after 14 years of credit responsibilities in San Francisco headquarters. He spent his entire banking career in San Francisco until moving to Santa Rosa last year.

ACCORDING to a new study by Stanford Research Institute and the Center for the Continuing Study of the California Economy, Marin County will have the second highest rate of growth in retail sales of the Bay Area counties in the period from 1968 to 1975. Its 67 per cent gain will be topped only by Santa Clara County's 73 per cent. Third and fourth in line will be Contra Costa with 66 per cent and Sonoma with 65 per cent.

Add another five years to that period and Marin's 1968-1980 increase is expected to reach 140 per cent.

And if you stay around long enough you should see more jobs too — one more by 1975 for every four in 1968 — and three more for every four by 1980.

Buys Subsidiary

CHICAGO (UPI) — Textron Inc. has purchased the numerical controls operations of Compudyne Controls Inc., a subsidiary of Compudyne Corp., for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Investor Affairs Office Suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the world's largest brokerage firm has called for establishment of an "office of investor affairs" within the White House Council of economic Advisers to improve communications between Wall Street Main Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Donald T. Regan, president of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, told a meeting of the National Press Club that such an office "could act as surrogate for all those unpresented shareholders, and as a clearing house for information and analysis — a place where all interested and affected parties could get the facts."

With the establishment of ,,such a high level meeting ground, we might even see the exercise of some statesmanship — a word not usually associated with Wall Street," Reagan said.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 16, the 259th day of 1970.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

American historian Francis Parkman was born in 1823.

On this day in history:

In 1630 the Massachusetts village of Shawmut changed its name to Boston.

In 1893 the Cherokee Strip in Oklahoma was opened to homesteaders. More than 100,000 persons rushed to the area to claim land.

In 1963 the nation of Malaysia was created.

In 1969 President Nixon announced another 35,000 servicemen would be withdrawn from Vietnam.

A thought for thd day: Mark Twain said, "there are several good protections against temptations but the surest is cowardice."

Hijacker Draws 50-Year Term

PECOS, Tex. (UPI)—Joseph C. Crawford pleaded guilty to hijacking a jet airliner at knife point and was sentenced Monday to 50 years in prison.

"This is a terrible crime of an extremely serious nature which I thought you should be made aware of," U.S. District Judge Ernest Guinn said as he pronounced sentence.

Crawford hijacked the plane July 27, 1969, from the Midland-Odessa, Tex., regional airport. He permitted the pilot to return to Midland where the passengers disembarked. He then ordered the plane flown to Cuba.

Trump Opening Lead Lets Kantar Win At Least Two More Tricks

Even among the experts at a national tournament there are misguided souls who lead trumps simply because they're in doubt about what to lead. In one hand played in the Life Master Pair Championship a trump opening lead gave Los Angeles expert Edwin Kantar two or three tricks more than most other experts made with his cards.

LIMITED RAISES

Don't be misled by North's response of three spades. Kantar and his partner were playing "limited" jump raises, and I suspect that North had one of the low clubs mixed with the spades. Most of the experts bid two clubs with the North hand, but my readers are entitled to know what the experts bid even when their bids are somewhat peculiar.

Kantar played dummy's eight on West's opening lead of the three of spades. East put up the nine, and south won with the queen. Declarer next led the ace of spades, unblocking with dummy's ten.

READS THE LEAD

After some thought, Kantar concluded that West would not have led a trump from J-x-x. After more thought, Kantar decided that West's reason for leading a trump had been the hope of protecting strength in all three side suits.

With this in mind, Kantar led the low club from the South hand and tried a finesse with dummy's nine. When this succeeded, he led the deuce of spades from dummy. East followed with the five, and declarer tried a finesse with the six.

The finesse worked, and Kantar drew the last trump and ran the clubs, making 11 tricks.

At most tables, West opened the king of hearts, and the defenders took a heart, a trump, two diamonds and sometimes even a club.

A defender who is too obvious about trying to hold on to everything may manage to hold on to nothing.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ — 10 8 2
♥ — A 4
♦ — 10 6
♣ — A 10 9 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no-trump.

The six-card suit should provide four or five tricks even if partner has very little club length or strength. A raise to two no-trump is sound with 8 points when you have no suit length, but would not do justice to this hand.

Hostages Now Seen As Bargaining Counters

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Prospects for early release of 54 hijack hostages held in Amman by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine faded today as the guerrilla movement united against King Hussein and his imposition of full military rule on the country.

Guerrilla sources said it was clear that if civil war broke out the hostages, most of them American, would be turned into bargaining counters between the two sides. Hussein himself was reported shocked at the hijackings.

The Popular Front, which was suspended from membership from the Palestine Central Committee, was reinstated today as the guerrillas united under Yasser Arafat, the Al Fatah leader. The Central Committee groups all 11 major guerrilla organizations.

The guerrilla statement that hostages would become bargaining pawns came after Hussein tightened martial law, set up a military government and prepared for a showdown with the guerrillas.

The Vatican City magazine L'Osservatore Della Domenica expressed fear that the taking of hostages through hijackings could touch off big power interventionl in the Middle East and undo what has been achieved in 20 years of struggle against colonialism.

However, the United States in particular has stated it has no plans to intervene. The guerrillas have warned that the lives of the hostages would be imperialed if any military action was taken against them.

In London, British officials said there was reason to believe some progress had been made toward establishing the guerrillas' terms for releasing the hostages, but there were no details. Diplomatic sources said unofficial reports indicated the hostages were being reasonably well treated by their captors.

The International Red Cross sent two more delegates to Jordan today to try to ensure the safety of the 54 airline passengers still held hostage, and the powers concerned conferred again in Switzerland, indicating there might be hope the Red Cross would resume negotiations. The guerrillas condemned the Red Cross earlier this week as working for "imperialism."

Meanwhile in Zurich, a Swissair stewardess said today Arab hijackers stole $750,000 from a Swissair DC8 before blowing it up on a Jordanian desert airstrip Saturday.

The stewardess, Ursula Giger, said in a Swiss television interview the pilot of the plane turned the money over to the hijackers after they pointed a pistol at his head and told him they would shoot him unless he told them where it was.

"Naturally he had to hand over the money to save the lives of the passengers and crew," said Miss Giger, who was a crew member on the hijacked aircraft.

She did not say why the money was on board or where it came from.

Miss Giger said the guerrillas did not take valuables from the passengers, though they did keep some of the passports they took.

Golda Meir Heads To Key Nixon Round

Four supersonic F4 Phantoms escorted the prime minister's commercial El Al jetliner as it swung out over the Mediterranean. She was aboard a regularly scheduled flight.

The cabinet and diplomatic corps lined up on a red carpet to bid Mrs. Meir farewell as she inspected air force cadets while the four Phantoms screamed overhead at treetop level. She told newsmen, "All I have to say to you is shalom (peace). Perheps I will have some good news for you when I come back."

Passengers traveling on the same flight as Mrs. Meir were searched before boarding the aircraft. The plane itself was under guard all night and security men kept watch on all flights arriving at or leaving the airport.

As the premier began her mission, an Israeli military spokesman denied a report in The New York Times alleging Israeli violation of the Suez cease-fire.

"We deny, as the embassy in Washington has already denied, there has been any Israeli violation of the cease-fire. Everything that is being done, is being done within the framework of the cease-fire standstill agreement," he said.

During a 20-minute refueling stop at London's Heathrow Airport authorities mounted stringent security precautions. Mrs. Meir did not leave the aircraft during the stop but Israeli Ambassador Michael Comay went to the airliner to talk with her.

Political sources regarded Mrs. Meir's scheduled White House talks with President Nixon Friday as the most crucial visit to the U.S. by an Israeli leader since Israel was born 22 years ago. The two leaders met last Sept. 25 in Washington.

The 72-year-old grandmother premier will present Nixon with the largest military "shopping list" in Israeli history and will ask for credit for the first time in efforts to save Israel's dwindling dollar reserves.

The request for sophisticated military equipment, including additional supersonic F4 Phantom fighter-bombers, will be coupled with a plea for $1 billion in economic aid over five years.

Despite recent diplomatic uneasiness between Washington and Jerusalem, Israeli officials hope Nixon will be more amenable to the military requests than he was last year when considerable hedging on a bid for 25 Phantoms led to Israeli fears of an American closed-door arms policy similar to the British and French embargoes.

Police Scare Off Store Intruders

A burglary attempt on the cash register of the D and W Auto Parts store, 77 Hoag Avenue, San Rafael, failed Monday evening when police apparently scared off intruders.

Police said yesterday the store was entered through a broken bathroom window. The cash register was moved into the bathroom, but not opened. The break-in was discovered shortly after 7 p.m.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Reading, Lights May Bring On Seizures In Epileptics

Van Dellen

Epileptic seizures usually develop spontaneously and often occur when least expected. They may take place when sleeping, driving a car or shopping. Some victims have discovered what precipitates their attacks, and a few develop seizures only in certain situations.

The most common of these unusual stimuli are flashing lights. A convulsion develops after the individual watches television, especially when the picture flickers. Youngsters have been able to bring on an attack by looking at the sun and waving the palm of the hand before their eyes. Certain types of music are blamed for seizures in some people.

READING EPILEPSY, one of the latest, occurs after prolonged reading, silently or aloud. It begins with twitching of the jaw, which gradually increases and is followed by a generalized convulsion. If the book is set aside, the twitching may stop, and there is no fit.

Abnormal waves are noted when the victim reads while attached to the brain wave machine (electroencephalogram). In reading epilepsy, the subject matter is unimportant, although attacks are more likely to occur when the reader is concentrating. Sometimes light, nonsensical reading material will activate the attack.

AUTHORITIES DISAGREE on the modus operandi of reading epilepsy. Some believe movements of the eye are responsible. Others blame the gradual, increased twitching of the jaw, which occurs initially in almost everyone with this type of epilepsy. Emotional reactions also may play a role.

Epilepsy is, perhaps, one of the most baffling of all neurological disorders. The majority of those afflicted are physically and mentally normal. The only positive finding is in the brain wave test; abnormal impulses fire off spontaneously or are provoked by fever, emotional stress, hyperventilation, reading or a flickering light.

'SPOILED' CHILD

Mrs. D.S. writes: My mother in law said that if we continue to pick up our baby every time he cries, we will end up with a 'spoiled' child. Is she right?

REPLY

Not necessarily. The baby develops a sense of love and security if he is picked up when the diaper is soiled or he has "gas" or cramps. On the other hand, it may be necessary to let the child "cry it out" when it is time to sleep.

FAT AND ARTERIES

H.R. writes: How long does it take for fats eaten at dinner to reach and damage the arteries?

REPLY

Fat shows up in the bloodstream within an hour after it is consumed. But we are not certain when or how the arterial wall is affected by this substance.

BOOTIES FOR BABY

A reader writes: On a chilly day, does an infant under one year of age need booties if he is wrapped up in a blanket?

REPLY

No, because the circulation in the hands and feet of an infant is better than in the older child or adult.

OPERABLE CANCER

C. T. writes: Is cancer of the prostate operable?

REPLY

Yes. However, in many instances, estrogenic hormones keep the condition under control for 10 or more years.

SMALLER LIPS

L. R. writes: Can any salve be rubbed on the lips to make them smaller?

REPLY

No savvy. Large lips usually are on an hereditary basis.

Sausalito Rejects Outdoor Music

Sausalito City Council last night pulled the plug on outdoor amplified music by the Sausalito Arts Center after residents protested it was no lullaby. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 1.)

The center, which had outdoor amplified music from an adjacent baseball field during the Sausalito Arts Festival over the Labor Day Weekend, was seeking to have it on unspecified Sundays, 1 to 10 p.m.

Residents of nearby Lincoln Drive said the surrounding terrain makes a built-in amphitheater from which the sounds of rock music bounced for three days.

Children couldn't sleep, and the sound was unbearable, neighbors contended.

Councilmen voted 4-0 against amplified sound at that location, with Mayor Alexander R. Imlay absent.

After a sometimes heated one-hour discussion the council approved planned unit development in a single-family area, over the protests of about 15 residents.

David Hunter was granted a variance to have a planned unit development on a three-acre site on Santa Rosa Avenue near Glen Drive, which could have up to 22 units in a cluster.

Residnts contended that putting 22 units on the site would create traffic hazards, change the character of the neighborhood and would in effect be "spot zoning."

Hunter contended that under the plan he would build on less than 11 per cent of the land and leave the remainder in open space, whereas if he had to build single-family homes he would have to cover 35 per cent of the land, and do more harm to the hillside.

Without planned unit development, he would be entitled to build 20 single family homes, Hunter said.

Residents said the hillside was too steep to build 20 single family homes,and one man said Hunter was asking to "put 22 units where there is no road on a cliff."

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt said the planned unit development wasn't a change in zoning, and "would allow an option for something a little different" than the usual subdivision layouts.

Councilman Robin Sweeny pointed out that the council approval was only to permit planned unit development, and specific plans for the housing would have to be presented later for council approval.

The planning commission had approved the concept, and the council approval came by virtue of taking no action, in effect support of the commission decision.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

Second Free Alto Rubbish Pickup Set

Residents of Alto will get an additional free rubbish pickup once a year, the board of directors of the Alto Sanitary District has been told.

Director Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported that the board was told Monday that the additional pickup had been negotiated with Mill Valley Refuse Service, which contracts for garbage disposal in Alto. As a result, there will be two pickups a year instead of one, Heynen said.

The board negotiated the pickup after the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association complained that residents of Mill Valley get two pickups a year while Alto residents get only one.

Heynen said the board also will accept requests from property owners to further review rate charges and additional pickups by the refuse firm.

The sanitary district board also gave permission to Bala and Strandgaard Engineers to reroute a sewer line to allow construction of a drainage culvert at Patricia Lane.

Rev. Charles Farrell made citizens arrests of the two at about 3:45 p.m., according to the report.

Nude Stroller Let Go, No Complaints

Virginia Barbara Small, 25, was released from Marin County Jail Monday when no complaint against her was filed in Marin Municipal Court.

PLEA GETS AID FOR WRONGED YOUNG MAN

A young man, found innocent in court of any traffic violation, appealed to the Sausalito City Council last night to reimburse the cost of towing his car away.

Geoffrey Rubin of 7 Excelsior Lane explained that he was given a traffic citation for his parking on Aug. 12 and his car was towed to a service station.

Since he was found innocent in court, "it follows that I was wrongfully towed," and should recoup the $20 tow charge from the city, Rubin said.

While the city was referring the claim to City Atty. Leland H. Jordan for study, Rubin was handed $20 by Sally Stanford.

San Anselmo Eyes New Sign Laws

The San Anselmo City Council last night worked its way through the first three articles of a proposed sign ordinance, but added only minor revisions to the proposal.

Alfred C. Kaeppel, city administrator-controller, said today the revisions were not substantial despite three hours of discussion.

The council changed its next meeting on the ordinance from tomorrow to Sept. 29 at 8 p.m. at the city hall, Kaeppel reported.

New Twist In KRON-TV License Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Two private detectives testified Tuesday they found romance when they were hired to investigate a man who challenged the license renewal of KRON-TV.

The detectives said they were retained to determine the motives of Albert Kihn, of Mill Valley, a former KRON cameraman who complained the station slanted broadcasts in favor of its parent company, the Chronicle Publishing Co.

Detective Tom Wichelmann told the FCC hearing that since this spring he has been dating Kihn's babysitter, identified only as Karen. However, he said he had not talked with her about the dispute.

The other private investigator, Henry Orwitz, said he had gone to interview a friend of Kihn's and wound up dating her and buying her red roses and a vase.

Both insisted their investigation was conducted with extreme discretion. They denied they had asked anyone about Kihn's sex life.

The hearing is to determine if the investigation constituted coercion, intimidation or harassment. The detectives were hired by the station's legal counsel.

Motorists visiting New York are finding they have to pay from $7 to $9 for overnight parking.

Center For Distraught In Marin

A Marin County suicide prevention center has been launched by a group of citizens, but the actual telephone counseling service will not go into operation until next year.

Deputy County Coroner Keith C. Craig, chairman of an ad hoc committee to set up the suicide prevention program, said articles of incorporation were signed Monday and will be sent to the Secretary of State in Sacramento for official registration.

"The next step is to find a facility for the round-the-clock telephone counseling service," said Craig. "We hope operations can open on Jan. 1."

Next meeting for the group has been set for 4 p.m. Monday at the Marin Civic Center. At that meeting, appointments will be made for the publicity and facilities subcommittees, and raising of private funds will be discussed. "We're looking for private funds because it will be two years before we can qualify for Short-Doyle funds," Craig explained.

Among those who signed the articles of incorporation were Craig, Rae Taub of Mill Valley, Sheila Cerofeci of San Francisco, who works in San Rafael, Charles Johnson of Redwood Chapel in Novato, the Rev. Hugh Hardin Jr. of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael, and attorney James Kennedy of San Rafael.

The purpose of the suicide prevention center is to provide telephone counseling all hours of day and night for distraught persons who want advice or someone with whom to talk about their problems.

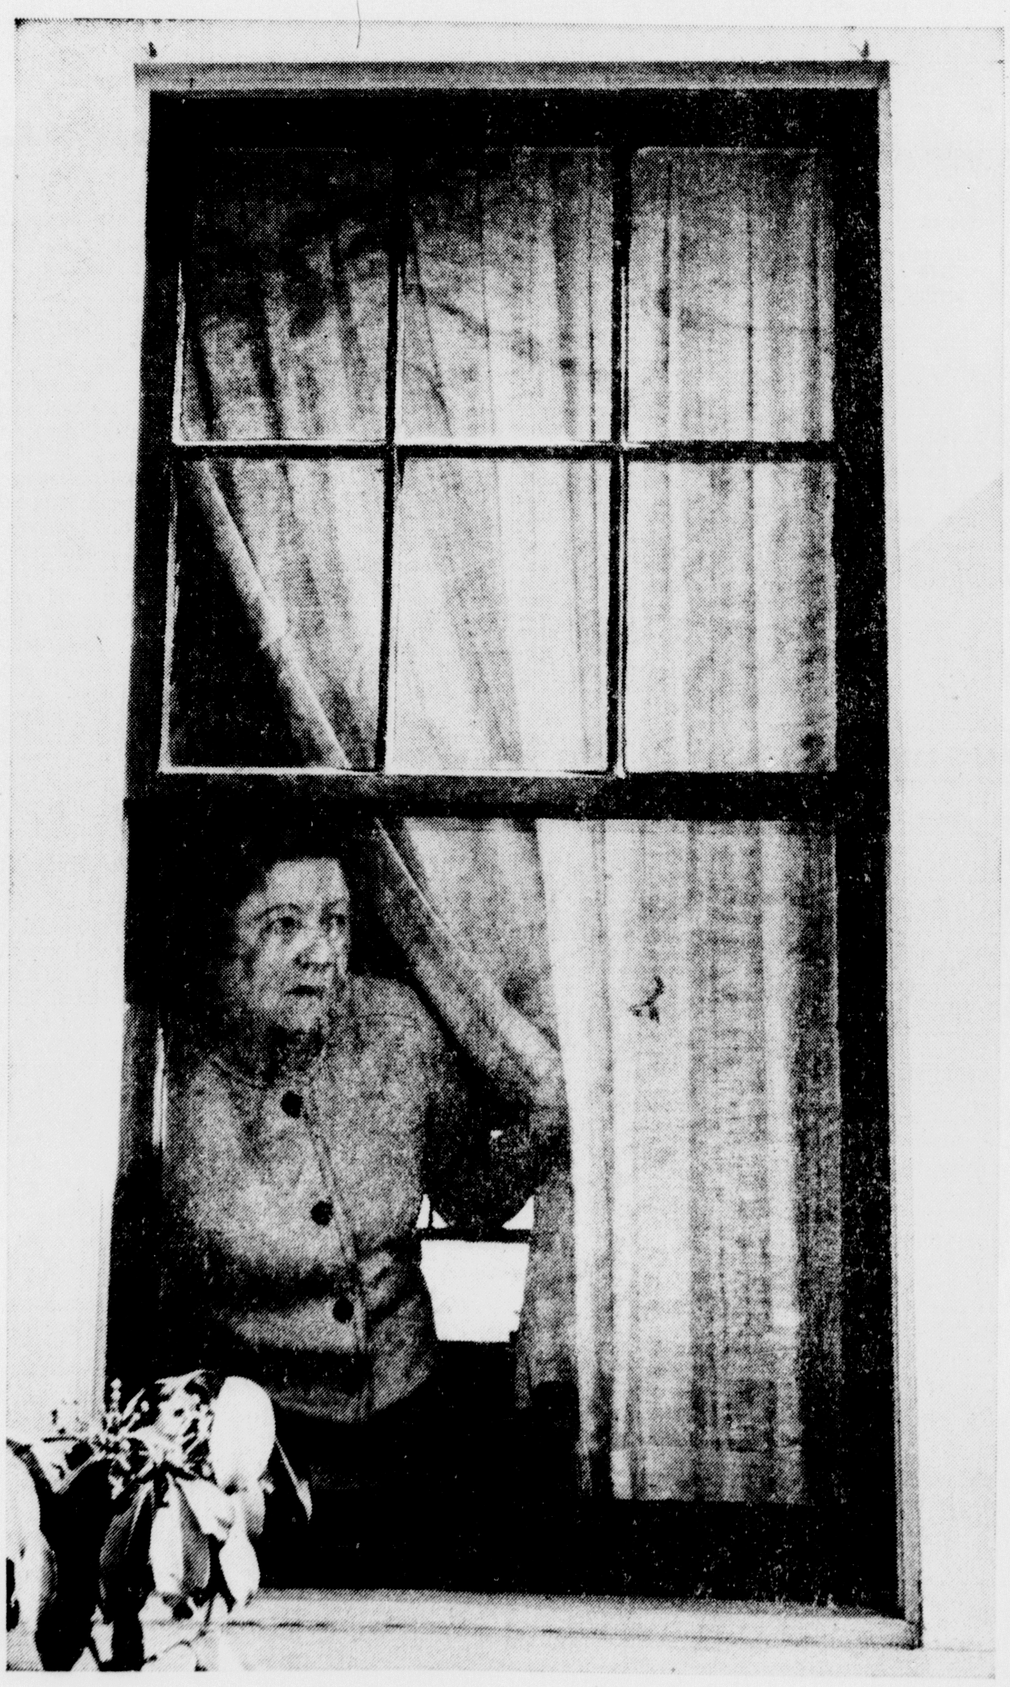
If our TV repairman says he'll be there on Thursday, he'll be there on Thursday or the cost of the labor is on us.



We know there are few things more maddening than waiting around for a repairman who never shows up.

So when we make a promise at ServiceAmerica to show up, we keep the promise. Or you keep the price of the labor involved in fixing your TV set.

Now while we're on the subject of fixing your TV set, you might be interested to know that our repairman can fix hundreds of different makes and models. Virtually any set ever made.

Further, our trucks carry enough parts that we expect to be able to fix 8 out of 10 sets right where they sit.

(When we present you with a bill we'll also present you with a thorough explanation of what everything cost.)

And so you'll know that what we fix is fixed, we'll give you a 90 day warranty on the parts we use. And a 15 day warranty on us.

Of course, if you'd rather save yourself some money, we have special walk-in facilities so you can come to us instead of us coming to you.

If you're strong enough to lift your set, lug it in and we'll do our level best to have it ready for you to lug home again within 48 hours.

ServiceAmerica. Here's where you can find us:

Right now we have five locations in and around the Bay Area. Call for home service or bring your set in.

Sylvania doesn't make them fast
Sylvania just makes them good

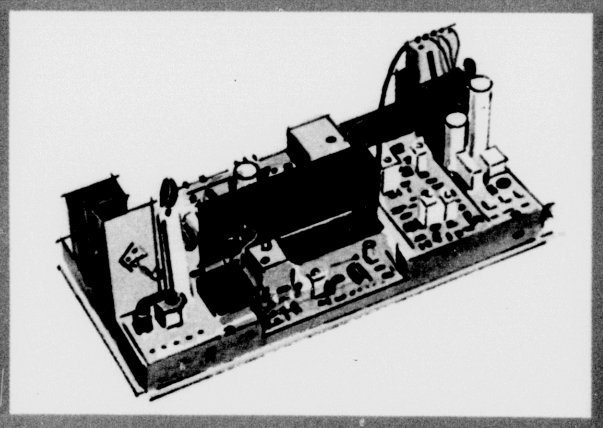
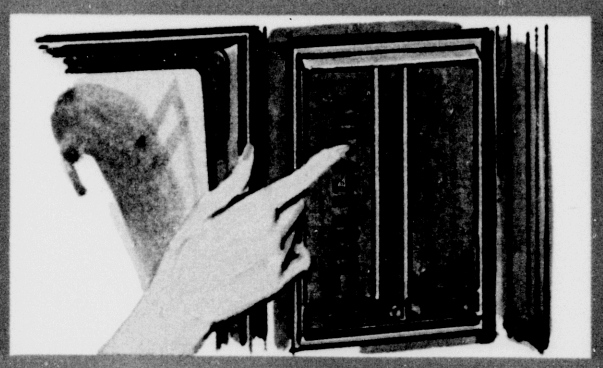
NEW DIMENSIONAL COLOR

A sharper way of looking at things. Brightness and contrast combined for the sharpest big picture tube in the business. New Dimensional Color brings together every technological advance. Sylvania developed rare-earth phosphors for pure, natural colors. Wrap-around black composite for high contrast. The Sylvania patented "dusting process" offers an inherent brightness advantage. Every active electronic part is produced directly by Sylvania. The experience of over 40 million picture tubes is represented in New Dimensional Color.



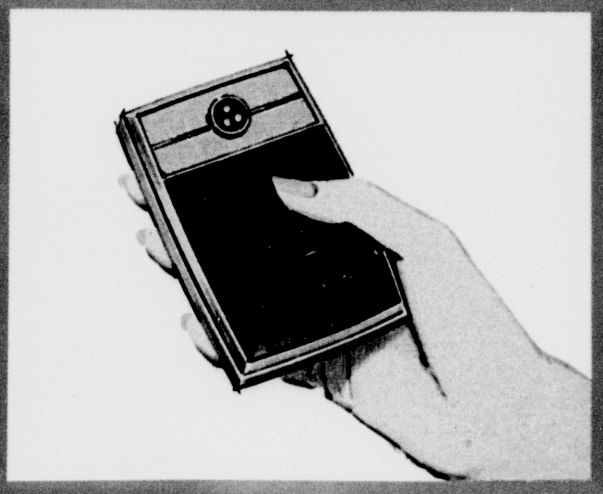
100% SOLID STATE GIBRALTAR™ CHASSIS

The most reliable color television chassis ever designed. All tubes have been eliminated...and so has a lot of wasted heat and power. Two years of performance have proved the first generation Gibraltar™ Chassis to be 350% more reliable than any previous Sylvania chassis. You can expect even more from the all new 100% solid state Gibraltar™. Plug-in transistors simplify service. An exclusive 4-stage IF amplifier automatically adjusts the signal for maximum color. You'll enjoy greater picture sensitivity...better performance. A new solid state high voltage tripler offers long-life performance.



INSTANT PUSH BUTTON TUNING

The most convenient, reliable and modern tuning ever designed for television. Only your finger moves. You can automatically select and tune any one of 11 VHF and UHF channels in any sequence. Instantly...the perfectly tuned picture is there! Switch from channel 2 to 83 at electronic speeds. VHF and UHF stations can be pre-tuned interchangeably. Mechanical parts have been eliminated... replaced with reliable solid state electronic circuits. No more knobs to turn. Manual fine tuning each time a channel is changed is virtually eliminated.



TUNE IT IN FROM WHERE YOU WATCH IT

Sylvania Chairside Color Control allows you to tune your set the right way—from where you watch it. You can switch channels, 2 through 83, from anywhere in the room. Adjust the color and tint control from normal viewing distances. Full function performance allows you to turn your set on or off and change channels—remotely. Designed for synchronous operation with Instant Push Button tuning as well as standard tuning television. The Chairside Color Control is optionally available on many Sylvania color models.

Sylvania brings you the Sights & Sounds of the Seventies. Tune in on a new decade with Sylvania television and stereo equipment engineered for the ultimate in advanced technology. And be sure to see the back page for our special Sights & Sounds of the Seventies offer...a limited edition Peggy Lee stereo LP record and Collector's Portfolio of fine art by Peggy Lee. The record is yours for just $1.50. The Collector's Art Portfolio is yours free of charge just for looking at our new 1971 Sylvania televisions, stereos, radios and tape recorders. Both the record and Collector's Art Portfolio are available exclusively through your Sylvania dealer.
